TRIBUNAL ADHERENCE PLAN REVISED

OLIVE BRANCH EXTENDED TO "ANTI" GROUP

Substitute Resolution of Adhesion, Containing Six Reservations, Offered In Senate As Climax To Sudden Developments---Ratification Expected This Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Manifestly concerned over evidences of wavering in their ranks and perturbed over the growing bitterness of the fight, the administration-democratic coalition of World court forces radically revised the plan of American adherence today and extended an olive branch to the irreconcilables in the senate.

The Swanson resolution, proposing American adherence on the original Hughes reservations, virtually was abandoned, and in its stead, Senator Swanson brought in practically a brand new resolution, containing six fresh reservations.

These reservations provide among other things that no American domestic question can ever be submitted to the court and that the United States can withdraw from the court at any time.

The day's developments tonight appeared to indicate that the protocol will be ratified next week.

The irreconcilables hailed Swanson's about-face as a victory and as an abandonment of their original stand by the court's friends.

Other developments in the day's battling were:

To Press Cloture Motion.

1—A decision by court leaders to press the cloture motion to a vote on Monday, with indications pointing toward its adoption.

2—A decision by the irreconcilables to reject all compromises and to "go down fighting to the end."

3—A proposal by Senator Nye, republican of North Dakota, that the World court question be submitted to a national referendum.

4—A warning by Senator Moses, republican of New Hampshire, that "the propagandists favoring court adherence are now planning a new campaign for American entry to the League of Nations."

5—A maiden speech by Senator Tyson, democrat of Tennessee supporting the court as "a means of preventing the sacrifice of American youths in future wars."

6—Defeat of two efforts by Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri, to get action on a resolution calling upon the state department to produce official documents relating to the court.

The new Swanson reservation caused the greatest stir yet aroused in the World court debate. n brief, it proposed that American adherence be made upon these conditions:

Withdraw at An yTime.

1—That the United States may "at any time withdraw its adherence to the protocol" of the court.

2—That the "court shall not render any advisory opinion except after due notice to all nations adherents of the court."

3—That the court shall not "without the consent of the United States entertain any request for an advisory opinion touching any dis-

HUGHES URGES COURT ENTRY

Former Secretary Of State Tells New York Lawyers U. S. Should Welcome Opportunity To Give Adherence To Protocol.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Charles E. Hughes, former secretary of state, addressing the New York State Bar association here tonight, urged America's entry into the Permanent Court of International Justice.

He declared that this country's position historically has been for the settlement of international disputes by arbitration.

"The American people," he said, "cannot be expected to be judges of their own cases—controversies to which the United States is a part.

"If such international controversies are to be settled when they admit of judicial settlement by judicial methods, then we must expect to have them settled by foreigners."

Hughes said we, in America, cannot establish a permanent court of our own — it "must be established by the nations of the world."

If the United States is to protect its interests adequately, he added, we should "welcome the opportunity to give our adherence to the protocol establishing the World court."

Hughes' advocacy of American entry into the World court followed adoption by the state bar association of a reslution pledging its 22,000 members to support the World court.

The growing menace of the European corn borer in this country was indicated in the bill's recommendation for $101,370 increase over last year in combating it. The total sum asked for plant husbandry was $485,000.

Progress last year in eradicating cattle tuberculosis was indicated by a decrease of $7,000 in this appropriation.

A more rigid inspection service in an attempt to exclude contagious diseases among cattle was provided for in the $630,000 item for inspection and quarantine, which is an increase of $20,000 over last year.

Predict Commercial Conquest Of Air To Equal In Importance Industrial Growth of the Auto

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Commercial conquest of the air will parallel in importance and scope the industrial growth of the automobile and the railroad, the joint commission of the federal government and the American Engineering council predicted tonight in its report on civil aviation.

Federal encouragement in helping commercial aviation gain a vital position in the nation's transportation system was strongly urged.

On the commission were included Secretary of Commerce Hoover, W. F. Durand, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, J. W. Roe, former president of the Society of Industrial Engineers, and Luther K. Bell, traffic manager of the postoffice air service.

Governmental subsidy to aviation was disapproved.

"It is evident that during the last few years the development of aviation in this country has been approaching steadily the point of self supporting application through private initiative in commercial transportation," Hoover said.

"It is not necessary that the government should subsidize commercial aviation, but it is highly important that it should provide certain services essential as a basis for the development.

"The United States leads the world in railway and motor transportation,' he said.

"It will undoubtedly make rapid progress in the commercial uses of airplanes."

The committee said four fundamental difficulties hamper development of commercial air transportation. They were:

1.—Lack of definite legal status and governmental control.

2.—Lack of established government policy to encourage civil and industrial uses of airplanes.

3.—Lack of commercial aircraft and equipment best adapted to profitable commercial operation.

4.—Consequent absence of public and business confidence and support.

COOK BACKED BY AMUNDSEN

Norwegian Explorer Holds Federal Prisoner's Claim That He First Discovered North Pole As Substantial As Peary's.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—The claim of Dr. Frederick A. ook, now a federal prisoner at Leavenworth, Kas., that he was the first to discover the North Pole—a claim generally discredited—is as substantial as that made by the late Com. Robert L. Peary, in the opinion of Raold Amundsen, Norwegian explorer and discoverer of the South Pole.

Amundsen visited Dr. Cook this week at the federal prison where the explorer is serving a sentence of from two to fourteen years.

The Norwegian, whose most recent exploit was an unsuccessful effort to reach the North Pole in an airplane, recalled the return from the north of Dr. Cook in 1909. He said he was among those who greeted him at Copenhagen.

"Cook immediately started writink his story of his discoveries at the North Pole," Amundsen said. "He wrote his story months before Peary started his. I read both stories and in Peary's I found nothing of consequence not covered in Cook's narrative."

Amundsen said he was not only convinced that Cook was not a fakir, but that he was of the opinion that Cook's claims as discoverer of the pole were as plausible as were those of Peary.

The "evidence" gathered from the Eskimos by Capt. Donald MacMillan was passed over by Amundsen as of little weight. The Eskimo, he said he had found in his own experience, would answer most questions with a "yes."

Amundsen and Cook, when young men, were companions on the Adrien De Gerlach, in an Arctic expedition of 1897-99.

SAY BURBANK IS NOT AN INFIDEL

Friends Of Plant Wizard Say His Position Rather That Of Agnostic.

Claim He Realizes There Is Superior Power, To Him Not Yet Defined.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—Upon the exact present day meaning of the word "infidel" depends, the interpretation of the religious convictions of Luther Burbank, famous naturalist, who has re-affirmed his disbelief in a Supreme Being, visible in the after life to those who worship him.

In fact, Burbank is not at all sure there is an after life, and his expressions have aroused a storm of discussion among the clergy and lay folk of his home state and city.

There it will lie in state in the St. Rombold cathedral until next Thursday when after a mass of requiem it will be entombed in the crypt of the cathedral.

North American Broadcasters Will Be Silent This Week To Aid International Reception Tests

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—International Radio week will open officially Sunday night. At 11 o'clock, eastern time, North American broadcasters will close down in order to facilitate reception on this side of the first of a series of musical programs to be radiated by stations of the British Broadcasting Co. in Great Britain and broadcasters in Lima, Peru, and Buenos Aires

Six powerful foreign stations will be on the air during the silent period here. They are 6-BM, Bournemouth; 2-LO, London; 5-XX, Daventry; LOW and LOX, Buenos Aires, and OAX, Lima.

This year's international tests were arranged for months ago and if there is any likelihood of North America tuning in on another continent with any degree of success it surely should be during the period from January 24 to 28, inclusive.

Few broadcasters on this side have expressed the intention of disregarding the general shutdown.

Paris Stations Silen.

Paris stations will not be on the air this year, despite the fair success they achieved in getting through to America last year.

German and Austrian stations wi'l take care of European broadcasting on oMnday night, while the British broadcasters will be back with more programs the following night. The South American stations will broadcast all nights of the test period.

Sunday night's program at 2-LO, London, will be transmitted also from 5-XX Daventry. Daventry, while a station of immense power, uses a wave of 1601 meters and less than 1 per cent of the broadcast listeners of North America will be able to tune to such a high wave station. Station 2-LO London, however, will use a wave of 362.2 meters, which approximates that employed by WHN New York and KGO, Oakland, Cal.

Extensive preparations for taking care of newspapers and listeners requesting confirmation of reception have been completed in New ork. A special committee of press

Included in this work will be 264 miles of grading with necessary culverts and guard rail, 347 miles of gravel surfacing, 6.6 of paving and 62 bridges.

The launching of these projects at such an early date will assure the assembling of materials and equipment to start as soon as spring weather opens up sufficiently. The February letting will be followed later on by other projects, plans for which are now being formulated.

All sections of Nebraska are to share in the highway development program this year, as they did in 1925. First attention is being given to the chief routes of travel across the state, but not to the exclusion of highway connections serving territory otherwise situated.

A MEETING SOON ASKED BY BERENGER

Paris Ambassador Informs Mellon He Is Prepared To Resume Discussion On $4,000,000,000 Obligation---Convening of Funding Commission Arranged.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—An early resumption of negotiations with France over payment of her $4,000,000,000 war debt, probably next week, was assured tonight.

Henri Berenger, the new French ambassador, informed Secretary of Treasury Mellon that he is prepared and desirous of resuming discussion with the full membership of the debt funding commission present. Accordingly, a meeting of the commission will be arranged for next week.

There were conflicting reports current tonight as to whether the ambassador has anything new or concrete to offer.

His expressed desire to appear before the entire commission led some officials to believe he has something tangible to propose, but others were inclined to consider the move merely another gesture.

See No Betterment.

These skeptics point out that there has been no betterment of the French financial situation since Joseph Caillaux returned to Paris in a huff last Ooctober

On the contrary, France's fiscal affairs have become actually more aggravated.

The franc is lower and French credit is worse than when M. Caillaux left Washington, and the government is seemingly no nearer a solution of its difficulties.

However, it was felt by some officials that these very facts may be spurring French statesmen to the realization that the best tonic for sick credit and finances is to settle the debt to the United States.

Isolation Accentuated.

France's isolation among the nations of the world has been accentuated since M. Caillaux returned to Paris.

When M. Caillaux was in Washington he blandly assured the American commissioners that France did not need to go to Wall street for credit. Swiss, Dutch and Scandinavian bankers, he intimated stood ready to advance any credit desired.

Members of the American debt commission frankly considered M. Caillaux to be bluffing, and they now believe their judgment to have been correct, for France has unsuccessfully sought loans abroad since the collapse of the October negotiations in Washington.

The American barrier to French credit has proved to be a world barrier.

Berenger Asks A Debt Parley

New French ambassador to the United States who Saturday informed Secretary Mellon that he was prepared to resume the debt negotiations, which later brought the announcement that a meeting of the full American funding commission would be arranged for this week.

The cold wave is coming out of the Canadian northwest and should reach much of this area by tomorrow, the weather bureau predicted.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas and portions of other states in this forecast area are in the path of the wave.

MEETINGS HERE TO DRAW MANY

About 400,000 Persons Will Attend Gatherings Now Scheduled For 1926.

State Fair, Basketball Tourney, Church Meet, and Conventions Included.

Approximately 400,000 people from all sections of the United States, will be visitors in Lincoln during 1926 as delegates or visitors at district, state or national gatherings already scheduled, according to a bulletin just issued by the convention committee of the chamber of commerce. The figure includes approximately 75,000 which are annually drawn to football, baseball and basketball games at th euniversity, hihg school and Landis field.

The largest number that will be attracted will come to the state fair, September 5 to 10, when 250,000 are expected to make the turnstiles click during the week. Secretary Jackson says he hopes to make the number reach 300,000.

Five thousand will attend the state high school basketball tourney, March 11 to 13. It is claimed 300 teams will bring 3,000 players and at least 2,000 followers. As many more will come to the Missouri Valley track and field meet, scheduled for May 21 and 22, and the state high school track contests should attract at least 1,200, when they are run off May 7 and 8. The state high school musical competitions have brought 500 to each of the two already held and the number will be equalled this year it is asserted.

The national conference of the Church of the Brethren, June 9 to 15, will attract delegates from the United States, Canada and several foreign countries. Officers of the conference here recently to complete arrangements for the sessions said that the attendance might reach 15,000. More than 20,000 attended last year, they said. The business and devotional meetings will be held in the coliseum, auditorium and automobile building at the state fair grounds.

Can Accommodate Any Meeting.

Two thousand will be at the Epworth league institute in July, and 7,500 is the estimate made of the number that will attend the Epworth assembly in August.

The third week in October will bring 2,000 to the Nebraska Federation of Woman's clubs convention, and 5,00 more will attend the convention of the first district Nebraska State Teachers' association, the first week in November. There were 4,200 at the last meeting.

Other meetings that will bring large delegations will be the district convention of Rotary clubs, 1,000, April 22 and 23, an dthe district conference of Lions clubs, May 11 and 12. The convention of the state dental association will attract 500 May 16 to 21, and the Nebraska State Jewelers' association will bring another 300 February 15 to 17. A number of smaller gatherings will bring from 50 to 200 each.

Five large conventions have already been scheduled for January 1927, with prospects good for two more, the chamber bulletin says.

Because of lack of hotel facilities Lincoln has been handicapped in recent years, and has not bid for conventions to any great extent, according to Secretary Whitten. As a result 1925 saw but seventy-seven gatherings attended by but 18,530 people, not counting the state fair, nor those attending the athletic events.

The situation is different now and any size gathering can be entertained, Mr. Whitten says. This has been brought about through the remodelingof the Lincoln hotel, the erection of the Cornhusker and Capital hotels, both of which are nearing completion, and the building of the new field house on the university campus.

DURKIN'S CRIMES CAUSING TROUBLE NOW FOR OTHERS

Man Who Drove Dapper Slayer Away From Chicago Taken for Quizzing.

Prosecutors Confident Can Show Prisoner Knew Victim Not a Holdup.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Like ripples that spread when a stone is dropped in water, the crimes of Martin J. Durkin have spread out and brought not only distress to others, but to some of them, legal troubles as well.

This was brought to the fore today when David Berg, who drove Durkin away from Chicago when he took to his heels after killing Edward J. Shanahan, department of justice operative, and before he returned to fall into and escape a police trap in which he is accused of killing another man, Detective Harry I. Gray, was taken to the state's attorney's office for questioning.

He was followed shortly by Louis Jenkins, who gave Durkin a razor to shave off his mustache and otherwise aided him in his escape.

Both are under indictment as accessories after the killing. Although heretofore they have stoutly maintained that they helped Durkin without knowing he had killed anyone and under the belief he was evading arrest on a minor charge, it was announced tonight they were ready to desert the debonair bandit-slayer and tell what they may know.

Admitted Killed "Copper."

That information, it was said, would take the form of admission made to them by Durkin that he had killed "a copper," proving that he knew Shanahan was an officer and not the holdup man he now claims.

From seven former friends of Durkin, affidavits to that effect already have been taken If Jenkins and Berg swear to the same effect, the keystone of Durkin's defense will have been strongly undermined.

That the state will concentrate upon the Shanahan case became further evident today when it was learned federal records were being searched for proof of a belief that Shanahan once appeared as prosecuting witness against Durkin in a Dyer act case. If that can be shown, Durkin's claim he did not know the federal man will receive another severe jolt

Wife to Quit Chicago.

Irma Sullivan Durkin, disillusioned bride of the slayer, planned to return tonight with her parents to their humble home in the village of Cornell, Ill., lending color to the report that, outraged by the discovery that he had married her without being at all certain he was divorced from another wife, she was fast being turned against him

Meanwhile, Durkin's kin were making frantic but futile efforts to retain for him a criminal lawyer of reputation. Lack of money with which to conduct the defense resulted in one after another well known lawyer refusing the case Included in the list were William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, who have appeared in many notorious cases in late years.

Clarence Darrow has not yet been asked to take it.

His announcement that a "hanging verdict in this case would break my heart if I were the attorney" and reluctance to undertake so strenuous a task at 69 apparently checked plans to ask him to take the case.

"If he is unable to get any other attorney to represent him, I might do so as a matter of principle," was his last word on the matter.

ANOTHER PETITION IN STRELOW CASE

Schultz Ask Appointment As Administrators For Estate Of Theodore.

Appeals By Charles Before His Death Recently May Not Be Dropped.

Another petition was filed in the Strelow estate matter Saturday afternoon by Frank Schultz, asking that he and his brothers, Henry and Albert, be appointed special administrators for the estate of Theodore Strelow, first of the two Denton hermits to be called by death.

The First Trust company has already been appointed special administrator for the estate of Charles Strelow, who died Thursday night, but none had ever been named for that of his brother, although a petition for the trust company had been filed some time ago.

An intimation that appeals filed in District court by Charles Strelow before his death will not be dropped, as is petitioned by the heirs at law, was given Saturday by O. B. Clark, attorney for the Schultz brothers. With the appellant himself dead and his two wills in controversy, it is not certain just what status those appeals will have.

The attorneys, Mr. Clark for the Schultz brothers and Meier & Meier for the heirs at law, were said to be preparing objections to probate of the wills which they will soon file. One will, made out in 1903, leaves all of Charles' property to Theodore, who is now also dead. The other, signed December 30, 1925, while Charles was in St. Elizabeth's hospital following an attack of pneumonia, leaves practically all the property to the Schultz brothers, sons of Albert Schultz, an old friend and neighbor of the Strelows. Hearing for probate will be before Judge Reid February 10.

Funeral services for Charles have been arranged by his nieces and nephews and will be held at 1 o'clock Sunday at Splain & Schnell's chapel, in charge of Rev. Richard Kuehne. Burial will be at the Highland Methodist cemetery south of Denton, beside the body of Theodore. A memorial will be erected to the two as pioneers of Lancaster county.

MAKING AND CONSERVING MONEY

It is a fact that many whose genius lies in making money have little ability to conserve it. The financial results of one prosperous year may be wiped out in the next.

Is there not some means by which a suitable portion of such money and property can be placed beyond probability of loss and yet be used for the benefit of the members of a family? There is such a method.

Let any of our officers of the Trust Department explain to you the various forms under which your family may be protected against future want.

The Middle West Is Prosperous

The results of 1925 show clearly that business is on a stable basis.

The building figures for Lincoln show an unprecedented increase.

Interest rates are low enough to make it profitable for business to expand in a conservative way.

All this assures us that 1926 will show a satisfactory volume of business without taking on any of the unfavorable features of an inflation.

The Security Mutual has shared in the prosperity of 1925, showing a gain in its undistributed surplus of $56,000.

The interest earnings of the Company on its total assets were very favorable. The Company's mortality experience was rather exceptional, indicating the splendid class of risks that the Company is able to secure by reason of its location in the Middle West.

FINDS INCREASE IN LAND SALES

More Transfers In Dakota County Last Year Than All of Previous Five.

Mostly For Cash and Not Speculative; Realty Business Elsewhere Active.

A banker at Jackson advises that there were more bonafied sales of farms to actual farmers made in Dakota county in 1925, than during the entire five year period before.

Following are some of the actual sales made, which give a fair idea as to average values:

Edwin Morgan of Dakota City purchased as a home for his son 80 acres of improved land from the Barnette estate, located 4 miles east of Jackson for $165 an acre.

Henry Eble of South Sioux City purchased a 97-acre improved farm, 4 1-2 miles east of Jackson, from the John Kruger estate, for $200 an acre.

Fred Bierman of Dakota City purchased an unimproved 40-acre tract, two and one-half miles southeast of Jackson from the J. M. Barry estate, at a consideration of $150 an acre.

Axel Rasmussen, a young farmer of Jackson, purchased 80 acres of unimproved land, which he expects to improve for his home, located two miles south of Jackson, from Ella B. Casey for $180 an acre.

C. J. Goodfellow of Jackson bought 80 acres four miles west of Homer last fall for $120 an acre in trade and has just sold this land to Christian Erikson of Homer for $125 an acre cash.

John P. Walsh of Ponca, bought a 160 acre improved farm from Michael R. Boler, located seven miles northwest of Jackson, for $125 an acre.

Albert Barnes of Waterbury purchased at sheriff's sale, 46 acres one mile north of Dakota City for $310 an acre.

Samuel Hikes of Dakota City purchased 120 acres two miles southwest of that place from Gus Miskell for $225 an acre

Fred Bierman of Dakota City purchased an unimproved 40 acres which adjoins his home farm, situated one mile south of Coburn Junction, from Edwin Morgan, for $175 an acre.

All of these sales were for cash and the land will be occupied by the owners or members of the family, or else adjoins the owner's present holdings.

One hundred and sixty acres near Tecumseh belonging to the estate of Christ and Emma Hoehne, who were both killed in a railroad crossing accident in 1924, sold recently at public sale for $129 an acre.

In the neighborhod of Denton in Lancaster county, 260 acres were sold in the settlement of the John Enright estate, for $44,000. An 80-acre tract sold for $171 an acre; another 80 for $111 an acre, and a quarter section for $134.50.

Fred Allemang of Antelope county, has just increased his land holdings up to 1,000 acres, all acquired in the last few years, by the acquisition of the S F. Rorabaugh 240-acre farm south of Orchard, at a consideration of $17,000 00 This 240 acres to be occupied by the owner's son

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Grunke recently purchased from Mrs. Lena Hensel, a 12-acre tract near West Point for $5,000.

Chris Shawver of Lyons has just acquired the balance of the section on which he lives, having purchased the unimproved 160 acres known as the Henry Crowell homestead for $17,000.

The following sales are reported from Wilsonville:

An unimproved 30 acres from W. H. Logan to Vern Rice for $6,000 This tract adjoins Mr Rice's home farm.

Guy Dillon, an improved quarter section seven miles northeast of Wilsonville of Stephen T Fleharty, for $8,000 cash.

Ed and Harry Kerns bought an unimproved 160 acres four miles north of Wilsonville, adjoining their home ranch, from E. J. Hamilton for $45 an acre.

L R Lomax, a farmer, purchased 240 acres of land on the rough order, of E. J. Hamilton for $8,000 cash.

Recent Land Sales in Iowa.

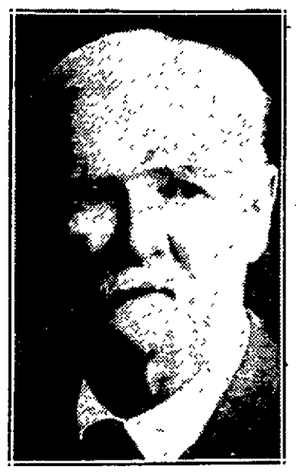

Sol. William G. Dows recently purchased 240 acres about four miles east of Cedar Rapids, for $300 an acre, making him 740 acres in one tract.

Harry Ballard recently sold 160 acres northeast of Lennox in Clay county to Albert and Louis Mockler for $200 an acre.

After occupying the farm for one year as tenant, Ben Scodden, formerly of Spencer, Neb., purchased the 85-acre ranch near White River, in Mellette county, S. D, from John and Gus Matsusek, for $19 an acre.

Retired After 52 Years On Railroad

J. W. VANDERPOOL.

Of Athol, Kansas, who is in Lincoln visiting at the home of his son, J. L. Vanderpool, 1746 Vine street. Mr. Vanderpool worked for the Rock Island railroad for thirty-two successive years and has just been retired on pension at the age of 64 years. Mr. Vanderpool was born in Clay county, Mo., in 1861 and started working for the Rock Island when a boy of 12 as water carrier on a construction train. In 1871 he worked as section laborer on the Missouri division, at that time called the Middle division. In August, 1884, he was promoted to section foreman at Hickory Creek, Mo., a position he held at different points on the Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas divisions until March, 1924, when he was transferred to Phillipsburg, Kas., as switch lamp tender on account of physical condition. He held this position until he was retired November 15, 1925. Mr. Vanderpool says that he has enjoyed his work throughout his years of service, has watched with interest the great progress made from the old chain iron rails and wood burners to the magnificent equipment of the modern railroad, and wishes the system greater success in the next fifty years.

YOUNG ROSS IS AGAIN SPARED

Youthful Condemned Murderer Once More Escapes Chair In East.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—Ambrose Ross, youthful condemned murderer, gambled with death while in sight of the electric chair here today and won.

"There will be no electrocution tonight," said Superintendent of Prison Long, after District Attorney Elvin H. Edwards, emissary of Gov. Al Smith, and Edwards' assistant, Charles I. Wood, had emerged from a six hour conference with Ross in the death house.

The failure of the state to execute Ross today assured him of at least six weeks more of life, the law providing that he must be resentenced if he has not been put to death during the week designated by the court.

Twice snatched from the death chamber by a stay of execution, Ross told his story of the robbery of the First National bank of Bellmore, Long Island, in which Ernest L Whiteman, auto salesman was killed.

He broke the silence he has maintained since his conviction only after his attorneys had exhausted every means of saving him by legal methods.

The tale he told will be submitted to Governor Smith in detail, it was learned, and the chief executive on the recommendation of his emissary will either extend Ross' reprieve or order him re-sentenced to death

STOCKS SCORE A LATE DISCOVERY

General Upturn Closes Week Of Reactionary Developments.

Few Important Changes are Recorded In The Commodity Prices.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—A general recovery in industrial stocks, under the leadership of the oils, closed a week of reactionary developments in the stock market and an unusually interesting array of industrial happenings.

Most of the week's reaction was attributed to the activities of professional traders, though considerable liquidation took place for the account of bullish traders, who carried their stocks over from last year.

The bears received the "breaks" in the news early in the week and offered a large volume of industrial stocks at concessions from market prices. Heavy selling was concentrated on United States Steel, Baldwin Locomotive, American Can and other speculative leaders and until Thursday it appeared that the bears would be able to carry out their program. But good support then appeared from bullish interests, covering became more urgent and the final session of the market was occupied with a general rally under the lead of the oils.

The bond market was active and strong this week, reflecting the easier trend of the money market and the increase in institutional demand for high grade bonds. Government bonds of all classes and prime industrials advanced to slightly higher price levels this week.

There were few important changes in commodity prices Grain and cotton prices moved through a narrow range Bank clearings for the week aggregated $10,150,031,000, an increase of 5.8 per cent above the same week last year.

Coast Body Favors New Plan to Solve Colorado Problem

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(U. P.)—Secretary of the Interior Work today issued a statement expressing gratification on behalf of himself, Secretary Hoover, and Commissioner of Reclamation work for the approval and congratulations they had received from "what would appear to be a very important association in southern California," on their new proposals for solving the Lower California river problem.

"We are extremely pleased to find so universal an acceptance of the plan from ten or twelve groups of entirely diverse interests," said Work, who also commended Senator Johnson and Representative Swing, authors of the Saving-Johnson Boulder canyon dam bill, for falling into line

"The only element immediately concerned which has not yet expressed a whole hearted approval," he continued, "is the state of Arizona."

Sales and Service Branch Established Here By Truck Firm

The Mack International Truck corporation has established a Lincoln branch for sales and service at the Morse garage, 109 North Ninth street. Mr. W. G. Jones who has been with the corporation for some time will continue to represent them in this territory and associated with him to look after the local business will be Lute Morse, many years the Franklin dealer here.

Speaking of the new arrangement Mr. Jones said, that it was the earnest desire of the Mack people to give the very best service that is possible in this locality. "You see," said Mr. Jones, "it is a different story from a pleasure car. When a truck is out of commission, some one is losing money for every hour it is laid up, with a passenger car it is merely the inconvenience of being without a car. We want our patrons to have one hundred per cent personal service on their Mack trucks and that is what we are going to give them.

We will have a display of trucks at the Morse garage, and anyone who has a transportation problem will be able to get in touch with us."

Wife Backs Borah In Tribunal Battle

LOS ANGELES, Jan 23—(I. N S.)—Mrs William E. Borah, here to regain her health after an attack of pneumonia, today declared she was in full and complete accord with her husband, senior senator from Idaho, who is leading the fight in the senate against the move to bring the United States into the World court.

"Women in Washington feel just as free to do their own thinking, independent of husbands, fathers and brothers, as do women in California, Idaho and other states, and we are doing a lot of thinking—and no little talking—about the World court issue," Mrs. Borah said.

"Princess Alice" of Washington, who is Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and the daughter of the late President Roosevelt, is the unofficial leader of the captial women opposing the World court idea, according to Mrs. Borah

"Those of us in Washington who oppose the World court have no hesitation in recognizing Alice Roosevelt Longworth as our unofficial leader," the wife of the Idaho solon said.

"Alice is a wonder and she leaves no room for doubt as to her convictions"

A[illegible]er Type of Story [illegible]rom Ponzi's Boston

A tabloid biography of the life of Mr J S Donovan of Boston, reduced from an account of his accomplishments published in the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Began work as a lad of eleven. After fifteen years he arrived in Boston penniless. He was then 26. Today he is 46 and a millionaire.

How did we do this in twenty years? In his own words:

"All my success I owe to that determination made when I first came to Boston to live far within my means. I have stuck to it throughout, even when I became prosperous. IT IS THE ONLY WAY."

Mr. Donovan is pushing back from his desk now. He is going after some of the fun he missed as a boy. He has all of his earnings invested in sound securities.

Will you be able to close your desk for the last time when you are 46, 56 or 76?

We would enjoy helping you try.

Our Partial Payment Bond plan offers the salaried man or woman a way to start. It takes ten minutes to explain. Surely you can spare that much time!

A NEW MINE PEACE MEET TO BE CALLED

in advance that the mine owners do not consider the so-called Lynett plan of settlement of the strike as acceptable as a basis for a contract.

A letter has been forwarded to Chairman Markle of the joint conference, setting forth the mine owners' position with regard to resumption of negotiations under the Lynett plan.

Chairman Markle is now at his home at Hazleton, Pa., and it was the belief here that as soon as he receives the mine owners' letter he will consult with the parties and then announce a time and place for the resumption of negotiations.

Lewis Comments.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, tonight declared he was still willing to re-enter another conference with the anthracite operators in an attempt to settle the five months' old coal strike.

Lewis reiterated his desire to renew negotiations despite the statement of the operators that their entry into a new conference must be on the basis of the understanding that they will not consider the proposed peace plan of E. J. Lynett, Scranton publisher.

With the communication of the attitude of Lewis and the operators to Alvin Markle, chairman of the joint negotiation committee, Markle can now arrange a time and place of the calling of a new meeting.

The operators in their statement accepted the Markle invitation to the conference providing Lewis be informed of their attitude on the Lynett plan.

Subject Matter Not Revealed.

Lewis tonight gave no intimation of the subject matter to be considered if the negotiating committee is called together.

Earlier in the day he urged opening the conference sessions to the press. In the Hilated Union League conference in New York, which terminated without an agreement on January 12, a resolution to this effect failed to gain the operators' approval.

The Lewis letter to Markle, requesting a resumption of negotiations, referred to the Lynett plan as containing material "worthy of mature consideration by both sides" and suggested open sessions to the press as preventative measures for misleading statements reaching the public.

Prior to the arrival of Lewis' letter, Markle was advised of the contents, and said that as soon as he was formally in receipt of the missive, he would proceed with plans for the conference, consulting the convenience of both sides as to the time and place of meeting.

Lewis in his letter said the miners were willing to meet either in the anthracite region or in New York City.

The peace plan submitted by Lynett caused a warm exchange between the publisher and the operators when the letter rejected the plan after it was officially approved by Lewis. Lynett alleged that W. W. Inglis, as spokesman for the operators, had approved the plan in a letter to him.

Inglis denied his letter contained approval.

pute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest."

4—That the "United States approves the protocol with the understanding that recourse to the court for the settlement of differences between the United States and any other stateor states can be had only by agreements thereto through general or special treatyies concluded between the parties in dispute."

5—That American adherence shall not be "construed as to require the United States to depart from its traditional policy of not intruding upon, interfering with or entangling itself in the political questions, policy or internal administration of any foreign states."

6—That American adherence shall "not be construed to imply a relinquishment by the United States of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions.

On the heels of Swanson's reservations, Senator Borah, republican of Idaho, urged limiting the British empire to a single vote in the election of judges, asked open hearings and the prohibition of "confidential advice" by the court.

Senator Blease, democrat of South Carolina, offered a reservation which would give "each state of the United States" a vote in the election of judges so long as the British Empire held more than a single vote.

Senator Overman, democrat of North Carolina, renewed a reservation prohibiting the court from ever rendering opinion on any question affecting the alleged indebtedness of southern states, concerning American immigration, or the Monroe Doctrine.

It was announced by Senators Curtis, republican of Kansas, and Swanson that a two-thirds majority would support cloture when the question comes to a vote Monday.

Read Denounces Cloture.

The irreconcilables, led by Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri, denounced cloture as "gag rule" and "mob law," but rejected all compromises.

Borah, leader of the irreconcilables also announced his opposition to any compromise.

A last effort by court leaders to secure an agreement for a vote was blocked late in the day by Senator Reed.

Before this the administration forces blocked two efforts of Reed to secure pasage of his resolution caalling on the secretary of state for the official protocol of the court and for the official documents relating to it.

The day's developments ended with Senator Edwards, democrat of New Jersey, demanding a vote on the court.

"Let's do something besides obstruct important legislation said Mr. Edwards. "Let's go in or stay out."

Wants Referendum.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Proposing a national referendum upon the question of American adherence to the World court, Senator Gerald P. Nye, republican of North Dakota, recently seated after a row, this afternoon made his debut as a senator with an attack upon the international tribunal.

Nye sponsored a resolution, as a part of his speech, calling for submission of the question of American adherence to the voters at the next primary or general elections The governors of each state would be authorized to submit the question on state ballots.

Nye said his proposal was based upon the demand of the democratic party in 1920 for a referendum on the League of Nations. His proposed referendum, however, would not be held for six months, so the people might become acquainted with the court.

Refers To Propaganda.

Nye pointed out that there was "much diversity of opinion" among members of the senate regarding the "nature and obligations to be assumed by the United States should this country agree to become a member of the World court. He also referred to the "propaganda" circulated in favor of adherence and declared tha American people have not yet spoken.

"This question of adhesion is of such vital importance to the American people," Nye added, "that this senate has no moral right to pass on this important matter either negatively or affirmatively, until the voice of the American people shall have been heard and heard distinctly above the influence of the new attendant propaganda."

Nye said he would prefer to "lose a six year term in the senate," rather than vote for the court.

NORTH AMERICA BROADCASTERS TO BE SILENT

representatives will be on duty in New York from 8 p. m. to 4 a. m. daily handling news dispatches in regard to the broadcasting.

Unofficial listeners are posted on both sides of the Atlantic for logging programs.

Coast Station Protests.

LOS ANGELES, Calif, Jan. 23.—(U.P)—Radio Station KFI, owned and operated by Earl C. Anthony, Inc., will get in line with other broadcasting plants throughout the nation tomorrow and remain silent during the International Radio Test week, officials announced tonight.

While agreeing to silence its station during the test, KFI at the same time issued a statement denouncing the plans of the international test week committee, maintaining it was "primarily fostered by radio interests which contribute nothing to broadcasting and is designed to reap a tremendous profit from the American public.

Officials of the Earl C. Anthony company, automobile distributors, admitted they had refused until tonight to co-operate with the international test week committee.

The action was "justified," it was maintained, "in view of the questionable and misleading publicity issued by that body."

"Our decision to observe all silent hours is in deference only to the wish of the average listener who as yet does not realize the test week is designed to make the public dissatisfied with any set that does not receive European stations," the statement said.

"'Big fest week profits await dealers' is a headline which appears in the current issue of a prominent radio retail journal," continued the statement, "which would seem to indicate a definite mercenary move behind the international test.

"KFI will operate on a minimum power during the hours outside the silent periods in the hope that the over-enthusiastic and expectant Pacific coast owners of less elaborate sets may be able to hear midwest and Atlantic coast stations operating on high power during the hours set for transmission from America."

$1,500,000 ON FIRST OF 1926 ROAD PROGRAM

will be continuous gravel from Minden to Lincoln and on through to Omaha, a distance of over 200 miles.

Beyond Minden graveling is to be done between Oxford and Atlanta and between McCook and Bartley. This will leave some open spaces along the route, some of grade and others which have been which are not yet on permanent graded but not graveled. Before the end of the year, however, it is anticipated that the D. L. D. will be extended as an all-gravel route almost to McCook, if not the entire distance, and possibly beyond.

Cornhusker to Be Improved.

On the Cornhusker, which runs north and south through Lincoln and is already graveled the whole distance from Fremont to a point several miles south of Beatrice, except for two miles this side of Ceresco, the gravel is to be extended 13 miles northward from Hooper. At the north end of this highway graveling has already been done from Sioux City to Homer. This will be brought 15 miles farther south to Walthill. There will still remain 50 miles of ungraveled road on the Cornhusker between Walthill and Hooper, but some of this will be taken care of later in the season.

Branching from the Cornhusker at Wahoo, the highway running straight east to the Platte river at utan and crossing the new bridge there to connect with Douglas county paving will be graveled the entire distance.

Gravel surfacing now in progress eastward from Lincoln will be completed to Eagle and continued eastward from there for 6½ miles toward Elmwood. Coming this way from Nebraska City, graveling already provided for as far as Syracuse will be brought on to Unadilla and part way to Palmyra.

Lincoln Highway Shares.

The Lincoln highway, from Omaha west to the Wyoming line, will be improved in four places west of Kearney, for a toal distance of nearly 50 miles. Some additional projects on this highway are planned during the year.

On the most northerly route running east and west across the state between Sioux City and Harrison, over 55 miles are to be contracted for on graveling, grading and sand-clay surfacing projects. Twenty miles along the Potash highway in Buffalo and Hoker counties is also provided for.

Graveling extension will be made on the Goldenrod highway westward from Hebron, continuing the work previously done or contracted for from Beatrice to Hebron. The Goldenrod is already graveled at its eastern end from Nebraska City to Auburn, and additional surfacing will now be done westward from Auburn, to meet similar construction being pushed from Beatrice east to Filley and between Tecumseh and Crab Orchard. Another piece of road on the Goldenrod, situated in Harlan county will be similarly surfaced.

Among the bridges to be contracted for in February, the largest is one 700 feet long, over the Niobrara river, conecting two Indian reservation just west of the town of Niobrara.

ALL OF BELGIUM IS GRIEVING OVER MERCIER DEATH

primate had been placed in a stout oaken coffin and just as the city's carrilons rang out the hour of 7 the coffin was borne out into the peaceful calm of the winter night.

In the streets and the thoroughfares through which the private ambulance made its course had assembled an immense crowd.

All Walks Represented.

Every walk of Belgian life was represented, for tonight all Belgium gave itself up to grief at the prelate's passing.

Earlier in the day the tolling of a thousand bells over Belgium had proclaimed the nation's loss as in the quiet chamber of death Dr. Van Nee pronounced the cardinal dead.

King Albert and Prince Leopold heir aparent of Belgium and a favorite with the primate, hurried to the hospital and kneeling by the bedside in silent prayer, kissed the crucifix the cardinal held in his ashen hands. Presently members of the cabinet and other political leaders, foreign diplomats, including Ambassador Phillips of the United States, called at the hospital and presented their cards.

Dr. Van Nee said:

"Although the cardinal died without suffering, he was so wasted by his illness that he could not have weighed more than a hundred pounds. He was greatly emaciated."

Vested, as for mass, in chausable, the distinctive mass vesiment, the pallium, symbol of the archbishop's office, was about his shoulders and over his temples was pressed a white mitre, also symbolic of his pastoral office. His cardinal's soutan showed underneath an alb of lace and his feet were clad in purple slippers.

Makes Sign of Cross.

The cardinal's last conscious act was to make the sign of the cross, and he murmured:

"Now there is nothing more to wait for except the expression of the divine wish."

Just before 7 o'clock this morning, the litany for the dying was said and the cardinal paid close attention, his lips striving to murmur the words of the litany in unison with the priests, two of whom were his nephews.

The litany over, the cardinal went into a coma and never regained consciousness.

Spanish Airmen Sure Of Success In Long Flight

LAS PALMAS, Jan. 23. — (I. N. S.)—Three Spanish airmen setting forth on an aerial Argosy, knelt today in the tiny church of San Antoin and prayed in the same spot where more than 400 years ago there knelt and prayed another adventurer, Christopher Columbus, on his quest for proof that the world is round.

Having delayed their departure from Las Palmas until tomorrow, the Spanish airmen, Commander Franco, Captain Ruiz and Ensign Duran, who are attempting an airplane flight from Spain to Buenos Aires and then possibly to the United States and return to Spain, attended mass at 8 o'clock in the church.

"This first stage of the flight was unimportant," Commander Franco said, when advised of the world-wide interest in their flight. "I am confident of success."

The NE Plus Ultra, the plane which is being used on the flight, consumed 2,000 litres of gasoline in its $17 mile hop to Las Palmas from Palos, Spain. There were 100 litres in the tanks when the landing was made.

CONGRESS TO PAY HONOR TO RAKER

Delegations From House, Senate to Accompany Body To California Home.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—A delegation of members of the house and senate will accompany the body of Representative John Raker, democrat, California, to Susanville, Cal., and attend the funeral there.

Raker died here last night after a lingering illness. His body will be started back to California Wednesday afternoon.

The house was informed of Raker's death by Representative Lea, democrat, California, and after adopting the usual resolutions of regret, adjourned out of respect to his memory.

Lea lauded Raker's sixteen years' service in the lower house, and said he would later ask that a day be set aside for eulogies of his life, character and public service.

All members of the California delegation in the house were appointed to accompany the body back to California and attend the funeral. But it is likely that many of them will be forced to forego the trip, because of pressing business here.

Representatives Kahn, Carter, Lea and Lineberger, all of California, anounced that they would attend the funeral.

To Name Senators.

A committee of six senators is expected to be appointed by the vice president to join with the house committee in attending the funeral.

Mrs. Raker, widow of the deceased member, will be accompanied back to California by Mrs. Burroughs, her sister, Miss Burroughs and John Spencer, Raker's secretary.

The house irrigation and reclamation committee, of which Raker was an active member, held a special session Saturday, and after adopting resolutions of sorrow adjourned out of respect of his memory.

Raker never attended a session of the present congress, being confined to his bed ever since he came here shortly before the session convened.

In accordance with a special resolution passed by the house, Speaker Longworth recently visited Raker's apartment and administered the oath of office to him. Several bills and resolutions bearing his name have been introduced.

The senate adjourned at 5 o'clock, an hour earlier than usual, out of respect to the dead congressman.

Friends in Santa Rosa, Burbank's home town, said today that he previously had announced disbelief in a physical God, with an actual heaven of golden streets, and a hell of fire for sinners.

And in this disbelief he would be regarded as an "infidel" by those who hold the old definition of the word the only one, it was admitted.

Friends Claim is Agnostic

By those who know him best, Burbank is held an "agnostic," believing in a limited human intelligence of the hereafter, but realizing there is a superior power, which to him, has not yet been defined.

"My religion is humanity," Burbank reiterated today.

"The original meaning of the word 'infidel' was unfaithful, but it has largely lost that significance," said Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritis of Stanford university. "The word in that sense surely could not apply to Burbank. He could not be unfaithful should he try.

"I don't blame him for not wanting anything to do with a 'God who sends people to a burning hell.' But he needn't worry, there is not any such God."

"If Mr. Burbank meant that he is an agnostic rather than an infidel, I can understand his position," said Rabbi Jacob Nieto, local Jewish leader. "Personally, I shall leave the care of my soul to the God who gave it to me and not worry about the hereafter."

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—Declaring he had friends both in heaven and hell, William Montgomery Brown, former Episcopalian bishop, who arrived here today to speak tomorrow, announced that "I don't care where I go."

"If I go down below just because I decided that I had a right to use my brains, I am going to have a fine time. As soon as I get to hell, I will start a revolution there," the ousted clergyman said.

"I will get Ingersoll, Payne, Jefferson, Washington and all the college professors and editors who have gone before me, and I will start something. We will put out the fires and start trees growing and make a real place out of it."

'OSAGE HILL KING' TAKEN TO COURT

Oklahoma Rancher Seeks Release From Murder Charge On Technical Points.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—William K. Hale, millionaire "king of the Osage hills," made his first appearance in public here today since his indictment January 9 for one of the long series of alleged outrages through which the federal government charges a score of Oklahoma Indians were murdered for their millions.

The cattle man was brought from the Guthrie jail to join his co-defendant, John Ramsey, another Osage country rancher, in the Federal courtroom here where attorneys for both were seeking to gain a dismissal on technical grounds of the accusation that they murdered Henry Roan, full blood Osage, whose $25,000 life insurance policy was in Hale's favor.

United States Judge John H. Cotteral heard argument for three hours annd reserved decision until Monday.

Whippers Of A Florida Woman Being Sought

OCALA, Fla., Jan. 23. — (I. N. S.)—Police here tonight had no trace of the band of the masked women who today kidnaped a comely woman from her apartment and taking her about three miles into the country whipped her until she fell unconscious.

According to reports, the woman was accused of attempting to separate a man and his wife. Those who whipped her are thought to be friends of the "other woman."

After recovering consciousness, the victim dragged herself to the Dixie highway where a passing motorist brought her home.

Neighbors of the woman said she had five children, but the whereabouts of her own husband is not known. Both city and county authorities said they had no official report of the whipping.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

On View Here!

"Enclosed Car" Motor

Introduced at New York Show

Our showrooms are now devoted to a Special Nash Exhibit that practically duplicates the great New York Show display.

Here you may view personally the important new Nash developments—particularly the great new Nash "Enclosed Car" Motor.

In creating this new motor Nash deliberately disregarded general precedent which was accustomed to shape the capabilities of a motor to open car requirements.

On the contrary, Nash especially engineered this motor to provide the finest calibre of performance for the enclosed car.

In utter smoothness, in quietness and in phenomenal acceleration, this new "Enclosed Car" Motor clearly outdistances all that has gone before.

It creates an absolutely new standard of enclosed car performance that will prove a revelation to you—for it is surpassingly superior in every phase of operation.

There's a full 25% greater volume of symmetrically smooth power—power without a single "rough spot" thruout the entire range.

And the speed with which you accelerate is lightning-like—23% faster than formerly in going from any given rate to a higher rate.

Yet your travel-cost per gallon of fuel is held down to the old low level.

And so expertly is the motor designed and constructed that under average driving conditions you may drive it to a mileage high in the five-figure class without further thought except to change oil at the usual periods.

Figures Indicate Big Industry of Nebraska

Two sets of figures recently published shed new light on industry in Nebraska, the state which some people seem to think is only a "country of flat and rolling plains," so far as manufactures are concerned.

Both tables are supplied by a federal agent and so, as far as they go, are unprejudiced and reliable. Of the 2,000 or so industries in the state, 383 replied to questionaires concerning their capital, production, wages paid, and other items.

Just these 383 companies used material worth $180,699,986 and produced finished products worth $234,670,425 during one year. Their combined capital amounted to $88,321,918. They paid wages amounting to $25,516,523, and the employes numbered 16,692 men and 4,198 women, with an extremely small percentage of children —170 altogether.

Working hours ranged from as low as 6 hours to as high as 12 a day, but generally the average was 8 hours a day. Wages paid were as high as $14 and not infrequently more than $10 a day.

Included in the list of industries are agricultural machinery, automobile, beet sugar, bakeries, building materials, brooms, canneries, canvas goods, cooperage, carpets, furniture, concrete, clothing, caskets. That is but a small part of the dozens named, but is enough to show the great variety of the manufactures .

It is enough, also, to show that manufacturing on a large scale not only is possible in Nebraska but is being done. Those who claim otherwise cannot be aware of the situation, or possible have an ax or so to grind. Nebraska manufactures are thriving to be sure, but would be still better off if the people of the state were aware of its importance and of the advantage obtained in patronizing it.

For the prosperity of Nebraska, just like the prosperity of any region or nation, rests proportionately on all of the pursuits and industries within its borders.

RANDOLPH SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY

New Building at Thirty-seventh and D Streets to House 250 Pupils.

Location Permits Transfers So That No Child Goes Over Ten Blocks.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the new Randolph school at Thirty-seventh and D streets Monday morning, when the second semester of the 1925-26 term begins. Two hundred and fifty pupils will take up their school work in the new building at that time. The majority of them have been transferred from the old Randolph school, but many others are being transferred from the Elliott, Normal, Hawthorne and Prescott districts.

The heating and ventilation plants andequipment are complete and in good working order, Superintendent M. C. Leller said Saturday. Most of the school supplies and equipment are on hand and in place, though there will probably be some final arrangements and changes before everything is in permanent running order.

The old Randolph building will no longer be used. The equipment and supplies now in it will be transferred to the new building and others where it is needed. Although no definite action has been taken by the school board on final disposal of this property, it has been indicated that a decision will probably be made soon.

The opening of the new building will reduce considerably the distances many children in southeast and east Lincoln must go to reach school. The new Randolph district has been arranged, it is said, so that none will have more than ten blocks. This arrangement has resulted in eighty-three pupils from Elliott, fourteen from Normal, twenty-eight from Hawthorne, and nineteen from Prescott being transferred to the Randolph school. Specific instructions for such transfers have been given and little difficulty is anticipated.

Miss Maude Rousseau, who has been assistant principal at the Whittier school, will be principal of the new Randolph school.

COLLECTIONS FOR YEAR $2,351,024

Sommer Reports On State Agriculture Department's Receipts.

Nearly Two Million Dollars Of Sum Derived From Gasoline Tax.

Collections of fees, licenses, and miscellaneous receipts by the state agriculture department in 1925 reached the immense total of $2,351,024, as reported to State Auditor Marsh by C. A. Sommer, state accountant, after a detailed examination and audit of its accounts and records. Of this large sum, nearly $2,000,000 was gasoline tax collected during the last 9 months of the year. Other moneys taken in were turned into the general fund, but the department is authorized to spend its receipts, aside from gasoline tax, in carrying on its various activities.

Here are the sums respectively realized from the various sources, as checked by the state accountant:

Gasoline tax, $1,991,884; game and fish, $167,465; oil inspection, $107,011; weights and measures inspection, $21,991; dairy division, $18,058; hotel and rooming house licenses, $10,594; potato inspection, $6,952; bovine tuberculosis receipts, $4,932; commission house and cold storage fees, $630; seed inspection, $37; miscellaneous, $114,470.

The $630 of cold storage and commission house receipts went into the temporary school fund as provided by law. All other moneys go into the general found.

Small Discrepancy in Oil Fees.

Out of $61,924 of excess fees collected by the state for oil inspections under the old rate of 6c per barrel, 75 per cent was refunded to the various companies under decree of the district court in Douglas county, which found the fees to be ureasonably high. The state got back $15,481. Mr. Sommer says in his report that this was $125 less than its share of 25 per cent. He assumes that amount was paid as court costs, but there is nothing on file to show what became of the money. The state's side of the case was handled by W. C. Dorsey of Omaha.

The state accountant mildly criticises the agriculture department for paying part of the traveling expense of veterinarians testing cattle under the area plan for bovine tuberculosis. As he interprets the law this expense should all be borne by the counties where the work is done. Board and lodging, together with a few items of railroad fare, have been borne by the state. Only $6,968 has been charged to the counties as their share, and but $4,932 of this has been paid, leaving $2,036 due.

The state pays salaries of its veterinary inspectors. The state and the federal government together reimburse cattle owners for two-thirds the appraised value of each animal condemned.

Old Fees Unaccounted For.

Mr. Sommer found that $161 of fees was apparently collected by three former inspectors who served under the Bryan administration which fees were not deposited in the state treasury and are not recorded on the books of the agricultural department.

The present administration requires its inspectors to give bond for $500 each.

BARBOUR TELLS OF NEW MUSEUM

Lincoln Professional Men's Club Hear of Arrangements For Morrill Hall.

Elephant Hall And Other Rooms Will House Notable Fosil Collection.

Prof. E. H. Barbour, head of the department of geology at the University of Nebraska and curator of the university museum, spoke at a meeting of the Lincoln Professional Men's club at the Lincoln hotel on Saturday evening on "Morrill Hall and the Creatures to be Mounted in It." Morrill hall is to house the museum when the building is completed.

He illustrated his lecture with maps showing the position of the building on the university campus, at Fourteenth and U streets, and floor plans of the new building, showing in particular the hall of elephants, which is to be long, wide and have a vaulted ceiling 26 feet high.

Pictures of the various groups to be mounted were shown and plans for six mural paintings to be used as backgrounds to give an idea of the surroundings in which the animals lived, were shown. There will be 25 or 30 groups of fossils found in Nebraska, he said. Each important group was shown on the screen.

In the first groups to be mounted in the new museum attention will be directed particularly to those of this state, the fossil as well as the living.

The fossil collection at the University of Nebraska is one of the most complete in the world, and is frequently visited by noted paleontologists.

While the exterior of the building is to be very plain, the interior will be decorated, Dr. Barbour said.

The collections have been made possible by donations by C. H. Morrill, for whom the hall is named, Mr. Malben, and other smaller donors, Professor Barbour stated.

About thirty were present at the meeting.

Wade A. Wilson, present mayor and city attorney of College View, filed Saturday afternoon on the democratic ticket as a candidate for county attorney.

Mr. Wilson was an unsuccessful candidate for this same office four years ago and lost by a narrow margin. He came to Lincoln from the Black Hills country in 1908 to attend university here. He was graduated in 1915 from law school and took up the practice of law.

If elected he intends to request office room in the court house, and expects to conduct the work "in a business like manner."

Meiklejohn Soon, To Join The Staff Of Wisconsin U.

MADISON, Wies., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Formal announcement that Dr Alexander Meiklejohn, former president of Amherst college, had been added to the staff of Wisconsin university as president of the philosophy department was made here today by Pres. Glenn Frank.

Dr. Meiklejohn will occup one of the professorships made possible by the generosity of the later Thomas E. Brittingham and will assume his duties next semester, the announcement said.

Praise of Dr. Meiklejohn as "one of the great and gifted teachers of this generation" and a statement that "we expect from him productive scholarship and provocative teachings," made the announcement, was taken to indicate that the liberal views which resulted in his resignation from Amherst in 1923 would be given free rein at Wisconsin.

Dr. Meiklejohn is expected to play a big part in the proposed reorganization of conditions in the matter of contact between teachers and students at the university.

KIRKMAN DID NOT FILE FALSE WILL

Confusion of Identities Results In Wrong Statement in Star Saturday.

Confusion of identities involved in the long-protracted litigation over the John O'Connor estate at Hastings was responsible for an erroneous and regrettable statement appearing in The Star's account of the Nebraska supreme court decision holding against John F. Kirkman of Council Bluffs and all other private claimants of the property.

The facts are that Mr. Kirkman never presented any will alleged to have been made by O'Connor, he was never prosecuted for forgery, and no court in Nebraska ever adjudged him guilty of any improper conduct whatever in connection with the case. His claim was based entirely upon the theory that John O'Connor's real name was Kirkman and that John F. Kirkman was his son. Had this relationship been proven, the latter would have been entitled to inherit the estate.

The man who was prosecuted and convicted of forging a will, after the will itself had been thrown out as bogus, was James B. O'Connor of St. Joseph and Kansas City, who represented himself as a nephew of the decedent. The supreme court subsequently set aside the conviction.

This correction is volunteered by The Star in order to clear up any misapprehension concerning Mr. Kirkman's part in the O'Connor suit due to the inadvertent and unintentional mistake previously appearing in its columns.

Too Tired To Go Out Nights? Beware of Chronic Fatigue

Thousands of men and women think that it is because they work too hard that they are "all-in" every evening—too tired to go out to a show, or to play with their children—when in the great majority of cases the real cause of their weak, worn-out feeling is that they are victims of chronic fatigue.

Don't confuse chronic fatigue with the "healthy" fatigue you feel after vigorous exercise. Chronic fatigue comes from within. Your organs and muscles have become debilitated due to lack of sufficient organic iron in your blood.

To conquer chronic fatigue you must strengthen your system by restoring this organic iron to your blood. But don't take the older mineral iron medicines which many doctors now say do little good. Take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like that in spinach and lentils. Unlike ordinary mineral iron it will not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach, but is promptly assimilated.

TOO TIRED
to go to the movies

Take Nuxated Iron for just 2 weeks and you'll be astonished how that miserable, tired feeling vanishes, and you feel stronger and better in every way. Money back if not improved. At all good druggists.

EXPECT ARREST KILLING MYSTERY

Find Head Missing From Body Of Slain Anna May Dietrich, 34.

MEDIA, Pa., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—A torn piece of carpet, an automobile robe, a man's suit of clothes and a pair of women's gloves, all blood-stained — these clues tonight furnished the basis for optimistic police predictions that the brutal murederer of Miss Anna May Dietrich, 34, whose dissected body was found near here Thursday, would be arrested before the week end was over.

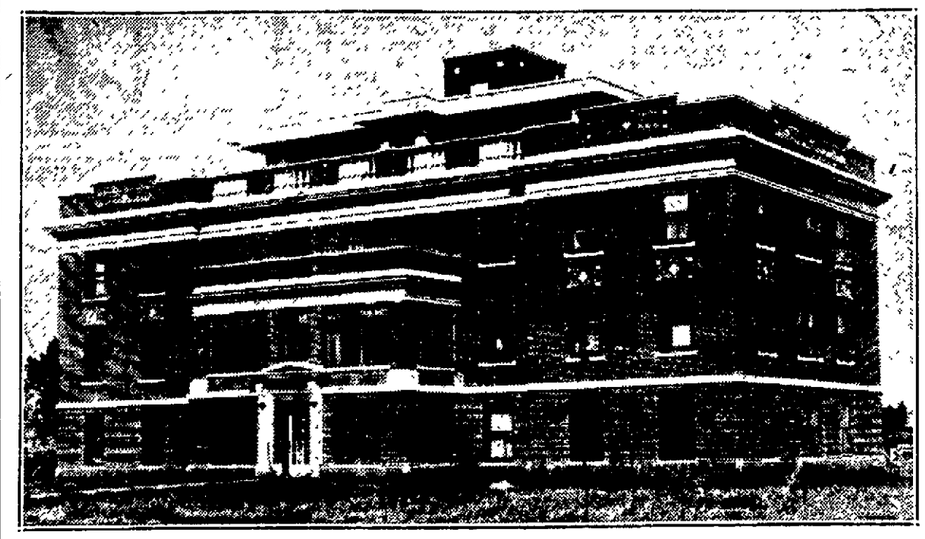

All but the torn carpet was found in an overturned automobile discovered on the Westchester turnpike,, not far from Malvern, Pa. The bloody piece of carpet was found by police late this afternoon 150 feet from the spot where the girl's head was discovered in a clump of bushes near a creek under a small railroad bridge.

The head, wrapped in a Philadelphia newspaper dated December 21, 1923, was unmarked and like the the legs had been severed from the body with the expert dissectional touch of a professional surgeon.

The girl's head had been jammed among the trestle supports of the railroad bridge. There were no marks on it to indicate how she had met death and an analysis of the vital organs by the county physician failed to throw any light on the means employed for murder.

Except for the actual dismemberment of the body, no signs indicating violence were found.

Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters Of Nebraska Are Proud of Their New State Home Which Is Located At Columbus

Lincoln Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters, as well as members of these orders throughout the state, are highly elated at the success of their committees in purchasing the Evans hospital property at Columbus for use as a home for orphans and aged members of the allied orders. At the last meeting of the grand lodges each appointed a committee to act jointly in securing a property for home purposes, such a project having been in the minds of officers and members for a number of years.

The committee learned that the Columbus hospital property was about to be sold under foreclosure and after making a thorough examination and investigation, submitted a bid of $37,000, which was approved by the court and the realty became the property of the grand lodges

Members are confident that a real bargain was obtained.

The building is located in the northwest part of the residence portion in the city of Columbus, on one block of ground. It is sixty by one hundred feet, four stories and basement, with a two story addition on the rear about thirty by fifty, consisting of a laundry, garage and heating plant. The building was constructed in 1921, is of solid reinforced concrete, fire proof throughout, finished with beautiful oak bark brick, and trimmed with terra cotta and cut stone, and is equipped with electric elevator and the most modern telephone and water and steam heating system There is also a seven room, modern dwelling on the premises, built for a nurses' home The cost of the property, without equipment, was $167,000.

It is stated that the only alterations necessary to make the place a real home will be the removal of a few partitions, which will not effect the building in the least, which work can be done at a very small cost.

The people who are now operating the building as a hospital will continue to do so until the purchasers are ready to take it over, which it is thought will be in the near future. It is expected that it will accommodate not less than one hundred members.

WOULD DISSOLVE POLITICAL PARTY

Progressive State Chairman Wants Candidates to Enter G. O. P. Lists.

Secretary Pool Knows Of No Means to Close Old Organization.

Can the state committee officers of a political party in Nebraska put an end to its existence by their personal fiat, or by going through any kind of legal formality? Can aspirants for nomination on its ticket be prevented from filing and being voted for in the primaries, under its party title?

These questions are raised by the announcement of J. M. Paul, state chairman of the progressive party, that he is taking steps to have that organization dissolved. He has written to Secretary of State Pool asking how to proceed in bringing about that object. Pool finds no specific provision of law permitting this to be done

No matter if the whole state committee of the progressive party were in favor of chloroforming it, there appears to be no way whereby candidates who desired to file on its ticket could be stopped from doing so. The secretary of state is required by statute to accept filings made in the legal manner, and certify them out to county clerks As the progressive party polled more than 5 per cent of the vote at the last state election, it is entitled to a separate ballot in the primaries next August, and candidates nominated on its ticket are entitled to have their names printed under that designation on the November election ballot.

The date for holding official party conventions is fixed by law, several weeks after the primaries. No gathering that might be called for a prior date would have authority to disband the party and call off its primary.

If the progressive party should fail to muster 5 per cent of the state's total voting strength in the next general election, it would automatically pass out of existence.

Chairman Paul's announced purpose is to have third party progressives enter the republican state primary and try to control its nominations. This is the same course advocated by C A. Sorenson of Lincoln, who supported LaFollette two years ago but refused to join the third party.

The LaFollette independent party, a separate organization, is still in the field, and according to its state chairman, Otto Mutz, it intends to place a ticket before the voters this year.

Hall In Favor Of Cummins Measure To Join Railways

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—The Cummins railroad consolidation bill can be amended to provide a solution for America's railroad problem, Henry C. Hall, member of the interstate commerce commission, told the senate interstate commerce committee today.

Hall said the bill was fundamentally sound because it opened wide the whole field of consolidation in its plan to unite all railroads into a few great systems.

His recommendations sharply conflicted with those of Joseph B. Eastman, chairman of the commission, who told the committee the bill would be a failure.

Flight Of Years Shrinks Coal To Less Than Quarter

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb, Jan. 23.— A chunk of coal weighing 3400 pounds 34 years ago, placed at that time in front of an office in Park avenue for advertising purposes, when removed today, weighed but 800 pounds. Its shrinking was attributed purely to the "sands of time." It had been a conspicuous landmark for all these years. It was ordered removed from the sidewalk after a blind man had sustained slight injuries by falling over it.

Engineers Kept Busy Whistling For Crossroads

(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Jan. 23.—In an effort to create more safe traveling conditions, the Burlington railroad officials recently had double whistling posts erected at each grade crossing, and issued an order that the whistle should be blown eight times at each crossing, the blasts being seven seconds each. This new order will be hard to obey by engineers running between Alliance and Seneca, as it requires pulling the whistle cord 12,000 times in that distance, leaving but little time for looking after the engine. There are approximately 1,500 whistling posts between the two towns, and the trip is made in seven hours by fast trains.

Studebaker Standard Six
Sedan Now $1295
freight and war tax extra

—can be sold at its new low price because—it is built on the famous One-Profit basis

—will give thousands of extra miles because—Unit-Built construction fits every part to every other part

THE Studebaker Standard Six Sedans as well as the Big Six Sedans were reduced in price $100 on January 14th.

This is the third Studebaker price reduction since January 1, 1925. It is the result of economies incident to the production of 136,000 Studebakers in the past year, an increase of 23% over 1924.

Only by riding in it can you appreciate how far this Standard Six Sedan excels cars priced hundreds of dollars higher.

After you have experienced the thrill of its smooth, effortless power—viewed the fine-car luxury of its interior and marveled at its remarkably low price—remember—this fine Sedan is possible at the price only because Studebaker has concentrated on the economical production of quality cars more than one hundred million dollars in net assets.

Studebaker's unique facilities

Few motor car "manufacturers" have foundries, forges, etc., to make their own engines —yet one-fifth of an automobile's cost is in the engine. Even fewer build their own bodies —yet one-third of a car's cost is in the body.

Studebaker builds all its own bodies, all engines, all clutches, gear sets, springs, differentials, steering gears, brakes, axles, gray-iron castings and drop forgings. Only Ford in the low-price field and Studebaker in the fine-car field have such complete manufacturing facilities.

One-Profit value

These facilities enable Studebaker to manufacture quality cars on a One-Profit basis—eliminating outside profits. The savings thus effected are passed on to Studebaker owners in the form of higher quality and lower prices.

Unit-Built construction

Studebaker facilities result, too, in cars designed, engineered and built as units. The hundreds of parts in a Studebaker function as a smooth-working unit, resulting in scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation, greater riding comfort and higher resale value.

Always kept up-to-date

Direct manufacturing control enables Studebaker to keep cars constantly up-to-date. We add improvements regardless of the calendar —we do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete. Resale values are thus stabilized.

Rock bottom time-payment rates

Leading bankers, recognizing Studebaker stability, have made money available for financing Studebaker cars at low interest. They know Unit-Built cars, bought at One-Profit prices and protected from depreciation by being always kept up-to-date are exceptionally fine risks. Therefore, no car in the world is able to offer lower time-payment rates than Studebaker.

World's Most Powerful Car of its Size and Weight

Studebaker's lowest priced Sedan—but all quality

THE fine Studebaker Standard Six Sedan illustrated below is a real four-door Sedan. It is upholstered in genuine wool cloth. Carpets are wool. Windows are real plate glass

The equipment includes an 8-day clock, gasoline gauge, ash receiver, rear-vision mirror, stop light, dome light, safety lighting control on steering wheel, automatic windshield cleaner, coincidental lock to steering gear and ignition, and full-size balloon tires.

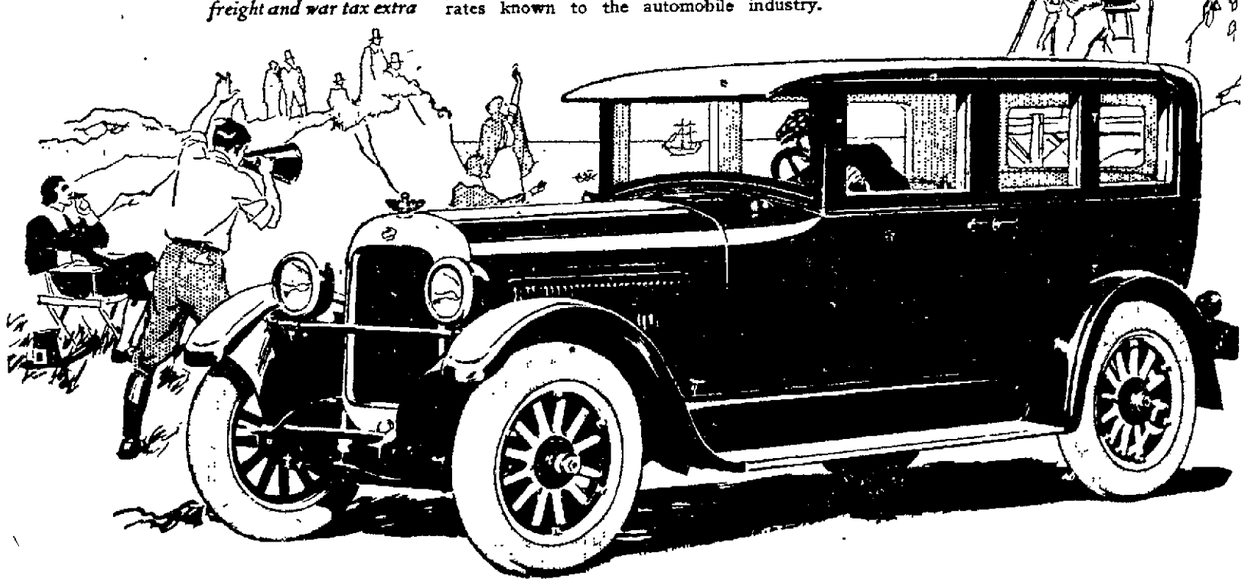

But the most important superiorities of this Sedan are concealed within the framework of the body and in the chassis.

Body pillars are of northern white ash, cross-members of hard maple. We pay a premium for steels of extra toughness

Run the engine—the most powerful in any car of its size and weight, according to the rating of the N. A. C. C. and the Society of Automotive Engineers. The motor is not built for excessive speed, but rather for smooth, trouble-free service at 5 to 55 miles an hour. It is built for a long, quiet life—not for spectacular stunts.

Come in—test its performance—power—comfort; then realize that you can buy it out of income for the lowest price Studebaker ever placed on a Sedan, at the lowest time-payment rates known to the automobile industry.

Under Studebaker's fair and liberal Budget Payment Plan, this Sedan may be purchased out of monthly income for a small initial payment and at the lowest time-payment rates known to the automobile industry.

Husker Cagesters Still Going at Winning Gait

AMES AGS TAKE NEBRASKA DUST

Tossers From Iowa State College Bow To Cornhuskers, 18 to 13, In Clash at Uni. Armory.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

The University of Nebraska basketball team kept its slate clear of defeats in the Missouri Valley conference race Saturday night when the Cornhuskers trounced Iowa State college in a one-sided contest, 18 to 13.

A capacity crowd packed the university armory to witness the Cornhuskers triumph in what will probably be the last game played on the armory court. The new university fieldhouse is scheduled for dedication when the Kansas Jayhawkers invade Lincoln for the next home tilt, Feb. 6.

Aggies Outclassed.

Coach Ernest E. Bearg's Nebraska quintet outclassed the Ames Aggies by a liberal margin in all departments of the Saturday night exhibition. The Cornhusker defense smothered what little Ames had to offer in the way of a scoring threat while the Nebraska tossers gathered a 11-6 lead during the first half and increased this advantage early in the second period to coast in at the finish without being seriously threatened.

Short Pass Failed.

Coach Chandler's Ames outfit pinned its faith on a display of the short-pass system of basketball and the Huskers met the Iowa invaders with an airtight man-for-man defense which forced the Ames crew to do most of its exchanging well up the court.

Late in the first half Ames devoted its entire attention to scoring from mid-court and Forward Kling made good two efforts. In the final chukker, the Iowans hoisted the distress signal and brought their guards up for the basketwork, Grimes and Arnold being successful in scoring from the floor late in the game.

Lawson Stopped Ames Ace.

Caliber of the defense exhibited by the Cornhusker five is shown by the fact that Earl Elliott, second high point man in Valley scoring and the ace of the Ames team, failed to register a basket during the entire game. The Nebraska team in general and Vint Lawson in particular kept a watchful eye over the sandy-haired tosser.

Clark Smaha, Tom Elliott and "Jug" Brown did the bulk of the scoring for the Cornhuskers. Smaha contributed three baskets, two at long range and one from the side. Brown "englished" two in from a wide angle and Elliott scored on a nice follow-in shot. Ekstrom slipped past the Ames defense and scored from beneath the hoop for the other Cornhusker goal.

New Nebraska Lineup.

Coach Bearg started the game with a new combination. Smaha and Andreson, juniors, opening at

LINCOLN GRASPS ANOTHER VICTORY

Red and Black Basketeers Take Measure of Grand Island High.

Capital City Squad Always Making Pace and Result Never In Doubt.

BY "JIM" RAMSEY.

The unbeaten Lincoln high basket tossers last night added another counter to their long list of victories and, consequently, the Grand Island quintet were forced to take a defeat when the Red and Black cagers grasped the winning end of a 21 to 10 score from Coach Pierce's hoopsters on the Whittier court.

A spectacular one-handed toss by Sawyer, Lincoln forward, gave the capital city squad first blood and a lead that the visitors failed to overcome during the skirmish, although a basket by Morris tied the count at 2-all.

The Lincoln reserves neatly outscored the Crete reserves in the curtain-raiser, 23 to 7.

Sawyer, with three field baskets and a gift shot, was high point man with seven counters and Witte and Fisher were next in line, each scoring twice from the floor and caging a free throw. Baskets by Karnes and Morrison, completed the Lincoln total.

Morris, with four points to his credit, took high score honors for the visitors, while Conner was second in line, scoring three gift

LINCOLN STEPS OUT THIS WEEK

Capital City Tossers Play Two Games With St. Joseph Central.

Tech and Creighton Prep On Book to Coolide In Friday Fray.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Lincoln high school basketeers, having won three games in as many days of basketball competition last week and thus keeping the Red and Black slate clear of defeat, will step out of the Nebraska race for a brief interval this week to engage St. Joseph, Mo., cagesters in a double-barreled program at the Whittier court Friday and Saturday this week.

The Creighton Prep-Tech game, scheduled for Friday night, will be a headline attraction in metropolitan circles. Both are undefeated in the Omaha titula. race and the contest is expected to be a warm one.

Skelly Strengthens Tech.

Return of Skelly, former Creighton Prep center, strengthened Tech during the past week and the bookkeepers promise to be in line for a bid at another cage title this season. Central and South will meet in another interesting batle.

Important out-state games include a road trip by Crete to Hastings and Holdrege courts, Beatrice's pair of games with Nebraska City and Columbus, the Fremont-Norfolk tangle at the Dodge county seat and the Albion-St. Edward argument.

Albion Team on Road.

Albion, with a record of four victories in five starts, will receive a good test this week in a three-game program which includes, in addition to the St. Edward game, contests with Newman Grove and the Genoa Indians.

NORFOLK LONGS FOR STATE LOOP

Northern Nebraska Town Is Keen For Reorganization Of Ball League.

NORFOLK, Neb., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Norfolk baseball fans tonight were bringing pressure to bear upon the local chamber of commerce with the view of inducing the civic organization to take favorable steps toward the creation of a state baseball league this year and to insure Norfolk's membership in such a league if tentative plans for its formation are successful.

Local business men are reported willing to subscribe to the baseball fund and later a committee will be appointed to met with representatives of other towns interested in the formation of a league.

Norfolk has one of the finest municipal baseball grounds in the state.

Introducing New Prexy.

DALE DARWIN GEAR.

Step up, fans, and get acquainted with Dale Gear, new president of the Western league. Dale was elected to the presidency during the recent league meeting in Los Angeles. Scanning him from every angle—his record in organized ball, his integrity and business ability—Dale looks like he was made for the job. He has been player, club manager, club owner and league president during his thirty-five years of close touch with baseball and if Dale doesn't know the game and its problems then it would be useless to look farther.

The new league prexy will not be a stranger in Lincoln. He came here regularly as manager of the Topeka club during the Western league seasons of 1912, '13 and '14, making a lot of friends in Nebraska's capital city who are pleased to welcome him back to the fold.

After the 1914 campaign, Dale dropped out of the game and devoted himself to the milling business in his home town, Topeka. But the pull of baseball lured him back a few years ago and he has been presidenting in the Southwestern league, which position he will retain while directing the helm of the Western ship.

President Gear planned originally to take up the practice of law and prepared himself for the legal profession at University of Kansas, where he took his degree. About that time, Dale attained fame as a major league pitcher and drifted completely away from the notion of practicing law.

Perhaps that was just as well. The public has a plentitude of lawyers and very few high-grade men of the Gear type for the job of league presidenting, so the Western league, it would seem, is in line for congratulations on the good sense of its club owners in electing Dale as high mogul of the organization.

DIAMOND TALENT BUSILY ON MOVE

Western and Texas Leagues Complete Many Deals In Shifting Players.

Fifteen Men From Gear Loop to Perform This Year In Southern Circuit.

The annual trades between the South, Texas and Western league clubs will bring six Texans to the Western and send fifteen men who pastimed in the Western last year to teams in the two southern circuits. Most of this swapping was done at the minor leagues convention at Catalina Island recently, only a few deals being negotiated prior to that time.

One of the most important changes is that of Joe Mathes, who led Des Moines to the Western league pennant in 1925. He has signed to manage Houston of the Texas league. Mathes was formerly manager of the St. Joseph club nad has completed deals whereby Pitchers Davenport and Haid and Outfielder Nick DeMaggio of the Saints become Houston Buffaloes this season. Mathes also obtained Pitcher Ken Penner of Wichita, one of the best in the league last year and also adept with the bat.

The Western - Texas - Southern deals are:

Robinson to Beaumont.

OMAHA—Sale of Outfielder Joe Robinson to Beaumont; trade of Shortstop Tony DeFate to Wichita Falls for Pitcher Ira Morgan and Second Baseman Al J. White; farming of Roy Luebbe, Omaha catcher last year, to Atlanta by the New York Americans; sale of Catcher Fred J. Wilder to Shreveport, La.; purchase of Outfielder Maury Schick from Shreveport.

DES MOINES—Release of Manager Joe Mathes who signed with Houston; sale of Catcher Edwin

HOLMAN BEST OF TENNIS ROOKIES

San Francisco Youth Rated As Coming Bill Tilden In Racquet Sport.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Cranston Holman of San Francisco, a young man generally acclaimed as the most plausible Bill Tilden of the immediate future, was accorded the place of honor at the top of the national junior lawn tennis rankings, made public tonight by the United States Lawn Tennis association.

The ranking committee could do no less in view of the fact that it had placed Holman at No. 7 in the senior list, only a stride away from Tilden, Johnston, Richards, and Williams, the head-liners.

Honor Without Argument.

The honor belonged to Holman without argument. Since he first came to national notice in 1923 in winning the municipal title at St. Louis, his rise to eminence had been nothing short of sensational, the municipal doubles title coming his way in 1924, partnered with Frank Ragan, while in 1925 he reached the inter-collegiate final in singles and the semi-final in doubles.

Another westerner, Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines, got the No. 4 ranking, with Henry J. Johnson, Waban, Mass., and A. L. Weiner Tilden's fair-haired boy, running No. 3 and No. 4, respectively.

East Outscores West.

In the first twenty awards, the east slightly outscored the west by ten places to eight, with the remaining two going to the south, Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., and Gustave Feuer, Miami, Fla., being ranged No. 5 and No. 13, respectively.

The No. 1 position in the boy's division went to Frank Shields, New York, followed in order by Walter Thomas, Elmore, N. J.; Junior Coen, aKnsas City, and eLroy K. Voorhies, Cincinnati.

Shields also got top ranking in boy's doubles with Walter Thomas as his partner.

In the junior doubles, the Waban, Mass., pair, H. L. Johnson and M. T. Hill, were rated at the top, followed by Holman and E. J. Pare, Chicago; Coggeshall and H. Barton, Sioux Falls, and the Texans, B. Bell and J. Quick.

Miss Wills entered the final round and became a favorite in the gentlemen's betting, when she defeated Mlle. Henrietta Cantoslavos, a Greek player, and Mlle. Vlasto also survived the semi-finals, with a victory over Miss Cadle, an English player.

REVIVAL OF OLYMPICS.

Tomorrow's match will be a revival of the final round of the Olympic championship in Colombes in 1924, when the American girl won an easy victory from Mlle. Vlasto, who was France's big hope after Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen had been forced by illness to retire from the French team.

American and British fashionables among the tourists here offered odds of eight to five that Miss Wills would win the final round and there were few takers. French critics insisted that Mlle. Vlasto would give the popular California girl the fight of her life, reasoning that she had improved tremendously since the Olympic matches, but the Americans were of the opinion that Miss Wills had improved even more since she won the Olympic championship.

MAKES NO PREDICTIONS.

Living up to all the nice things that have been said and printed about her since she arrived, Miss Wills was not willing to make any predictions about the match tomorrow.

"Having played Mlle. Vlasto once before, I know she is a very skilled player," she said. "The only comment I might make is that I will endeavor to play my very best game."

HER SERVICE IMPROVES.

Miss Wills' service appeared greatly improved today after a week of hard tournament play. After watching her brilliant volleying in her match with Miss Cantoslavos, experts on the Riviera were applauding her enthusiastically and are convinced that she can conquer all but Suzanne Lenglen, whom she meets soon.

In the first set, Miss Wills won 37 points and lost 31, in the second she won 37 points and lost 30.

OPPONENT EXHAUSTED.

The California star finished fresh in contrast with her opponent, who was breathing heavily and appeared very tired. She is enjoying her vacation abroad and is spending considerable time in company with young Count St. Maurice and Lord Cholmondeley.

Bruggon and Borotra, French tennis experts, are expected to sail for New York via Paris February 3, intending to participate in the indoor championship tournament.

PRAISED BY SUZANNE.

CANNES, France, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Suzanne Lenglen is tonight counted among the admirers of Helen Wills, American tennis star who has come to France to attempt to wrest the world tennis honors from Suzanne.

Suzanne was one of the first to rush up and congratulate Miss Wills today when she became a finalist in the Metropole invitation today by defeating Mlle Contosta-

Dope Favors French Girl, Yet Helen May Be Winner

BY VINCENT RICHARDS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Psychology, which has decided the outcome of many great racquet battles, is likely to play a most important part in the coming meeting in France between Suzanne Lenglen, European tennis champion, ad Helen Wills, the American title holder. In the matter of pure tennis skill "on paper," as baseball experts express it in discussing the chances of competing teams—I feel that the French star has more than a trifle of an edge on the California school girl.

Suzanne has not lost a match to a woman player in several years. When she loses even a set in a match it is a matter of comment. Against the English players at Wimbledon last year, the same who defeated our best in the international women's matches at Forest Hills, the French player had no real opposition.

SELDOM HARD PRESSED.

Kathleen McKane, who gave Miss Wills two hard court battles last year, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, who defeated the American champion at the Seabright invitation tournament and who is ranked No. 2 in the American women's list, have seldom extended Suzanne.

When you compare the technique of Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen, the advantage rests with the European, if for no other reason than her greater experience and her superior strategy, which is the result of her longer experience.

Suzanne has a baffling, subtle change of pace that the American champion has not yet mastered. The lack of an effective change of pace is one of the reasons for "Little Bill" Johnston's annual defeats by William T. Tilden, the national champion.

CLEVERLY CONCEALED.

A change of pace is not a mere shift from a hard driving game to a lobbing attack, or an advance from backcourt to a net position, but is a change in the power of stroking so concealed that your opponent is forced into errors because he does not change his game to meet it.

I do not mean that Miss Wills does not possess an effective change of pace. But the finesse of Suzanne in this respect is unequalled among women players. In accuracy—driving, lobbing 'or smashing them where you want them to go—the French girl is supreme among her sex.

HELEN POWERFUL DRIVER.

Miss Wills holds an apparent advantage through her more powerful driving game, but it is not marked. While Suzanne's habitual game is softer than the American champion's, that is because she is crafty and is not so often called on to win points by power alone. When she needs to smash, she can put as much power behind her strokes as most men players.

"On paper," there is no doubt Suzanne is superior to Helen. She has consistenly beaten with ease players who have extended the American champion. Still I shall not be surprised if Miss Wills is the winner when the pair meets on the Riviera. It looks to be an even match for several reasons.

SMASHER ON HARD COURT.

In the first place, Miss Wills is probably 15 per cent more effective on a hard court, such as she will find in France. She was developed on the clay and cement courts of California and is really a far better player that the east has seen on the grass courts at Forest Hills and Germantown.

The clay court calls for a high-bounce ball and at such a smashing game Helen is deadly. At Wimbledon, where the grass courts are damp and soft, I believe our champion would have difficulty in reaching the final round, but on the Riviera she may prove to be the world's greatest woman player.

"LITTLE POKER FACE."

But the most important factor in the Wills-Lenglen match, I believe, will be the mental and nervous reactions of the rivals. I look for Miss Wills' inscrutable "poker face" to count just as heavily as her terrific driving. I expect her calm,

Tigers and Kansas Ags Frame 4-Year Contract

Missouri Makes Amends for Failure to Date Football Game In 1926 by Entering Into Long-Term Agreement With Manhattan Farmers; "Big Three" Adopts Plan That Is "Old Stuff" in the Valley.

BY C. E. McBRIDE.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 23—The recent signing of a 4-year contract between the University of Missouri and the Kansas State Agricultural college promoting four successive football games between the Tigers and the Aggies seems to have solved the rather difficult schedule problem that faced these two conference members.

Missouri and the Kansas Aggies were scheduled to meet in a football game at Columbia in the fall of 1926. It was the wind-up of a 2-year agreement. But Missouri disliked the idea of making two trips into Kansas each year and also preferred to have one game, with a Kansas opponent in Columbia each season. Last year Missouri played at Lawrence and at Manhattan.

Then, too, Missouri is building a new stadium and undoubtedly interscectional games with a big guarantee are douh'y attractive to the Missouri management. So it came about, according to an authoritative source of information, that when Missouri was offered a game with West Virginia, a fat guarantee included, Columbia authorities conferred with Aggie athletic department members or at least one member in regard to postponing the 1926 Missouri-Aggie game a year.

Tigers Booked West Virginia.

With the understanding that such an arrangement would be acceptab'e, Missouri scheduled the West Virginia game, according to our source of information. But it seems that Mike Ahearn, athletic director at K. S. A. C., was not in attendance at the St. Louis meeting of Valley directors and coaches. Mike was attending the big athletic sessions in New York. When he returned to Manhattan and learned of the abandonment of the contracted 1926 game with Missouri he was disappointed and when that disappointment was expressed to the Missouri authorities a meeting between Director Brewer of Missouri and Mr. Ahearn was arranged in Kansas City.

Missouri then had gone so far in the scheduling of the West Virginia game that there was no place for the Aggies on the Tiger schedule. As a result of the unfortunate mixup, Missouri and the Aggies signed a contract calling for four games, a redical departure in the making of Valley football contracts, as far as this writer has been able to learn.

Missouri Makes Attonement.

Undoubtedly Missouri wished to make some atonement for its inability to carry out its contracted game with the Aggies next fall. The 4-year contract may be taken as proof of that. Also as proof of

Baseball Fires Kept Burning By 5 Valley Schools

LAWRENCE, Kas., Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—The University of Kansas will continue to develop baseball teams just as long as there are a sufficient number of teams in the Missouri Valley conference to offer competition," Dr. Forest C. Allen, athletic director, said today.

Although several of the northern schools in the conference have dropped baseball from their athletic departments, Dr. Allen believes that the diamond sport will continue as a university sport in the Valley, with Kansas, Missouri, Kansas Aggies, Oklahoma and the Oklahoma Aggies comprising the schools that will maintain the national pastime as an intercollegiate sport.

PERU, Neb., Jan. 23. — The M-I-N-K basketball tournament to be held at Peru Normal, Feb. 19 and 20 was assured of being a four-state tourney when seven acceptances rolled into tourney headquarters.

ST. PAUL, Neb., Jan. 23. — St. Paul high school chalked up another victory last night, defeating Scotia by a 24-9 margin.

Stuart Sportsmen Step in Line With Ike Walton Loop

STUART, Neb., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—A drive to enroll members for a proposed local chapter of the Izaak Walton league, a national organization of "amateur" fishermen, will be launched as soon as application blanks are received from state headquarters it was learned here tonight.

Signatures for the proposed chapter will be obtained among the members of the Stuart Gun club and other sportsmen. There are over 100 members in the local gun club.

The desire not only to become associated with a state-wide organization such as the Izaak Walton league, but also to assist in the work of fish conservation and propagation by the league sponsors, is said to have prompted the movement to create a local chapter.

Added incentive to the drive is the announcement that the state game authorities will sink a flowing well at Dora lake, near here.

Champion Vaulter in U. S. A.

Charles Hoff of Norway, world's champion pole vaulter and all-around athlete, has arrived in America to compete in several indoor track meets this winter, making his first appearance at the Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden, February 4.

Foresees 'Young' Stribling as Next Heavy Champ

BOOSTS KID FOR WHIRL AT TITLE

Menke Suggests Young Stribling, Georgia Boy, as Worthy Opponent For Dempsey In Battle for Crown.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

Amid all this tumult and shouting about "who's gonna whip Jack Dempsey?" a thought comes:

"What about William Stribling of Atlanta, Ga.?"

In all the feverish anxiety to uncover somebody who might be able to dethrone the king of fisitc kings, a sort of shroud has been draped around the man who is perhaps destined to do what Willard, Miske, Carpentier, Brennan, Firpo, and Gibbons couldn't do—and what Wills and Tunney probably can't do.

And that individual is Young Stribling.

WHAT DEMPSEY SAYS.

Dempsey often has said:

"The man who'll whip me will have a faster left hand than I have; will be faster afoot—and have the edge on me in cleverness. For I don't think I'll go down to defeat on the floor."

That lets Stribling in.

The public has taken this viewpoint:

"Dempsey will be beaten by a harder puncher."

That lets Stribling out—unless you pause and juggle with the question:

"How hard can Stribling hit?"

HAD TO MAKE PROMISES.

Nobody knows. For the earlier suspicion has developed almost into a conviction that in practically all his fights in the last year or so, Stribling had to promise NOT to knock out his foeman before the brawl began.

It is a curious fact that Stribling has often knocked out really tough men—and yet scored no knockouts against battlers seemingly mediocre. And it is also to be noted that on those infrequent occasions when Stribling really tore into his man with both fists operating in serious fashion, the other man eventually hit the floor and stayed there.

BUSY RING PERFORMER.

Stribling has fought oftener in the last 18 months than any lightheavy in the game. His knockouts were few. Yet in most of his battles he merely toyed with his man—and seemed able to attach a sleep producing belt if he so desired. But, times without number, when his man was sagging and nearly out, Stribling would become exhausted or "Stribling's punches suddenly began to lack steam"—or some similar funny little thing happened to one of the most desirable humans the prize ring ever knew.

Can it be other than that Stribling, to keep active and continue at his chosen trade, had to do what so many ringmen have had to do before him—promise to let his opponent stay the limit?

DIXIE YOUTH HAS GOODS.

Stribling has a punch—stuffer by far than he has shown on those rare occasions when he has gone ripping and tearing into his man for the purpose of shortening up the evening's entertainment. How good it is remains a matter of conjecture It probably isn't as stout as Dempsey's. But it's probably as good as Paul Berlenbach's and Gene Tunney's—and that's plenty good enough when all of Stribling's other attributes are tossed into the crucible.

Stribling has youth—an abundance of it.

Stribling has speed of hands and speed of legs.

Stribling has the born fighter's instinct.

GREAT PAIR OF HANDS.

Stribling has two great fighting hands—the kind that are impervious to hurt.

Stribling is an accurate hitter.

And, beyond all else, he has amazing strength. He spent his earliest years doing acrobatics. And in all the years since then he has developed his muscles to a point where he is almost a superman in the matter of power. Again and again, in clinches with men bigger and heavier than himself, he has simply toyed with them.

MARVEL FOR ENDURANCE.

Stribling has marvelous endurance.

He has stamina such as few men in all ringdom have ever shown.

Stribling has a keen fighting brain.

No man ever questioned his courage. In his matchmaking and in his fights he has proven fearless.

And he has a chin of concrete and a body of oak. Terrific sluggers have taken him on, pierced his guard, landed with all the concentrated strength that hard hitters can put into blows. And they never halted him in his prancing and his dancing and his attacking.

PLENTY OF EXPERIENCE.

Stribling, although just beyond 21, has had enough experience in the number of fights and fighting years to qualify him for a championship duel.

It's customary to regard Stribling as a heavy middleweight. Yet within the last year he has been packing on solid poundage until today he beams around 189—and is still perking up in the weight department.

WHAT ABOUT THIS ONE?

Dempsey, in fighting condition, only weighs about 12 pounds more than Stribling of today, and he may not weigh as much as Stribling a year from now.

So why not—in the fading days of 1926 or the summer ones of 1927:

"Jack Dempsey vs. William "Young" Stribling for the heavyweight championship of the world?"

Three Golfers In Tie For Lead In Dallas Tourney

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago, MacDonald Smith of New York and Bobbie Cruickshank of Chicago were tied for first honors at the end of the second round in the Dallas open championship golf play at Cedar Crest country club today.

Each made the first 36 holes in 153 strokes, which was considered good, in view of the frosty condition of the course and atmosphere.

Willie Hunter, Los Angeles, and Edwin Jueleg, San Antonio, Texas, were tied for second place with 154. Harry Cooper, Dallas, and Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist, had 155 each for third place.

Valparaiso High Wins Close Game

'CARDS' PERK UP; IN RACE FOR RAG

Hornsby's Outfit Is Rated As Contender In Chase For N. L. Bunting.

Scouts Pick Off Wealth Of Promising Recruits In Minor Leagues.

Rogers Hornsby and his Cardinals finished eighteen games back of the titled Pirates last season for fourth place in the National league race. As hitters, they were only eight points back of the Buccos, and the Cards were only two points from the top in fielding.

After mulling over these figures during the winter, the Card pilot has come to the conclusion that he isn't far from the flag which St. Louis has waited for these many years, or ever since Charley Comiskey showed the world how to play first base while Chris von der Ahe was counting the nickles at the gate.

Scouts Did Their Stuff.

The robust Rogers knew there were certain things lacking in his team last season. The scouts were told about it and after months of tinkering he believes that the holes have been plugged up. Possibly he will find that the short field is still porous, but outside of that he and his scouts have done pretty well.

One of the valuable assets added to the club is Dan Clark, premier slugger of the Texas league. Dan played second and third, mostly the latter for San Antonio. He finished with a batting average of .399 in which were concealed 50 two-baggers, seven triples and 31 homeruns. He also showed some speed, stealing 29 bases.

Peel and Douthit.

Homer Peel of Houston, with a hitting percentage of .355, is another addition, but as a fly-chaser Homer is not the speediest .Firman Warwick of San Antonio should be of some use as a catcher. Firman is a .300 hitter, or was in the minors. He should bolster up the rather weak catching department.

When the Cards pulled back Taylor Douthit from Milwaukee, they obtained another clouter of worth, Taylor being one of the real sockers in the American association. He chase flies for a living and does pretty well at it. From this it can be seen that there are several hitters in the making.

Plenty of Pitchers.

No team ever won a pennant with out a pitching staff. The Cards, having a fairly good mound outfit, didn't have to comb the bushes with as much industry as other teams, but they have a fair selection. Edgar Clough and Guilford Paulson were obtained from the Fort Smith club of the Western association. Bill Hallahan was yanked back from Syracuse and Russell Miller was bought from the same club.. Joh nStuart was returned to the Cards from the Brewers. Vic Keen was obtained on waivers from the Chicago Cubs and Walter Huntsinger came to St. Louis via the same route, the Giants having no further use for the right hander. Herman Bell, with Milwaukee last season, will get another trial with the Cards.

Although Clark is the headliner among the infielders, D'Arcy Flowers, shortstop obtained from Oakland, may add his mite to the defense. Then there are R. Bivens, Harry Bracken and John Martin, who hope to be shortstops.

Hurler from Coast Country.

Walter Roettger, a fly-chaser, was bought from Syracuse, but he will have to go some to beat out either Douthit or Peel. Whether Sylvester Johnson of Vernon, who pitched for the Tigers will be retained is problematical. He didn't look so strong on the coast, but he pitched for a bad ball club.

Among the eighteen newcomers, either pulled back or discovered, there, however, enough of more than the ordinary class, and if two or three should make the grade the more fancy outfits in the league may get a run for their money.

Sutton Gets Even Break On Double Game Road Trip

SUTTON, Neb., Jan. 23.—Coach Glen Frary's basket tossers broke even in a two-game road trip this week.

After playing a ragged game at York and losing by a 20 to 9 score, the Sutton five came back to form and defeated the fast Benedict five at Benedict last night, 8 to 7. Sutton led 7 to 1 at the half.

Sutton will play two games next week, meeting Ong at Ong and Harvard at Sutton.

In Sports Hall of Fame.

Four immortals of the world of sport who are to be the first honored in the sport hay in the nave of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, are: Walter Camp, Christy Mathewson, Robert D. Wrenn, former national tennis champion, and Hobel Baker, famous Princeton athlete who died in the war.

TIGERS AND AGS DRAFT CONTRACT

Missouri's contention that there is only the friendliest of feeling between Missouri and K. S. A. C., with never an untoward happening on the football field or in the financial dealings to mar the friendliness.

"It was just an unfortunate thing," said Director Brewer recently, "but after a lapse of a year we will play the Aggies each year, and this new contract will bring about a switch that we have much desired, that is, only one trip into Kansas each year and one of the Kansas conference members at Missouri each fall. We want the Aggies on our schedule. It is one of our finest games."

So this little ripple beneath the surface of Valley athletics has been smoothed out in a way that should be pleasing to both schools.

Uniformity of Interpretation.

On Saturday, September 11, in Kansas City, will be held the first annual Missouri Valley conference meeting for the purpose of arriving at a uniform interpretation of the football rules. Valley coaches, directors, all appointed officials, will be expected to attend the meeting The meeting, however, will be open to all who are interested in football from the rules point of view.

For several years the Western conference has held a football rules interpretation meeting, but the aValley is just now getting to this much needed event. In other years Valley football officials have been compelled to fall back on Western conference interpretations and sometimes perhaps these rulings have not met with the approval of all the Valley coaches.

As a result of the September 11 meeting, officials will rule alike on all questions that may be brought for discussion at the meeting and interpretations made.

"Big Three" An Imitator.

At one of the annual sessions of football coaches in New York several weeks ago. W. W. "Bill" Roper, famous Princeton coach, advocated the prohibiting of football practice before September 15. Several of the New York papers are said to have rushed into print with stories to the effect that "the Big Three again were taking the lead in intercollegiate football reformation."

Which caused Missouri Valley football men attending the meeting to spring a few merry guffaws. The Valley schools have been observing the September 15 rule for several years. Last fall, however, there seemed to have been a general tendency to evade this rule, at least not to follow it literally.

Coaches would send their charges out to the field before September 15 with instructions as to what to do, although the coaches adhered to the rule in that they did not appear personally on the field in the pre-season practice. However, there seems to be a concerted move in the Valley to stick closer to the rule next fall. Squads will not be called back officially until September 14, although there may be individual work before that date.

Praise for Drake Bulldogs.

Leonard Frank, eleven years line coach at Minnesota and assistant to Arthur St. Leger Mosse in football coaching at Kansas in 1912 and 1913, saw considerable of Valley football last fall and has no hesitation in saying that Drake was the best team he saw.

"Drake was big enough," Frank says, "but the thing that impressed me most about the play of the team was the co-ordination of play. The players knew what it was all about, and they went about the business of doing their stuff in a way that was pleasing to watch. I believe it was the best coached team I saw in the Valley."

Mr. Frank, who owns potato chip factories in Kansas City and in his home town, St. Paul, added, however, that he did not see all the Valley teams in action.

Tiger Heads Inflated.

"I saw Missouri against Kansas," he added, "but the Tigers didn't play the game. They acted like they thought it was easy and they could win at any time they wished. They couldn't win against the wind and they failed to take advantage of their chances when they had the wind with them. Apparently they had no assortment of plays, and yet I know they did have, because I saw them work out in Columbia early in the season and they showed a fine variety that day. But they were too chesty against Kansas. One could see that the team was there, but it didn't get going."

Frank has great faith in Ossie Solem, Drake coach, and calls attention again to another former Minnesota player, Clark Shaughnessy, whose Tulane team ran wild through the south last year and added to their laurels by playing a 6 to 6 tie with Missouri, the Valley champions, and turning in a well earned victory over Northwestern that defeated Michigan.

Dope Favors French Girl, Yet Helen May Be Winner

mild, unruffled demeanor in what is sure tobe a terrific match to affect the excitable temperament of the French girl. If Suzanne is ruffled, her game will suffer, and she cannot let it suffer much and hope to defeat Miss Wills on a grass court.

There have been plenty of evidences in the past that the French star can be upset. There are just as many instances of the imperturbability that won for Miss Wills the title of "Little Poker Face."

NOW COMES PSYCHOLOGY.

The psychology of the situation already has begun to work through the world-wide interest in the match, press comment and argumentative conversation in tennis circles.

When the two young women face each other on the court, the match will have been built up to the importance of at least an unofficial contest for the world's championship. The responsibility that Helen and Suzanne will shoulder is going to be terrific. There is likely to be some cracking under the strain, and it will not be Helen Wills who cracks.

HELEN BEST UNDER FIRE.

The American girl's temperament for match play is ideal in every way. Win or lose, she seldom changes expression, and I have never seen her game suffer from nervousness, annoyance or any other emotion. Suzanne's temperament on the other hand, can be made a serious handicap.

Helen is certain to outsteady Suzanne and probably will outplay her from the base line. And she is likely to ruffle the excitable Suzanne beyond measure, making up for the French champion's undeniable advantages in finesse, craftiness and experiece.

vos, Greek champion, in the semifinals, 6-4, 6-4.

STUDIED HELEN'S STYLE.

During the progress of the match, Mlle. Lenglen sat on the side lines and watched every move made by the American igrl, closely studying her style of play, and such weaknesses as she may have observed.

At the finish of the match, Suzanne applauded and congratulated the Californian upon her fine play.

Miss Wills was rather diffident about her victory and was inclined to give much of the credit for her victory to the weather.

YANKS PREFER NET GAME.

"Mlle. Contostavos played the typical European game," said Miss Wills to the correspondent tonight. "She remained in the back court most of the time, relying upon her accurate placements. We Americans prefer the more aggressive net tactics.

"The warm weather gave me more confidence today than I had yesterday. I hope I will have equally warm weather tomorrow when I play Mlle. Vlasto."

INCREASED CONFIDENCE.

Miss Wills gave her backers increased confidence today by a further display of form. She was at top form and it was generally admitted that her game is almost certain to make her winner over Mlle. Vlasto in the finals tomorrow.

The American star showed remarkable ability to tighten up her game whenever necessary, a fact that was encouraging to those who are predicting that she will give Suzanne a real battle when they meet. Mlle. Lenglen is said not to play her best when pitted against an opponent who is inclined to tighten up in the face of adversity.

HUSKER STUDENT LIKES TROPICS

John C. Shepard Here to Finish Business Course, But Will Return.

Year In Guatemala As Accountant Has Instilled "Lure," He Says.

John C. Shepard has returned to Lincoln to finish his course at the Nebraska college of business administration, but a year in Guatmuala has instilled in him the 'lure of the tropics" and back he goes to Central or South America as soon as he can.

"It's a wonderful place," he vouched, and discoursed on the joys of hunting deer behind a pack of dogs, of French wine at the fincas, and of malaria fever.

Mr. Shepard left the first of May, 1924, spending two days at Memphis, a week at New Orleans, and then sailing for Puerta Barrios, Guatamala, where he was an accountant for the United Fruit Co. Later he became an accountant for Empresa Guatemalteca de Electrocidad, a branch of the General Electric Co., at Guatamala City. There he remained until April 19, 1925, and then returned to New York by the way of Kingston and Santiago. At New York City he was superintendent of the payroll department for the General Motors company for several months before he came to visit relatives in Kansas last fall.

A water spout was the main event in the sea trip from New Orleans, Mr. Shepard relates. The ship tried to outrun it but was caught on the fringe of the cyclonic storm. No one cared to eat for awhile.

Puerta Barrios is one of the largest banana holdings of the United Fruit Co., and three or four shiploads are sent out every week Much of the fruit from the 40 by 80 mile strip is floated down the Mataugua river, loaded on trains and then on the ships.

The plantations, 600 to 1,200 acres in extent, are all worked by Indian laborers paid a few cents a day.

Malaria is necessarily prevalent where 160 inches of rain falls annually and it is a common custom to take 10 grains of quinine daily to stave off the fever. Shepard neglected to do so, was laid up in a hospital a couple of months, and took 60 grains a day to shake off the ailment. The tropic heat is usually not more than 85 degrees, but excessive moisture makes it hard to bear.

A desert is crossed by narrow-gauge train to reach Guatamala City. The elevation there is 5,000 feet and deer hunting a favorite sport. If its meat one wants, says Shepard, procure a lantern and a shotgun. Attracted by the light at night, the animals crowd up and the rest is simple.

But for sport, a pack of hounds is the only thing. They trail through the coffee fincas and sugar plantations and the whole affair is ended with a siesta at some finca house, where wine and refreshment are provided. This is another item in the lure of the tropics.

But forty-seven odors, and each one distinctive, form the main part of that lure, Shepard concludes. At any rate, it is distinctive enough and compelling enough to decide him on spending the next few years of his life near the equator.

BACK FROM TROPICS

C. G. Shepard, University of Nebraska man who has just returned from a long stay in the tropics.

BAN B. TAKES HIS TURN TO CHUCKLE

Prexy of American League Vindicated By Action Of Club Owners.

Old Contract Torn Up And New One Boosts Salary Ten Thousand.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

If there's a glow of gladness within Ban Johnson, there is definite reason for it. And if there is a sudden, strange silence among his chinning ranks of enemies, there is also specific reason for that.

For these men paid to Ban Johnson a tribute rare and a tribute wonderful when they voluntarily extended his contract for five years beyond its 1930 original ending—and added $10,000 to his annual original salary of $30,000..

A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

When those seven men took this newest action in favor of Ban Johnson, they didn't merely give him a longer job at a higher salary. They indirectly gave him a solid vote of supreme confidence in his leadership: they acclaimed their loyalty so that the world might know of their act, and they hailed him as a chieftain worthy of their unlimited confidence.

And so it no longer is necessary for Ban Johnson to die for the world to know of the colossal figure he has been for the good of baseball.

NECTAR OF TRIUMPH.

Scarred by the battles of many years, first against the rowdy element that controlled baseball; scarred by battles for recognition of his league; scarred by battles for the honesty of the game; scarred by battles to uphold the high standards, Johnson again emerges from out of the smoke wreaths to taste of this newest and this sweetest nectar of triumph.

Through the years Johnson has been involved in many terrific battles—and not always was he fighting enemies who were fair or honorable. Yet Ban Johnson has won in every duel of his baseball career—first, because he never fought for a cause other than fair and honest and for the best good of baseball, and, secondly, because no man ever knew him to falter or lose an iota of his sublime courage, even in the hours when most men would have felt the odds too great and would have quit.

LOVES THE OLD GAME.

Twenty-five years in baseball—and no man, of all the enemies he has known, has every challenged his rugged honesty and his integrity; twenty-five years as a leader in the cause of baseball and no man has ever said that he fought for other than the uplifting of the game which he loves as much as life itself.

They called him "czar"—and perhaps he was. But not in the czarish sense of oppression. Whatever domination he exhibited was merely for baseball's betterment. If he fought to rule, it was only because he wanted leadership so that he might uphold the high standards which he himself raised.

Back along in 1900 when Ban Johnson, fresh from the ranks of newspaperdom, took over the presidency of a new league and settled down into a fight for clean and honest baseball, the game had sunk to its lowest depths. Rowdyism ran amuck. Johnson fought for honorable conduct on the ball field. After three years of ceaseless striving, he won out.

NATIONAL WELL WHIPPED.

The National league, entrenched for 24 years before the American came into existence, fought to exterminate the new league. It put everything it had—money, brains, resourcefullness, daring and cunning—into that battle. But, in the end, it succumbed to Ban Johnson and his American league cohorts and willingly, gladly, made peace.

Years followed. Baseball, so far as the American league was concerned, remained tranquil. There were no rifts in its lute. Occasionally there might have been a bit of internal strife But Johnson always carefully ironed out the trouble inside the league meetings and the public knew nothing of it.

FRAZEE BROKE RULES.

And then came the day when Harry Frazee, the stormiest petrel that baseball ever knew, sold a suspended ball player—Carl Mays—to the Yankees. The rules are specific on the point that a suspended player cannot be sold or traded. Johnson pointed this out to Frazee—reminded him that, as a magnate he was pledged to uphold the rules. Frazee snarled some answer through the newspapers.

The Yankees wanted Mays—needed him to help win a pennant. So they lined up with Frazee and declared war on Johnson simply because Johnson stood for honesty and for the upholding of the sacred rules of baseball.

THEN THE LANDIS FARCE.

When the battle was at its heights, the National leaguers, some still smarting from the whipping Johnson gave that league 20 years before, felt that the chance had come to "put Johnson out of baseball." Eight National league and three American league clubs united in the battle. The only result was that they wished onto themselves Kenesaw Mountain Landis, that fragrant model for matinee idols—and voted him a $50,000 annual salary for seven years.

DOLAN AND O'CONNELL.

Landis was to "redeem" baseball. Just why baseball needed redemption, no keen student knows. If he was to be the angel faced chee ild who was to be the absolute barrier against any future baseball crookedness—well, what about the Cozy Dolan-Jimmy O'Connell case" That happened—the attempted bribery on the part of O'Connell—while Landis was baseball's high commissioner. So his existence did not abolish baseball crookedness.

Landis forced upon the magnates a contract that compelled them to silence "even when we have reason to believe that the high commissioner is in error." That muffler clause has barred men from speaking all that they might think about Landis—and his conduct. It required of them that they say only nice, cute and very sweet things.

EMITTED SHRILL SHRIEKS.

When the Dolan-O'Connell thing was frothing, Johnson, speaking with the interest at heart of the game, WHICH BAN JOHNSON MADE, declared that he thought Landis could do a little more investigating than he had done—or words to that effect. Landis, finding that his tail feathers had been jerked, emitted shrill cries about the necessity for a soothing lotion in the way of an apology. Johnson refused to make it.

Then the magnates of the American league—a year ago—in the effort to placate Landis, apologized in Johnson's behalf—all except Phil Ball of St. Louis. That action was an insult to Johnson, but it did soothe and sustain Kenesaw and it did balm his vanity. Having done that, the magnates of the American league performed the duty they felt they owed to Landis for a debatable violation of the "muffler" clause.

VINDICATION FOR BAN.

And then, a year later, just to show Johnson, Landis and the world at large just how, within their hearts and within their minds, they felt toward their own leader, they tore up Johnson's contract that had five years to run at $30,000 a year—and handed him a new one for ten years at $40,000 a year.

Since which time—well, boy, go page this Landis and let's test his blood pressure.

The University of Nebraska was the center of attention at the Western Livestock show in Denver last week, when Colleke Kenyon, pure bred Angus steer, won the grand championship of the entire show. College Kenyon is the second steer from the same cow to win the grand championship at Denver. Kenyor First was awarded the same honor in 1925. Both steers were bred and raised at the agricultural college by Charles Johnson, herdsman, under the direction of Prof. H. J. Gramlich, head of the department of animal husbandry.

The 1926 champion was sold for $1 per pound, ten times the market price on the day of the sale, and he weighed 1190 pounds at the auction after the show. The sixteen steers sold at the same acution averaged 21 cents per pound, according to word from Denver. Kenyon's carcass was entered in the carcass contest, winning the prize of $300.

Other winnings by the Nebraska college include a first in the senior Angus calf class and the senior yearling Hereford class, seconds in the junior Angus calf class and the senior Hereford calf class, and thirds in the senior Angus calf class and the Hereford herd class. The college also showed the reserve champion Poland and Duroc barrows and had three firsts, two seconds and three thirds in the fat barrow competition Most of the stock shown was bred and raised at the college. Some of the steers were purchased when small calves and fed out.

Nebraska's boys did as well as her stock when the college junior judging team won the high honors of the livestock judging contest. This is the second time in the last three years that Coach W. W. Derrick has had the winning team at Denver. Clay Wescott of Malcolm was the high man of the contest, and Edward Crowley of Cambridge was second. Irving S. McKinley, Ponca, Ross Miller, Franklin, and Francis Reese, Valentine, were the other members of the team.

The winnings of Nebraska at the Denver show follows:

No Demonstration can reveal all of BUICK Excellence

G-30-26-NP

ANY time you drive a Buick, you will wonder how such a remarkable car can be sold at such a moderate price.

In just a few minutes you will realize that you are starting, stopping, parking, driving with much greater ease and security. And that you are surrounded by quality and luxury which rank with the very finest.

But demonstration will tell only part of the Buick story, and you should know all of it.

A demonstration cannot show you the enduring stamina of body and chassis that belongs to Buick. Years are necessary for that. It can only suggest the powerful ability of Buick's 75 horsepower Valve-in-Head engine, built for hills. It cannot tell you how thoroughly the Buick "Sealed Chassis" and the Buick "Triple Sealed" engine will protect Buick performance on dusty, gritty roads.

And it cannot even hint of the mental ease you will enjoy, with Buick Authorized Service "just around the corner," everywhere in America.

NORRIS CHARGES COOLIDGE TRIED DELAY REPORT

Declares President Used His Influence to Sway Tariff Commission.

Nebraska Senator Cites Alleged Inducements Made To Its Members.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—President Coolidge used every possible means to influence the sugar report of the tariff commission last year Senator Norris, republican, charged in the senate today.

While the commission was deadlocked over the case, Mr. Coolidge offered William S. Culbertson, a member of the commission, a post with the federal trade commission at a better salary, Norris asserted. If Culbertson had accepted the post, the commission would have been able by a vote of 3 to 2 to take the course Mr. Coolidge desired.

Making no charges against the chief executive, but citing the history of his activities with the commission, Norris told how charges were made against Culbertson and investigated by the department of justice.

Reports Charges True.

Then Attorney General Stone reported to the president the charges were true.

The president sent for Culbertson and talked with him about the charges and as Culbertson was about to leave and with the adverse report lying on the desk, the president again asked Culbertson if he could not delay the sugar report, Norris said.

Norris contended the commission is a quasi-judicial body and should not be tampered with any more than a Federal court should be influenced.

Norris says Henry Glassie, whose family admittedly had $200,000 invested in sugar companies, refused, with the permission of President Coolidge, to retire from the investigation of the sugar tariff.

Commission Deadlocked.

This made the commission deadlocked three to three, over whether Glassie should be permitted to take part in the investigation, with the Glassie vote in favor of himself. Commissioners went to the white house and asked the president to rule on whether Glassie should be permitted to deadlock the commission on the question of his right to vote.

The president at that time refused a ruling, but later Chairman Marvin of the commission, announced he had an oral order from the president for Glassie to do whatever he thought best "and of course he thought best to do what he had always done," Norris said.

Later, Glassie was ousted from the commission by a special act of congress.

TOLL MOUNTS IN ALLENTOWN FIRE

Push Hunt For More Possible Victims in Lafayette Hotel Blaze.

Eleven Known Dead And Nearly a Score Of Injured In Hospitals.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—With eleven known dead and nearly a score in hospitals severely burned, several of whom may die, the icy ruins of the Lafayette hotel, which was destroyed by fire today, were being searched tonight in the belief that one or two more bodies may be recovered.

Authorities had not determined the origin of the fire tonight. The dead:

Alexander Troop, Boardman, Pa.
Mrs. C. Dermond, Philadelphia.
Anna Novak, Beaver Meadows, Pa.
James McKeever, Philadelphia.
William Shanahan, Ventor, N. J.
Six unidentified persons.

Firemen stated the fire started at 2:30 o'clock in the morning, the flames breaking out on the third floor. They spread rapidly and before the fire was under control, the five story brick structure was in ruins.

A Waitress is Victom.

Miss Novak, a waitress, met death, it is believed, when she became panic stricken while being led to safety by a guest who escaped. She broke away from her companion, went in the opposite direction and perished.

Edward Geiger of Allentown, clung to a window sill of his fifth floor room for fifteen minutes until firemen rescued him.

Another guest, George Harding of Bangor, Me., clung to the sill of his window until he became exhausted. He finally dropped and escaped with his life although severely burned.

While firemen were bringing guests down ladders, others stumbled from the building, dazed and soaked with water. Some of them dropped exhausted on the sidewalk and were rushed to the hospital.

There were forty-eight guests in the hotel, it was said, when the fire broke out.

The hotel, which was built in 1809 and remodelled in 1909, contained sixty-eight rooms, some of which were unoccupied.

PREDICT RAJAH WILL ABDICATE

Government Forcing Maharajah Of Indore Out After Nautch Girl Case.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.) — The maharajah of Indore is preparing to abdicate, according to dispatches received tonight from Bombay.

The anticipated abdication is understood to be the direct result of the attack upon the Nautch girl, Mumtaz Begum, and her protector, the wealthy Bombay merchant, Bawla, which resulted in the death of Bawla and the wounding of Mumtaz.

The Indian government is understood to have demanded of the maharajah an explanation of the attack.

Mumtaz Begum, the beautiful Nautch girl, who was for some time under the protection and care of the maharajah, has asked only recently for protection and has started a court action seeking to secure possession of jewels which she claims were an ancestral inheritance and were left in Indore when she fled from the maharajah's palace.

Mumtaz many months ago, fled from Indore and went to Bombay. It was brought out in court following the attack upon Mumtaz, that the maharajah of Indore had given orders that Mumtaz was to be captured and brought back to Indore at any cost.

There has been a report prevalent in London for several months that the Indian government could not fail to take action to make further inquiries into the affair. It appears now that the government inquiry has forced the maharajah into the abdication.

Many Calls For Aid As Cold Wave Strikes Lincoln

The Social Welfare society has assumed a cosmopolitan atmosphere in the opinion of Secretary Prevy, with the calls for aid in the past few days, the heaviest and most varied of the winter. Saturday, in particular, he said, was heavy, with about forty calls, mostly for fuel and groceries. Eliminating duplications, he estimated the number of cases during the week at 150.

About half of the forty applications Saturday, Secretary Prevey declared, came from men who have families to support and are able and willing to work, but cannot find employment. As many of them as possible are being used in the society's woodyard.

Friday a Greek family consisting of the parents and five children arrived at the office without a cent of money and no place to go. They were housed by the society for the night and until shelter could be found for them. The same night a Mexican woman came with two children. She had quarreled with her husband and been put out of the house.

Another unusual case was that of a young Italian woman, a meat cutter by trade, who was looking for employment.

In addition, there have the usual number of cases of native Russians.

DRAW PLANS FOR PAVING PROJECT

New Stretch Will Link North Sixteenth With Holdrege Viaduct.

Will Take Share Of Fair Traffic; Other Improvements Needed.

Plans are maturing in the city engineer's office for the first large special assessment project to be launched by Commissioner Duncan's department as soon as weather will permit in the spring. It is the paving of North Sixteenth street from Vine north and connection with the Holdrege street viaduct at Seventeenth street. It is also expected that Y and W streets from Sixteenth to Seventeenth street and North Side avenue will be paved at the same time.

Included in the project will be a storm sewer of sufficient size to care for the drainage of the entire district. Preliminary surveys of the district indicate the sewer will vary in size from 30 to 36 inches. These figures may have to be changed, however, when the final plans are drawn. It is estimated that the cost of the project will be at least $30.-00 . The cost of the improvement will be assessed against the abutting property.

This is an improvement needed more than any other in the city, according to Commissioner Duncan, who said Saturday night that he is meeting with encouragement on every hand. Paving the streets and building the sewer will not only drain that territory, he added, but it will also add a new avenue to and from the city over the Holdrege street viaduct, and provide a second street to care for visitors coming into the city from the fair grounds during the state fair.

Says Others Needed.

City Engineer Erickson said the improvement is but one of several needed in Lincoln, and all of which should be taken care of in one large project. They should have been done a long time ago, he said, but inability to make a levy of more than 6 3-4 mills each year has balked every effort toward building storm sewers on an extensive scale. And the storm sewers should be constructed before the paving is land, he added.

Pointing out that a few years ago the city expended as much as $12.-000 and $15,000 in a single year for storm sewer construction, the engineer said something must be done soon to provide more funds for this class of work. "If it is not done," he said, "Lincoln is going to find itself at some future date forced to lay sewers at an expense much above what it should be because of having to tear up and relay paving.

"People are demanding paving day," he said, "and we have to put it down whether the storm sewers are built or not." He mentioned a number of projects where this has been done, making particular reference to one of East D street.

RADIO INSPECTOR HEARS COMPLAINT

F. B. Sloan of Commerce Department Investigates Interference Here.

Amateur Broadcasting Can Be Limited, He Assures Lincoln Listeners.

F. B. Sloan, federal inspector for the department of commerce radio service gave his attention Saturday night to the complaints of radio fans regarding amateur interference during the restricted hours, but whether any definite action will be taken was not made known.

Owners of receiving sets in the city have been experiencing considerable annoyance while listening to evening programs from the large stations, according to reports. This fact was called to Inspector Sloan's attention while he was in Lincoln.

Amateurs operating their broadcasting sets on wave lengths between 150 and 200 meters are not permitted to broadcast between the hours of 8 and 10:30 p. m., and on Sundays during church services. Those operating on wave lengths of less than 85 meters are not restricted unless they cause interference, and then their licenses are cancelled and the station closed just as are the more powerful sets, Inspector Sloan explained.

Radio receiving conditions in Lincoln are almost ideal as compared with those in the larger cities, Sloan said. It should not be difficult to eliminate what little interference there is here. There are two methods of handling the situation. One is through the formation of a radio league or association which will take action in solving the local difficulties.

The second method is by complaint to the supervisor of radio, Federal Building, Chicago. When the amateur rules are violated, persons who are annoyed by the interference should obtain the name or station, letters of the broadcasting station and send them with other detailed information to the supervisor of radio, who will take the proper action and cancel the license or close the station, if there is reason for it. Evidence of a definite nature of this kind must be obtained, however, before action can be takenn.

It is difficult for the department to take care of such violations personally in all localities. Amateur interference is one of the biggest problems the department has to deal with, Sloan said. The inspectors are swamped with complaints in nearly every locality they visit. Because of the small appropriation it is impossible to maintain a force of inspectors large enough to handle the matter thoroughly.

The division in which Nebraska is included consists of twelve other states. The department has only four inspectors and one supervisor for this territory.

BRAVES GRAB OFF WONDER PITCHER

Hearne a Southpaw, Goes Up To Boston With Brilliant Record In Minors.

Has Mark Of Whiffing 29 Opposing Batsmen In Two Games.

Opposing batters had nothing soft against the Boston Braves' pitchers last season. There was Larry Benton, for instance, who won four games from the Cubs and three from the Cardinals without losing one. John Cooney bowled over Brooklyn four in a row. Now more trouble is in store for the National league sluggers—unless it should turn out that Elmer Hearne, is a better steam fitter than a pitcher.

Elmer will be new to opposing batters. He has never been under the big tent before, but his work with the Bridgeport club of the Eastern league recommended him to the Braves scouts and he was signed up.

Short, But Beefy.

Elmer was quite a pitcher eight years ago. In the Bushwick high school in Brooklyn his mates thought he was the best ever. He was then 14 years old and not very tall. In fact, he stopped growing after he attained the height of 5 feet 7½ inches, but not in girth, as he finished the season last fall tipping the beam at 170 pounds. If it wasn't for the poundage, he would be another edition of Dick Kerr, but in this he has considerably on the White Sox midget.

Being born a southpaw, he didn't figure it worth while to try to change his style, so a portside flinger he is and as foxy as they come. He played with his high school team for three years and he edged into the professional class by signing with Salisbury team of the Eastern Shore league in 1922, with which team he remained for four years.

Three-Year Record Holder.

The Shore league is perhaps not the classiest aggregation on the baseball map, but it is on record that a lot of good ball players have graduated from this circuit. Hearne threatens to become another one. For three years Elmer held the strikeout record in the league, both seasonal and otherwise.

Last season he was advanced to Bridgeport, where he proceeded to stand the best batters in the league on their respective heads. He pitched in 262 innings and struck out 161. Being a southpaw and a young one, at that, he was expected to be wild. He only partly fulfilled expectations. He handed out 95 passes, hit six batters and made ten wild pitches. They can do better than that in the majors and get away with it. When it was over he had won 18 and lost 12 games.

Twelve Victories in Row.

Prior to his advent in the Eastern, he set another record in the Lake Shore by striking out 29 men in two consecutive games, which put his names into the newspaper headlines. In addition, in his first year as a "pro," he won 12 games in a row.

Hearne was born Jan. 13, 1904, in Brooklyn, N. Y., which just about makes him old enough to sign his own contract. In the winter time he has a regular job at steam fitting and he knows where he can go should fate deal him a blank in the big show. Although he confines his pitching to his left arm, he can handle the plumber's tools with both hands, and on the diamond he shows an equal versatility by batting on either side of the plate.

Lang May Join Coast Leaguers

Beryl Lang, University of Nebraska varsity pitcher elected to captain the 1926 baseball team at the Cornhusker institution, will probably display his wares with a Pacific coast league team next summer.

Lang is negotiating with two clubs on the western rim. Abandonment of baseball as a varsity sport at Nebraska U. will leave him free to accept a professional offer this year. Lang's work in the box featured the success of the Nebraska club last spring.

Sooners Peel Off Fifth Cage Win In Valley Race

Niblick, Oklahoma center, topped the scoring for the winners with four field goals and six free throws. It was largely through his playing that Oklahoma piled up a 17 to 3 margin at half-time.

The Drake team, led by Everett, flashy forward, outscored the Sooners in the second period.

A strong guarding game featured the play of both teams. The score:

Murchison Runs In Record Time

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.) —Loren Murchison of the Illinois A. C. of Chicago and Walter Mulvihill of Holy Cross college shared the honors at the Brooklyn college indoor track meet in the Thirteenth regiment armory in Brooklyn tonight.

Murchison accounted for all three special sprints, 75 yards, 100 yards and 100 metres, equaling the world's indoor record of 11 seconds in the latter.

In the 100-yard dash he won in 10 seconds, which is only one-fifth of a second back of the world's indoor record. He was one-fifth of a second behind the world's record of 7 3-5 seconds for the 75 yard dash.

Hubbard Places Third.

Frank Hussey of Boston college finished second to Murchison in all three sprints and Dehart Hubbard of Cincannati placed third in the 75 yard and the century.

Walter Mulvihill ran anchor on Holy Cross' 1,600 metre relay and came from behind and overhauled Jimmy Burgess of Georgetown and won for his team, which established a new indoor record for the event. They clipped 1 3-5 seconds from the old record which they set up in 1924.

Mulvihill ran a wonderful race and a great deal of the credit belongs to him. A few minutes later he accounted for the special 500-yard race in the good time of 1:00 3-5. He outfooted Vincent Lally of New York and Ray Robertson of the Boston A. A.

PIRATES PICK UP IRON-MAN HURLER

Alvin Crowder Joins Buccos With Impressive Record In Dixie League.

If the Pittsburgh Pirates should be in need of an "iron man" during the coming season, they have one in Alvin Floyd Crowder. Alvin pitched for Birmingham of the Southern association last season and made a good enough job of it to get a berth with the Buccos, Barney Dreyfus' scouts considering the youngster worth a trial in the majors.

It may or may not be a safe bet, but so far as the records show Crowder will be the only pitcher in the major leagues who was born at Winston-Salem, N. C., and who learned his baseball in the Philippines; but such is the case. Having been born in 1900, Crowder was too young to even get in with the marines, horse or others, during the late war, and thus he had to keep his martial longings to himself until after the fighting was over. Then in 1920 he up and enlists in the army and in due time he lands in Manila.

Pitched in Philippines.

There wasn't so much doing at the time among our dark-skinned cousins, so time hung heavy on his hands. Needing some recreation after expeditions to the head hunting Igorrotes, he started to play baseball. He could throw a fast ball. He had one in school at home, but no one seems to have taken his skill seriously. The soldiers did and it is presumed that the colonel of the regiment didn't object to the ball playing private, because he certainly got in a lot of practice. After putting in an afternoon among the cocoanut trees, he was in no need of training camp exercises and thus he left our island possessions in the pink of condition.

Having landed in San Francisco, he looked for a baseball job and got one with the Frisco Seals. That was in August, 1922, according to Alvin himself, but apparently it wasn't much of a tryout, as he failed to figure in the records. In the spring of 1923 he travelled to the other side of the continent, landing at his home town, Winston-Salem, where he played throughout the season, winning 10 and losing seven games.

Did His Stuff in Dixie.

Scranton of the New York-Pennsylvania league drafted him in the fall and for a time he saw a lot of railroad travel. He was sent on to Rochester in the International and from there to Waterbury of the Eastern league. He was then sold to Birmingham, where he played during the past season winning 14 and losing 10 games. It was here where he got his cork screw Filipino ball in working order, a fact which sent him into 59 ball games, a record which surpassed the mark established by Marberry of the Senators by four games. He worked a total of 226 innings.

It was this a "iron man" stuff which played a part in the recommendations and, considering the brittle quality of one or two of the Pirate hurlers last year, Crowder should come in handy. Crowder was not exactly steady in his performances, considering that he passed 106 and struck out 102, but the figures prove that he has a lot of stuff on the ball.

Crowder confesses that he likes baseball better than carpentering. He was born to the latter trade, which was probably one of the reasons why he enlisted.

McQuillan Denies Broken Arm Story

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(U. P.)— Hugh McQuillan, pitcher for the New York Giants suspended last season for violation of the training rules, denied today that he had broken his pitching arm in a fight with a taxi driver and said he was ready to report for duty at the training camp.

BOOST MACKMEN IN PIRATE CAMP

Fans In Pittsburgh Pulling For Athletics to Win A. L. Pennant.

Such a Result Would Assure 1926 World Series In Keystone State.

BY CARL L. TURNER.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Baseball fandom in the Keystone state, tasting victory in a world series last season for the first time in many years, has started to whet its appetite at this early stage for an all-Pennsylvania world series in 1926.

Sentiment for a post-season classic between the Pittsburgh Pirates, champions of the world in 1925 by virtue of their defeat of the Washington Senators, and Conie Mack's Philadelphia Athetics, is especially pronounced here.

Critics and fans alike in the Western Pennsylvania metropolis are not manifesting particular concern over the Pirates' ability to repeat in the National league this season, if they have entertained thought of a possible Pittsburgh defeat at all.

WORRY ABOUT McGRAW.

Although there is not a man on the Pittsburgh club who minimizes the potentialities of an entry piloted by John McGraw, dean of all pennant winners, the players themselves are confident of another league pennant in 1926. The belief expressed by the handful of Pirates wintering here is that, with the New York Giants out of the way, the Buccaneers will have little difficulty in outdistancing the other six clubs, Cincinnati Reds in cluded.

They cite facts to substantiate the opinion. Pointing out that the winter thus far has failed to produce any trades of real consequence, the local players andtheir followers hope the Pirates' already notorious hitting faculties will be even more evident this season through the addition of Paul Waner and Hal Rhyme, Pacific coast stars, to "murderer's row." Aces of the team that won the championship in 1925 will be back to puzzle opposing batters again, and the report has gone the rounds that new pitchers will strengthen the staff before the season is well under way.

SEE MACKMEN WINNERS.

Local critics also are inclined to accept the Mackmen, failures as they were when games counted most in 1925, as the logical winner in the junior loop, believing the Athletics, enhanced by valuable experience of last season, will nose out the Senators.

These followers of the national pastime foresee the gradual downfall of the Washington team as the season wanes through paying the penalty of old age. They believe Coveleski, Peckinpaugh and Ruether have reached the peak and are ready to start down the far side of their careers.

As for Walter Johnson, who furnished the necessary pathos to make the last world series truly melodramatic, Pittsburgh sports writers say his performance against the Pirates proved that he still is mighty. But they point out that he cannot be worked too often.

ODDS AGAINST SENATORS.

Odds against another triumph by the Washington team as at present constituted are strengthened further by the apparent failure of Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris to make any serious attempt to bolster their roster for the impending campaign, those who pick Philadelphia to win the American league pennant say.

Youth and inexperience, rather the latter than the former, Pittsburgh prognosticators hold, caused the downfall of Connie Mack's team last season. They contend that the coming season will find that inexperience overcome and that the Athletics will capitalize their youth, instead of permitting it to remain a barrier i nthe way of success.

Pittsburgh fans are not likely to forget soon the baseball classic of last autumn, but it is evident that an all-Pennsylvania clash would find sports followers of the entire state wrought up to a much higher pitch. The possibility of a Philadelphia - Pittsburgh world series looms so bright here that it will take an unexpected turn of events earl next season to dull the enthusiasm.

Amateur Boxers In Local Program

The stage is set for revival of the glove-whirling pastime in local circles—with amateurs doing all the whirling. Announcement was made Saturday night by Sergeant Jack Duffield, matchmaker for Company I of the Nebraska National Guard that an amateur boxing show has been billed for Monday night, Feb. 8, at Company I armory, O and Twenty-fourth streets.

Billy Hale is co-operating with Sergeant Duffield in lining up promising young boxers for the program and a dozen or more lively bouts are to be on the Feb. 8 card. By staging a series of amateur programs it is hoped to develop a few performers of sufficient class to build up the sport and revive the glove pastime in the capital city.

Jack Roth, Fremont man, has been putting on a string of amateur boxing performances and it was announced Saturday ight that Roth probably would bring several of his best amateurs to Lincoln, pitting them against local boys Feb. 8. The amateurs may file entries for the Company L show with Sergeant Duffield or Billy Hale. The boxing programs at the guard armory will be put on under A. A. U. rules, which guarantees that none of the participants will endanger their amateur standing.

Yes, "Red" Still Chasing the Coin

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—(U. P.)—Ending his California invasion, "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears play a picked eleven headed by "Buick" Bailey and George Wilson in Kezar stadium here tomorrow.

The Bears are favorites to win, although Wilson is counted on to make the game interesting throughout.

The former Washington husky outplayed Grange last week in Los Angeles and his supporters are epecting an equally good delivery tomorrow.

Grange, however, should be in top form. He has rested all week and declared today that he was in fine shape.

WEST POINT, Neb., Jan. 23.—University Place high school rallied in the fourth quarter to nose out West Point in an exciting game of basketball tonight, 23 to 22.

A capacity crowd jammed the West Point high gymnasium to watch the game and was kept in a frenzy. West Point rallying to take the lead only to see the young Methodists forge ahead in the closing minutes of play.

Yetter was the main cog in the University Place scoring machine, scoring six times from the floor and once from the foul line. Krause led the West Point scoring with six baskets and two free throws. WESLEYAN WINS BY TIGHT SCORE

Methodists Take Cage Game From Wayne Normal By Two-Point Margin.

BY AUBREY CARRELL.

Nebraska Wesleyan's cagers eked out a meager 26 to 24 win over the Wayne Normal five in a nip and tuck argument on the University Place court Saturday night. During the first half the Wayne tossers had a slim advantage but in the second period the score was tied on five occasions, Loder's basket from the center of the floor giving the Methodists the lead in the last two minutes of play.

With five minutes left, Steeves tied the score at 23 each with a shot from under the basket. His free throw, after Wendt had fouled on the tip-off, gave Wesleyan a one-point lead. Loder, Wesleyan guard, scored from the center of the floor and the Methodists frittered away the final two minutes. Decker missed an easy chance to tie the score, after Reed's free throw had added a point to the Wayne total, when he bungled an open shot under the basket.

Wayne Out in Front.

In the first half Wayne outclassed the Methodists in both the offensive and defensive departments of the game and was leading 15 to 13 at the end of the half. Lally opened the evening's activities with a flip from under the basket, but a free throw by Best and Reed's field goal put the Wayne five in the lead.

Wesleyan took a momentary lead, teaming the ball down the floor to give Boell a scoring opportunity and Steeves followed with a toss from the sideline, but Best and Reed solved the Wesleyan defense, earning their team a five-point lead with the half well gone.

Calvert Evens Count.

Calvert, who was substituted for Gembler in the Wesleyan lineup, cut down the Wildcat's 13 to 8 lead with two field goals and a gift toss in the final three minutes of the half to knot the count at 13-all. Decker scored from close up as the half ended to give Wayne a two-point advantage.

The second half was a spirited affair, with the score tied a good share of the time. Calvert's distance shot evened the reckoning at the beginning of the last period. Decker, Wayne forward, batted the ball through the hoop but Calvert retaliated by dribbling the length of the floor to tie the score. Calvert matched Best's toss from beyond the foul line, making the count 19-alike with the time half gone.

Loder Clinches Victory.

Wayne took a fresh lead after Wendt found the hoop, but Loder, Wesleyan guard, dribbled through the visitors' defense for a shot from under the basket. Steeves and Decker each made good with scoring attempts. For the first time in the second half the Methodists were ahead when Steeves scored from the foul line. A long shot by Loder assured the Methodist victory.

Loder and Calvert were factors in the Methodist victory. Calvert was high point man with 11 points, while Loder came through with timely baskets in two instances as well as playing a reliable game at guard. Steeves accounted for seven of Wesleyan's points. Wiberg, Wesleyan guard, was out of the game because of illness.

Reed, with nine points, lead the Wayne scoring. Best, Decker, and Ray were outstanding in the Wildcats' offense.

The Lincoln Sports five engulfed the Wesleyan freshmen, 38 to 17, in a preliminary game. The score:

Tom Moore Enjoyed His Prize Fights

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—Interesting details of prizefights as they were fought over a hundred years ago are portrayed in papers belonging to Thomas Moore, the famous Irish song and ballad writer, recently uncovered here.

In one paper, dated Dec. 4, 1818, Moore tells of a bout between Randall and Turner, popular boxers of the time, fought-thirty-two miles from London in order to avoid police interference.

WINNER BARELY SCRATCHED.

"The thing was not altogether so horrid as I expected," Moore wrote. "Turner's face was a good deal dehumanised, but Randall, the winner, had hardly a scratch."

Randall, Moore adds, was an Irishman, "which gave me a sort of interest in the contest."

The fight went for two hours and a half, probably because the knockout punch was then unknown.

NEWS BY CARRIER PIGEONS.

Absent fans were kept informed of the progress of the fight through the medium of carrier pigeons released at different periods of the contest—an interesting contrast to the present system of ringside telegraph and radio communication.

Gentleman Jackson, the champion, received about $5,000 a year for instructing customers in the noble art—which was no inconsiderable amont of money a hundred years ago.

Travis' Trick Knee In Plaster Cast

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Travis Jacksor, New York Giants shortstop, has been forced to place his injured knee in a plaster cast and he has been ordered off his feet for three weeks, it was learned today. He will be two or three weeks late in getting to the Sarasota training camp and may not be able to play regularly until mid-season.

M'LARNIN RATED AS SURE CHAMP

Oakland Boy Headed For Top In Glove Sport, Coast Critics Say.

BY COPELAND C. BURG.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—(I. N. S.)—In he opinion of every cauliflower alley in California, "Baby-faced" Jimmy McLarnin, Oakland boy boxer, will hold the world's lightweight crown in 1927.

McLarnin, born in Ireland, taught boxing in Vancouver, B. C., and for two years California's greatest ring sensation, is now only eighteen years old. Recently he was suspended for six months for falsely swearing he was eighteen in order to climb into the ring at San Francisco to meet Pancho Villa, late world's flyweight champion.

Defeated Poncho Villa.

He met and defeated Villa. He twice defeated Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles schoo boy, who now holds the flyweight title.

McLarnin is a better boxer by far than LaBarba, who recently scored a hit in New York. He is faster than LaBarba, both with his hands and feet, and is the champion's superior in blocking and slipping punches.

A few months ago McLarnin was a flyweight, but he has grown so rapidly today he finds himself in the featherweight division and undoubtedly before the year wanes he will be a lightweight.

No Equal in West.

McLarnin hasn't a peer at any weight near his own in the west.

One of his first big fights in the near future will probably be against Tod Morgan, junior lightweight titleholder.

McLarnin is an orphan. His only relative is an uncle, Charles Foster, who taught him the gentle art of boxing and who now acts as his manager.

NEW PONTIAC CAR IN DISPLAY ROOM

Companion to Oakland Six Being Shown By the Davis Auto Company.

The first arrival of the new Pontiac General Motors automobile manufactured and distributed by the Oakland Motor Car company as a companion to the Oakland Six, has been placed on display by the Davis Auto Co, local Oakland dealer, at 1634 O street.

The Pontiac six made its debut at the New York automobile show where it created a senation. The new Pontiac is being made in two body types, a five passenger coach and a two passenger coupe

The Pontiac appears destined to take a place with the leaders. It fully lives up to the advance notices, being a car of characteristic General Motors quality. The Fisher-built bodies with rich fittings and the lustrous Duco finish in two colors belie the fact that the Pontiac is one of the lowest price six-cylinder cars on the market

Mechanically and in structural design the same attention to quality construction is apparent. The engine is of the six-cylinder, L-head type with a host of advanced features which are noteworthy in a car of such low price It is a moderate speed type, best suited for long life and endurance, with 3 1-4 inch bore and 3 3-4 inch stroke. It developes 36 brake horse power at 2,400 revolutions per minute

The bodies are low slung and roomy with a distinctive treatment of the double body beading, the lower beading curving up to a higher level back of the doors The radiator is nickel plated with a unique double medallion name plate in front, and a bronze-faced Indian head radiator cap, suggestive of the name of the car

Headlights are supported by a strong fender tie rod, while parking lights are set above the lower beading on the cowl.

The grouping of hand controls on the instrument panel follows very closely the arrangements on the instrument panel of the Oakland Six—switch at left, choke and throttle at right, with oil gage, ammeter and speedometer grouped in the center in a glass enclosed, indirectly lighted panel

WILLYS-KNIGHT 70 PRICE ANNOUNCED

Company Steps Into Middle-Size Field With Six Cylinder Motor.

Announcement was made by Willys-Overland, Inc., at the New York automobile show, of the prices on the new "70" Willys-Knight six that of the five-passenger sedan being set at $1,495 The touring car will sell for $1,295, f o b, Toledo

This price has been eagerly awaited since the "70" was presented and it became known that Willys-Overland would step into the middle-size field with a six-cylinder Knight type motor

It was generally anticipated that the price would be above the figures announced

The motor develops 53 brake horsepower from cylinder dimensions of 2 15-16 inch bore and 4 3-8 inch stroke with a total piston displacement of 178 cubic inches.

This is the highest power ever reached in an American built motor of equal size and is exceeded by but one other motor in the world, a foreign built Knight type plant

With this new car, Willys-Overland now covers a greater proportion of buyers than any other line of motor cars equipped with a sliding gear transmission

Features of importance in addition to the Knight motor construction, and found in the "70" at a lower price than in any other car of equivalent size, are a seven-bearing crankshaft, thermostatic control of the motor cooling and other similar elements of design contributing to strength and long life

Production of the four-cylinder Overland, the light car produced by Willys-Overland will be 50 per cent greater for 1926 than in 1925, the record year for this model in the history of the company

Studebaker Victor In Yosemite Race

The annual race from the Pacific coast for the honor of being the first automobile to enter Yosemite park at the beginning of the new year was won for the fifth consecutive time by a Studebaker.

Flashing up tortuous mountain grades and over roads hidden by deep-piled snow, a Studebaker standard six duplex-phaeton, arrived at the rangers station at the entrance to the park shortly after midnight, New Year's eve, and was awarded the first touring car permit for 1926.

The car was a stock model taken from the floor of the Studebaker dealer at Modesto, Cal., and was piloted by L. G. Goodwin of that city.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

One Cause of Grabbing Clutch.

If the sliding member of the clutch is rusty it will give the effect of grabbing The rusted portion will prevent the clutch's engaging, holding for a fraction of a second will form a quick engagement.

A Precautionary Tip.

Motorists are urged to take over precaution against the loss or theft of their new license tags by having them riveted to their cars This precaution will prevent the theft of tags for use on stolen cars.

When Compression Is Good.

An engine with good compression cranks with springy resistance If it cranks very freely, that condition may be considered an evidence of poor compression, which is usually caused by leaky valves and piston rings

The Work of the Generator.

The charging rate of the generator should not be over 10 or 12 amperes A high charging rate will overheat the battery, causing rapid evaporation of the water and buckling of the plates It also puts an overload on the generator

Importance of Changing Oil.

Some drivers do not change the oil in the engine or add to it until the pressure gauge indicates a lack of oil This is a bad practice and has burned out many bearings. Check the oil leve at regular intervals and change the oil by draining out the old oil every 750 or 1,000 miles.

Electrical Trouble.

The great majority of all electrical troubles on a car is caused by lack of inspection Generators seldom burn out through defects of the units themselves Difficulty usually is due to loose or dirty connections at contacts, such as the battery terminals, the ammeter and he junction box.

Slow Leak From Valve Stem.

A long pin in the valve stem may be one of the mysteries of the gradual loss of air in the tire Pins that are a trifle too long will push the valve off its seat when the cap is screwed down Filing a little off the end of the pin is all that is necessary to stop the unnecessary loss of air.

An Abuse of the Car.

While a car may ride better at 40 miles an hour over a rough road than at 30 the higher speed means a big sacrifice of long life and efficiency to axles, wheels, wheel bearings, differential, pinion gear, steering rods, brakes and other important parts which are below the springs

Efficient Windshield Wipers.

Automatic windshield wipers should be oiled occasionally The leather and working parts become dry, impairing the efficiency of the unit. See also that the rubber hose is not cracked, as a small leak in the suction line will stop the wiper and affect the operation of the engine It will also disturb the functioning of the vacuum tank

A Trick When Changing Tires.

The easiest way to mount a balloon tire and rim on a wheel is to insert the valve stem through the wheel hole while the wheel is around on one side instead of at the top Once the stem is in the hole the tire can be lifted up and the wheel by simply turning the latter a quarter turn This saves actually lifting the tire The wheel should not be too high off the ground The lower the better for this stunt

A cushion at the back will make driving more comfortable.

Never add anything except distilled water to a storage battery

Cracked and discolored curtains, with their small panes, are dangerous because they hide road obstructions

When attaching radiator fronts to cellular radiators, care must be exercised to avoid cutting the cells and causing a leak

Do not slip the clutch excessively instead of shifting gears Slipping it makes the clutch do all the work that the transmission was designed to do.

When automobiles are stored or otherwise idle for considerable periods, engine corrosion can be prevented in a measure by an application of castor oil

It is always wise to drive a car in accordance with the size of balloon tires used and the pressure carried, rather than on a basis of past performances with other sizes underinflated

The best position of the hands on the steering heel is to grasp the bottom of the wheel with the left hand and have the right hand about half way up. Never employ a tight grip.

It is possible to break out circles og glass, such as leases for headlights by making a number of straight cuts from the edge of the glass and breaking these sections out one at a time, but be careful not to cut inside the line of the circle to be cut.

DIRT IN MOTOR WRECKS HAVOC

Studebaker Devices Shut Out Minute Destroyers of Engine Efficiency.

An automobile engine, tightly built, is almost "germ-proof"—characterizing as germs those minute trouble-makers that get into an engine and wreak havoc

Only three things should be able to get into an automobile engine—air, gasoline and lubricating oil. The Studebaker engine has a sentry posted on each highway through which these travel, to see that no "germs"—dirt, water or bits of worn metal—get in with them

An air cleaner, over the carburetor intake, strains out dust, sand and soot, which formerly were carried into the cylinders in the air with which the gasoline was vaporized

Across the gasoline line, between the vacuum tank and the carburetor, is placed a gasoline strainer. If sand or dirt gets into the tank while it is being filled and floats along the stream going to the engine, it will be stopped here Water settles to the bottom of the strainer and may be drawn off

Lubrication is important in an engine Oil forms a thin film between the moving parts To make this film effective rough particles are strained out by a circular sieve in the crankcase which keeps within its walls the bits of sediment too large to get through the screen.

To this, Studebaker adds an oil filter, containing thick layers of soft felt Oil coming back to the pump from bearings or cylinder walls is drawn through this felt and goes to its second usefulness as clean and free of sediment as when poured into the crankcase

Just as sanitation wards off attacks of germs in the human engine, these devices shut out the minute destroyers of efficiency of an automobile engine

Many Complaints Of High Valuations, But None Of Low, Come In to County Assessor O. C. Bell

A patient, resigned official behind the barred window in the county treasurer's office was arguing, as is not unusual, with an irate taxpayer.

"I don't care," resumed the i t. "That valuation on my house is lower than the one on my next door neighbor's, and she has only a three-roomed thing Mine's two stories high and almost new."

Again the resigned official explained that a low valuation means a low tax, but that the assessor would doubtless be glad to boost both valuation and tax on demand

Again the irate taxpayer began, "I don't care—" but this time backed out the door and departed before he had finished the sentence.

"That instance," remarked County Assessor O. C. Bell sententiously, "was a freak"

It certainly was. The taxpayer in question did not go so far as to see Mr. Bell himself about his low valuation. But just the fact that anyone should even think that his assessment ought to be advanced is abnormal Somehow the human mind does not run that way

In all his years as Lancaster county assessor, Mr Bell has received hundreds, thousand of complaints on high valuations, but nary a one on low

Argues Two Hours.

A case in point that was 'simply a fright" occurred on the day when a reporter called to ask Mr Bell about the ins and outs of his business. A certain Lincoln man who had puschased a 1924 automobile for $1,700 found his car was being taxed for $780 He thought $650 would be a fairer figure and demanded redress Now that valuation of $780 is fixed by a carefully worked out table of statistics, and Mr. Bell told him so The owner then asserted his car was a 1923 model He was shown his auto license slip He claimed he was not at home when the assessor arrived He was shown his own signature approving the schedule He spent two hours and twenty minutes arguing and pleading and finally went away when he found that he would have had to pay but $2 75 less taxes if he had got the reduction asked

"That's what we pay our forty-eight assessors for," explains Mr. Bell. 'They go out and see the property, and we can't go over their heads every time someone comes into the office"

A woman walked a mile to the court house the other day and argued fifteen minutes over whether a dozen chickens or just six should be put down on her schedule The matter made 18 cents difference in her taxes

It's not the "big fellows" in Lincoln and Lancaster county who are getting out of paying taxes, in the opinion of the county assessor They never pay more than they have to, of course, but they send in complete lists of their property, with stocks, real estate, fixtures and other items calculated accurately. They have the facilities and the accounts to do this sort of thing, and they do it well.

Store stocks and fixtures, nevertheless, are about as evident as real estate. Real evasion of taxes comes in the matter of money, jewels and other small; valuable articles

How many watches and clocks are there in Lincoln and Lancaster?

Quite a few, one would say, but only 6,771 were taxed. That's about one for every twenty people Published figures by Lincoln banks show deposits of $28,564, 764, but only $4,248,065 in money was reported for taxation. Lancaster county has but $245,895 worth of jewels, one finds

It takes education to be willing to be taxed properly, Mr. Bell believes. Every innovation, such as the phonograph and radio, results in thousands of dollars worth of property being accumulated, yet that property does not show up very well on tax schedules for years.

Radios Undeclared.

Take the radio, for instance. Since 1925, there must have been more of them installed in homes of this city than phonographs. Yet valuations on the latter total $240.000 as compared with $85,275 for the wireless sets In time, Mr. Bell believes, the fans will become reconciled to having their hobby taxed. They will come to regard it less as a hobby and more as a substantial piece of furniture which should bear part of the tax burden

After all, the assessor must depend largely on what the householder tells him He can make his own valuation when he sees a piano, but he cannot get figures on how much there is in the bank, nor how many jars of fruit there are in the cellar nor glasses of jelly in the attic He simply hasn't the time to poke into every nook and cranny

Who's believe it, but there are $42,165 worth of dogs trotting around Lancaster county! As the dog himself often meets the assessor at the door, he usually goes down on the book for $10 No matter how scrawny a mongrel pup he was, or how worthless at chasing rabbits, his official value is $10 Show dogs and pet poodles get equal justice from the assessor He has found 4,183 of them in the county. One owner volunteered that his canine was worth $100, and some other variations from the $10 standard were made, so that the average worth of a Lancaster county dog, in the eyes of the law, is $10 08.

Dogs Worth $10.

It is on the question of dogs and pianos that the assessor often has his hardest fights Many poor persons take a liking for dogs, it seems, and have two or three of them. When set down on the books at $10 each, they boost taxes considerably Then the widow or old man who owned them walk slowly to the court house, holds up his little tax bill and pleads for a reduction

'It's hard in such cases," the assessor admits, "but I have to tell them to get rid of the dogs. They have them, and we can't do anything but tax them."

In the matter of pianos, the owner inquires where in the world any dam fool assessor got the idea of putting a ten-year-old box down at $75 It couldn't be sold for $50, he asserts.

"Well, I've got one forty years old, and they put me down for $125," says the assessor. So that's that

Just how is one to assess property? It's not so simple as it sounds Should it be done on the basis of original price, selling value or ability to earn money. An apartment house may earn $4,000 a year and cost no more than the mansion next door which is costing its owner $1,500 a year. Yet both might be assessed at very nearly the same amount

Is Satisfied.

In spite of all tribulations, Mr. Bell is fairly well satisfied with the manner in which Lancaster county residents turn in their schedules They do it far more honestly than in some other counties, he says For instance, the assessed value of Douglas county is $360,000,000 as compared with the $175,000,000 for Lancaster—only twice as much.

It was in Omaha recently that a citizen started a row when, following a jewel robbery at his house, he found that the assessor had hiked his property valuation by the amount of the jewels stolen He protested he would "not be the goat' 'and threatened to declare the names of other Omahans who had large amounts of undeclared jewels But he backed down.

That is usually the way, Mr Bell comments Often a man asserts he is not taxed fairly in comparison to some acquaintance, but he is unwilling to swear out a complaint

The chief taxable article in Lancaster county is land—516,561 acres of it The valuation is $44,601,00 Then comes $7,341,185 worth of merchandise, and then $4,256,850 worth of automobiles There are 13,525 horses, 36,202 cattle and 18,621 autos, and $350 worth of "steamboats and other craft"

General Motors' New Six is here!

GENERAL MOTORS now presents through its Oakland division the New Pontiac Six—the first six-cylinder car it has ever named and sponsored from the original design.

Representing the supreme embodiment of the corporation's almost limitless resources, this new Six is destined to compel a complete revision of existing ideas in motor car value.

The Pontiac Six is not another of the so-called "revolutionary" cars.

It is simply and solely a car of high quality developed to dominate a definite market . . and as such represents an achievement no less significant, no less unprecedented, no less epochal than the invention of the first six-cylinder engine.

In the Pontiac Six you are offered a new order of beauty—that grace of line and balanced proportion characteristic only of Fisher craftsmanship. You are offered precisely the enduring body construction that is used on cars selling for $2,000 or more, finished in rich Duco colors.

You are offered a roadability of extraordinary scope—exhilarating power for hills, refreshing agility in traffic, a maximum speed you will use only in emergencies.

Add to this new order of beauty and this performance of unprecedented brilliance, the equally important matter of accessory equipment, and the preponderance of Pontiac value becomes literally irresistible—

—for the Pontiac Six comes equipped with full balloon cords, nickeled radiator, Fisher VV windshield, automatic windshield cleaner, indirectly illuminated instrument panel, rear vision mirror, high-speed window regulators and other important essentials to pride of ownership.

The Pontiac Six is now on display in our salesrooms. Demonstrations may be arranged for. We not only invite you to see this newest creation of General Motors at the earliest possible moment—we urge you to come prepared for a new and unique experience—for here at last is the Six you have always wanted. . . . at a price so unexpectedly low that only General Motors could possibly achieve it.

Dancing Clubs Going Back To Olden Day Dances and Modern Steps May Lose Popularity

The dancing clubs have a secret—but not being daisies—they will tell. They are not devoting their entire entire time to the Charleston, nor yet to that later innovation, the St. Moritz dance where the lady carelessly and lightly does a cart wheel over her partner's shoulder. Not they.

They are emulating Henry Ford. They are thinking the old time dances are good enough for them.

Soon "Turkey in the Straw" will be more popular than "Brown Eyes, Why Are You Blue?" and ye old time fiddler will be sawing on the platform where once the saxophone blared supreme

Square Dances Popular.

The square dances and the Virginia reel are handing the K. O. to the one-step and the slow fox-trot.

The members of the Mafa club, who dance on Monday evening at Rosewilde, didn't say whether or not an old time dance was on the program, but such a dance has been seen in others of the dancing clubs. Dr. R. W. Reynolds, E. J. Stonesifer, and Mrs. A. C. Morton are arranging the Mafa club party Among the guests are Miss Catherine Holthammer, Herman Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holt of Greenwood, and Mr. and Mrs George Griffen It is to be an informal affair, without any favor dances

Mrs R A Murray is hostess for the regular Paul Nevron party Monday evening in the Lincoln hotel ball room. No special arrangements are being made for this party.

Even as Monday evening is distinguished by two dances so is Tuesday evening. One of the clubs that meets infrequently is the Lincoln Junior club, but it is having one of the two parties next Tuesday This party is to be a dinner dance in the Lincoln ball room. Thirty-eight couples will be present, and dinner is to be served at 7:30 o'clock Mr and Mrs Vance Traphagen, and Mr and Mrs Donald Pegler are the members of the committee. Mr. and Mrs. William Grainger are the committee chairmen, but with their absence in California—or enroute to the sunny west—a new chairman is to be appointed Formal at Rosewilde.

The Tuesday Night club is having a formal party Tuesday evening at Rosewilde, with Mr. and Mrs Carl Stein, Mr. and Mrs. John Burke Mr and Mrs C O Fulton, and Mr and Mrs Will Elker forming the committee in charge. There is to be supper during the intermission, decorations, and two favor dances, but on details the committee wishes to be reticent until after the event. About fifty-two couple, including ten guests, will attend

Members of the Euterpe club will have their monthly dance and dinner Thursday evening at the Lincoln hotel Valentine decorations of cupids and hearts will predominate on the table and in the ball room Mrs L H DeBrown Mrs E O Beemer Mrs. T A Sick, and Mrs P R Chevariel are on the committee. Seventy couples will be present

Girls "Walk" To To Omaha to See "Student Prince"

The week before the past one, "The Student Prince" played in Omaha much to the deep disgust of many of the boys and girls on the university campus who would like to have seen it, but, considering the railroad fare to Omaha, the price of admission and the fare back again, decided to forego the show.

That is, most of them decided that way, but three young co-eds, all belonging to one of the most popular sororities on the campus, decided otherwise They were going to see "The Student Prince" or die in the attempt. They saw the show and they didn't die which all goes to show what perseverance will do.

These three young maids walked the sixty miles Not all of the way, of course, although their intentions were good, but they began their journey by walking.

They took the street car to Havelock carrying shoe boxes packed with luncheon to eat on the way. From the end of the carline in Havelock they followed the pavement almost to Waverly, when along came a Ford or a Cadillac, we're not quite sure Anyway, it didn't matter to the girls, and they had a ride for several miles At the car's destination the girls disembarked, and trudged along on foot again until another motorist came by and carried them almost to Omaha. A little more walk and a little more ride and they were in the heart of Omaha's business center, taking street cars to their various homes

Each member of the trio lived in Omaha, so that they had no luggage to carry

Each co-ed saw the "Student Prince" that night, and rode back to Lincoln in state.

Ever-Changing Slang Is a Mark Of the Generation of Its User

What to do! What to do!

Thus sighed a very smart appearing matron at an afternoon bridge the other day when speaking of her two young daughters and a son, all of university age and who, according to this good lady, were far beyond her speed.

"Why," wailed she, "I can't even understand what they are talking about any of the time Not that the subjects are so deep or intelligent or anything like that, but the things they say—My word.

Slang — there was the whole trouble in a nutshell Mother just wasn't up on the latest vocabulary.

The person, we think it must have been a woman, who said that one might as well be dead as be out of style, said a lot, and that means a lot more than the mere wearing of clothes or the fashion of coiffures. In fact it has come to pass that there is nothing that reveals the age so easily and readily as slang. To the slangster it means as much to let go of the old slang as to pick up the new. There is antique slang There is period slang. There is old-fashioned slang, and the slang you use dates the period your impressionable years.

Once Place Differences.

Once there were tribal lingoes. There was a tongue for every valley and a language for every council fire. Once the cleavages of lingual differences were more between places than between times.

But now there is a language for every generation. There are fads of slang just as there are of parasols and shoes, and in each generation the meaning of certain phrases is a bit more subtle than that of the generation before until it takes a Webster or Roget to listen in intelligently.

For instance, the other day, standing on a corner waiting for a car, were two pretty co-eds. It would seem from the conversation that one of the pair had lost out on a good date by a simple twist of the tongue, so to speak, and her self condemnation and that of her friend was as follows

"Oh, I ought to be shot for a buffalo for being such a dumbbell."

"Well, I told you were just dead timber to turn that date down," said her companion

"O, thank you, salty potato chips, I'm flattened, I'm sure."

And then the car came.

Slang Handbook?

Someone really owes it to the universe to publish a handbook on slang, showing how various bits may be used to express the different emotions.

It would seem that surprise is registered by such expressions as "frog's throats and little goldfish," "the cat's pajamas" Disgust is interpreted by "that's sure the bee's knees," the "snake's hips."

A writer in the Literary Digest at—one time tabulated seventeen slang expressions according to the age. It is:

Grandma	Mother	Daughter
Charmer	Vamp	Red-hot mama
Hot air	Spoofing	Apple sauce
Wall flower	Dead one	Flat tire
Heart breaker	Lady killer	Sheik
The laugh	Merry ha-ha	Raspberries
Dude	Sport	Cake-eater
Four-Flusher	Sponge	Lounge lizard
Sparkling	Spooning	Petting
Cutie	Chicken	Flapper
Goor for you!	Bully!	Attaboy!
Quit yer kiddin'	Lay off	Be yourself
Up stage	Putting on the dog	Ritzy
Ah, there!	O you kiddo!	Hot dog!
The goods	The cheese	Cat's meow
Guy	Poor simp	Poor fish
Dear il	Skidoo	Ankle along
Poor sport	Tight-wad	Cheap skate

Convention Of D. A. R. To Be Held In Fairbury

The twenty-fourth annual conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Nebraska will be held in Fairbury, the third week in March, according to Mrs. C. S. Paine, state regent of the organization. All chapters in the state will elect delegates to this conference and Fairbury is making extensive plans for the entertainment of the prospective visitors. Mrs. Sheldon Agres is regent of the Quivera chapter in Fairbury and has charge of all the local arrangements.

There are forty chapters now organized in Nebraska and before March a new chapter will be installed at York with a large chapter membership. Mrs. J. B Butter is the organizing regent.

Although the program for the conference has not been definitely arranged, one of the principal features will be Americanization. Mrs. J. Barlow Reynolds of Omaha, state chairman of Americanization for the D A. R, will take an active part, no doubt in the conference. Mrs. Reynolds was a guest in Lincoln Wednesday and Thursday of the past week

Americanization Work.

The Americanization committee of the D. A. R. stresses work among aliens and the children of the foreign born. The keynote is the importance of friendliness to the foreign born family. Two important resolutions were passed by the last congress entitled "Enrollment of Alien Population," and the other "Naturalization Petitioners." The latter deals with a concerted attempt to establish a national standard of minimum requirements of educational qualifications for new citizens Both resolutions have the approval of James J. Davis, secretary of labor.

Great Contribution.

Friendship with the foreign-born women and their families, is, perhaps, the greatest possible contribution which the individual can render but the trained women should be stimulated to further supplement government and public agencies. Special stress is laid upon securing pupils for night schools, furnishing private teachers when night school hours make education seem difficult to the foreign mother; assisting public libraries to reach foreign born women, and a thorough preparation for

Other pictures used to depict the lesson, were from English and American schools Landseer, known as a painter of animal life was represented by three pictures, "Alexander and Diogenes." He sketched religious thoughts from colonial days, when in some places a man's absence from church for certain successive Sabbaths was an offense punishable by death, to the days when law-making bodies are reluctant to make any so-called religious duty compulsory. He told of the state which forbid the teaching of the Bible, those which demand it and those which are silent on the question. He expressed gratification at the way religious instruction was coming to the fore in the public schools. He expressed a great desire that the Bible be considered from an unsectarian viewpoint and that greater care and effort be made to prepare teachers for this particular work. With the laws of this state allowing unsectarian religious teaching, he said, he believed there is a field in which well trained teachers may find great opportunity

Mrs. Parkinson, teacher of Bible for three years in the public schools of the town, told of the steady growth of her classes from 17 to 75. During a recent study of the ten commandments, a survey was instituted in which 58 representatives of different religious faith were asked to name the commandments and locate them. MODERN EVE

The Shopper

It will be Spring a la Mode when all of our local buyers return from their eastern trips. We miss them right now, of course, but how inspiring will they be when they return with the latest ideas, plus the smartest hats, gowns, gloves, hose, shoes and all that is important in woman's wardrobe. Why even the beauty experts are going east for new ideas, new styles and new materials. Some of the permanent wave operators expect to have something that will not only please but glorify woman. We have much to look forward to.

HAVE YOU ANY DOLLARS TO SPEND?

Put them in your purse and turn to page three of the society section to see what you can get for them New spring hats, smart leather purses, sheer silk hose, dress goods and other things for yourself Or perhaps you'd like a mirror or curtains or something for the house Whatever it is, it is there They tell me those are the very best Dollar Days that Golds have ever had I'll see you there

Morning Thoughts

A famous novelist has one of her characters say. "You make but a poor trap to catch luck if you go and bait it wi' wickedness" In that sentence is summed up the whole law governing what we call good luck and what we call bad luck.

Some persons seem to have good luck continually and others seem to have more than their share of bad luck Some seem to have more than their share of happiness, health wealth and friends, but if we knew the inner man of each of these apparently lucky ones, we should see that each has the thought habit that brings him into harmonious contact with the source of things. He knows, consciously or subconsciously, where good luck is found

Good luck is an open road The road grows broader as the traveler advances, and it never becomes crowded Therefore good luck is waiting for all who will work enthusiastically, behave courteously, give generously, smile sincerely, act kindly, help earnestly and carry the victorious attitude of truth all the way.

ISN'T IT FUNNY WHEN IT COMES HOME?

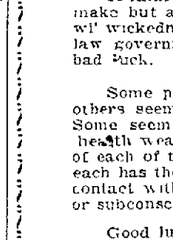

Last week I published a letter from a mother who was delighted with Milady coffee for two reasons Her son and husband remarked about Milady coffee's delicious flavor, and the woman herself knew that she was getting good coffee in package for only 55 cents a pound. A few days later there were guests at my own dinner table One woman remarked. "Isn't this delicious coffee! How did you make it?" And, with one eye on the percolator, continued. "May I have another sip? Where did you get it?" This brought a smile, of course, and I answered. "It is Milady coffee I make it as I would any other coffee I get it at any good grocery store and it costs but 55 cents a pound in the air-tight package."

"But," said the guest, "I like to keep my coffee in a can?"

"So do I" was the reply, "but I have an old can and why pay 5 cents for a new one each time to throw away. You can use but one can at a time."

A word to the wise is sufficient.

LET ME INTRODUCE—

Miss Trula Gardner, instructor of shorthand and secretarial training at the Lincoln School of Commerce.

If you are interested in earning money you will be interested in the secretarial course It is short, practical, interesting and remunerative. Everyone who has completed it has been placed by the school in a good position

And do you know that 65 different office positions have been filled by the Lincoln School of Commerce since January first? Sounds good, doesn't it? There will be a position for you, too, if you register with them for the new classes beginning February first. See them this week. Start the secretarial course now and you'll be earning good money by next Christmas.

Fabric of Life

We sit at the loom and weave and spin.
Thread upon thread is woven in
To the warp of our lives, and they twine and twine
Till the fabric is finished, and coarse or fine,
We must don the garments we weave and wear
The kind of cloth we have woven there.

LOOKING FOR A REAL THRILL?

You will find it if you let one of the expert operators at Giffen Beaute Shop give you a hot oil shampoo. Each operator is trained to give scientific treatment according to the condition of the scalp. And one of the most pleasing features is the shoulder and neck manipulation which stimulates the blood supply to the scalp. It is so soothing to tired nerves, and who doesn't have nerves in these busy days? Also, they use real soft water, and give a tonic rub.

These experts know that you can't treat all scalps alike. They can tell by the condition of your scalp just what it needs and treat accordingly. In other words, you get REAL SERVICE at Giffen's.

Watch for many gay and lovely printed materials this spring Already local shops are showing their advanced patterns Some are only 32 inches wide, while others are 36 40 and 54 inches All colors seem to be present in the most striking combinations. Some have borders to be worked into clever designs and dress trimmings

Painted velveteen is the craze of the moment in London 'tis said Tendency of the designs is toward futuristic effects.

$18,000 Earned By Students Placed By University Y.M.C.A.

The University of Nebraska Y. M. C. A. employment bureau received a total of 827 applications for student employment from the beginning of the first semester to January 15, 1926. Of this number, 412 men have been placed—255 in temporary part-time jobs, and 157 in permanent part-time positions. The estimated earnings of students during this period from temporary part-time work was $944.70, and from the 157 permanent positions, $17,422.60. The total estimated earnings of students placed in positions through the bureau was $18,367.30.

"Expressions of employers on the capability of students have been almost unanimous in approval," declares William S. Trumbull, secretary of the bureau. "There is no question but that student help is just as reliable, if not more reliable, than any other kin dof help. As we stated at the beginning of the school year, we try to fill all openings with students particularly qualified to do the work wanted. We believe that this led to increasingly better results."

Mr. Trumbull also states that a larger percentage of the students seeking work have had more actual experienco than in former years. This sometimes results from the necessity to work while in high school. The training gained in that way proves of great value in earning expenses at college. Such persons are much better prepared to face the stiff competition offered by older men with more experience.

"Our problem is primarily to help the younger men who must work all or part of their way through school," the secretary declares, "for they often come as strangers unaccustomed to their new environment. We urge that they make a special effort to equip themselves with as much experience as possible before coming to the university."

PLAN STANDARD CHURCH SCHOOLS

State Association Arranging Program Suitable For All Churches.

Publicity, Co-operation and Union System Found To Be Necessary.

The Nebraska Council of Christian Education, a successor to the Nebraska State Sunday School association, with the aid of the denominational educational secretaries of the state, is arranging an extensive program for church school workers. With the completion of these plans, it will be possible for a single church school, or a group of them, to have a standard training school for church workers or a week end institute, the latter a less detailed and a much shorter course than the former.

A standard training school is a series of ten or twelve sessions of one or more classes, whose member? ship, under accredited instructors, studies a text book of teachers' training. A successful examination entitles the student to a certificate from some one of the denominational boards of religious education. An institute lasts but a day or two and builds its program toward the achievement of a few definite and constructive ends in some one or more of the aspects of modern Sunday school work, as these are prestented by trained workers. This course is shorter than that of the training school and it does not require special study by those attending.

Standard 3-Year Course.

The workers of all Nebraska denominations have met in conventions and in annual county and state meetings for fifty-nine years, to discuss and hear discussed all phases of Sunday school work. As the desire for detailed aid became noticeable, the conventions became departmentalized. The institute idea of presenting a series of subjects under one general head brought additional training.

At the present time, the standard course consists of three year's work of forty lessons per year, covering twenty general and twenty special subjects. The classes generally meet once each week and choice may be made from more than fifty text books. To secure a diploma, a student is required to take six general units, four specialization, and two elective units. If a church desires to train its young people for teachers or officers before they are needed, the class is held at the Sunday school hour.

The churches sometimes unite for a community training school, meeting once each week for ten or twelve weeks in the fall and again in the spring. Two periods are conducted each night, a general period for all students and a second period for specialized study. The three years course of the training school can be taken in this way, credits secured, and diplomas awarded.

A community training school was conducted annually in Lincoln for many years. It was organized from the elementary graded union, which developed from the primary union organized by W. H. Kimberly more than thirty years ago.

Can Work Fast.

If expert leadership can be secured, the work may be intensified and taken in five days, making it possible for a student to complete one credit unit in two lessons each night for the five successive nights. When certain requirements as to faculty, student qualification, and texts, are met, the school becomes a standard training school.

Based upon past experience, it has been found that three conditions are necessary for an institute: Publicity, agreement among the pastors and the Sunday school workers as to the desirability for holding a meeting, and that the institute shall be a union one, uniting as many as possible of the evangelical denominations. Such an arrangement provides the largest momentum and the greatest interstimulation of workers, according to one writer.

The state office acts as a clearing house in the organization of institutes wherever a call is made in the state. The details of the institute and the selection of speakers are arranged by the local committee. The work of holding county conventions through which all sides of church school work are promoted for all denominations, keeping records, and raising the building fund to provide for an all year training school are other interests of the state office.

University Notes

Dr. J. E. Kirshman's book, "Principles of Investments," which was published in the latter part of 1924, is now being used in more than one hundred colleges and universities, including Harvard university, University of Illinois, and University of Michigan. The value of the book has also been recognized by many leaders in banking institutions and bonding companies, and the heads of several large concerns have requested that their employes study the book thoroughly.

Word has been received at the office of the University Alumni association of the death of Louis Bluford Stringer, ex-'01, a varsity football end in '97 and '98. He was stricken with paralysis and died December 1, 1925. His home was at Santa Monica, Cal.

MEMORIAL ART
ANCIENT AND MODERN

Early Christian Art

For ten long centuries Christian art dared not raise its head above the surface of the earth. True, the Romans announced new gods, but their form remained pagan for it was the Oriental slave who propagated the Christian religion in Rome.

From the first century onward graven and painted figures were appearing upon the walls of the Catacombs. But among the upper classes it remained until the eleventh century for the new order to secure a dependabl footing. Then came the cathedrals with the wealth of statues and paintings all of the new Christian order.

It was impossible that the monk sculptors of the early period should discover any more than a meager type of nature—emaciated, compressed and suffering like themselves. Long figures which make a tragic effort to break the mould of Bysantium were flattened against the new facades mechanically expressing an arrested symbolism. For they were not the rulers who directed the artistry but only the artisans who dared not to exceed the demands of those in power.

made the crime record of this nation higher than that of other lands. "With higher moral standards and more laws to be broken, the United States is sure to have more broken," he said. Multitudes of crimes which are charged as violations of law here are unnoticed in other countries. Violations of the prohibitory law are given publicity here where little attention is paid to such matters elsewhere." At the Methodist church, D. J. Wood spoke preceding the morning service, on "The Other Fellow." In the evening, Dr. C. E. Leach emphasized the effect of example on the coming generation as affected by the eighteenth amendment. "The man who feels responsibility for the moral welfare of his fellow man should do all he can to support the laws of his country, especially in so vital a matter as prohibition," he said. Dr. Furman, the pastor, followed with a sermon on the same theme.

Unadilla W. C. T. U. presented the play "The Commander in Chief," visualizing the principles of law observance.

BUCK LECTURES TO LITERATURE GROUP

The literature department of the Lincoln Woman's club met as usual Thursday afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. After a group of piano selections by little Miss Dorothy Carlson and the responses to roll call which were quotations from Hawthorne, resolutions were presented and adopted expressing regret at the coming departure of Dean Buck from Lincoln, and the deep appreciation of his wonderful lectures to the department.

Dean Buck's subject for the afternoon lecture was Nathaniel Hawthorne, the critic, whom he considers the most interesting of all American authors. Dr. Buck said in part "While Emerson was probably more widely known abroad, Hawthorne was more generally read and admired in America.

"Thoreau, Emerson and Hawthorne were close friends, living internally; there was nothing exciting in their lives. They were all transcendentalists, but very different in their ideas. Thoreau was so extreme in his views that he refused to pay his taxes and was lodged in jail until a friend came along, paid his taxes and had him released. Hawthorne's greatness was in the thorough test he gave all the leading transcendental theories, working them out in his laboratory of short stories, proving many of them fallacious.

"From 1843-1846 he lived in Concord in the old manse formerly occupied by Emerson. Here he wrote 'Mosses from an Old Manse.' While filling the political position of master of ports at Salem, he gathered the material for "The Scarlet Letter" which appeared in 1850. In 1853 his close friend and classmate, President Pierce, appointed him consul at Liverpool, where he remained five years, afterward going to Italy where he gathered the material for 'The Marble Faun.'

"While he was a Puritan of New England his writings were problems, not of Puritan New England but of nineteenth century America. His characters and motives were modern. Trancendentalism at that time was only theoretical and not tried out in practice—that remained for Walt Whitman to do later. Emerson was not a watcher; his fine poem, 'So Near to God is Man' was not written until after the Civil war began but should have been written before. This was very different from Hawthorne who was a real watcher, a deep student of human nature and all his works show marvelous accuracy in his characters. Shakespeare's Macbeth has two or three strikingly accurate characters, but the remainder are very much alike. Hawthorne was about the only man in the United States who went through the Civial war absolutely neutral and impartial. We are far enough from the Civial war today to seeclearly that there was good and bad on both sides; that neither side was all devily or all angel. We are far enough to see clearly that the right causewon—to say it would have been a tragedy if the southern cause had won. Hawthorne realized that the present is the result of the past—developed from it.

"Thoreau's, Hawthorne's and Emerson's theories of transcendentalism were not especially dangerous to themselves because they kept their New England conscience. Hawthorne, was the moral critic of that creed. He was the most typical of America of all our writers. He was a novelist of restricted society —not the free and easy pioneer type. His short stories show his definite thoroughness more than his longer ones.

"Transcendentalism, through Emerson, says we rise by stepping stones of our dead selves; that experience is always a safe guide. By his short story, 'Dr. Heidegger's Experiment,' Hawthorne's characters, four venerable friends of the eccentric doctor, proved this a mistaken theory. After quaffing the magic water and returning to their youth of seventy years berore, they committed exactly the same grave wrongs, so that the doctor was made to exclaim, 'If the Fountain of Youth gushed at my very feet, I would not stoop to bathe my lips in it—no, though its delirium were for years instead of moments. Such is the lesson ye have taught me.'

"Another theory was that goodness and beauty are inseparable that they cannot be disassociated. But Hawthorne proved that beauty is sometimes very dangerous, as in his story, 'Rappaccini's Daughter,' Giovanni Guasconti, one of the handsomest young men known, was so poisoned by the angelically beautiful Beatrice, that they were both death to any living creature upon which their breath fell. Their poison was absorbed from the flower garden, unequalled in beauty, of the soulless, scientific old scholar, the father of Beatrice.

"In spite of Emersan's plea that there is no evil, Hawthorne shows that evil is real, is terrible and every act brings its own punishment. In his 'Scarlet Letter,' poor Hester afterward became purified and stronger from her error, but the Puritan rector, her partner in sin, continually drooped, finally dying of remorse; while her real husband, a scientist, good and kind, became the personification of rage and vitriolic hate.

"His 'House of Seven Gables' shows that the non-conformists miss a great deal of the real joys of life. 'The Marble Faun' points out there is not always compensation to the unpremeditated wrong-doer. The hero, a creature of instincts, so far naturally good and kind, impulsively murders a wrong-doer, only to become such a complex of evil, failure and perversion, as to be hopeless. Bringing the chief theories of transcendentalism to the acid test, Hawthorne proves that man must not be guided by his instincts and inclinations, for it is impossible to eradicate evil from this world."

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

She Might Be Your Own Little Girl But For Your Watchful Care, So Judge the Tragic Problem of This Seventeen-year-old Girl Patiently and Truthfully—A Husband Deplores His Wife's Lack of Education And Asks What To Do About It—Other Problems Presented.

Another Knotty Problem.

And now we are called upon to consider the fate of another little unborn baby. We have considered from every angle the case of the mother in impoverished circumstances who pleaded with us to tell her whether she would be serving the baby better to place it in a Christian home where there was no child but ample means, or keep it herself knowing it must suffer from want along with its sisters and brothers. I believe we all feel that the baby belongs with its mother and that she can give more to it through strength of character and sheer mother love than it would get from outsiders, however well meaning and well established.

But the problem presented today is even more difficult, more harrowing to consider.

Please be very charitable in reading the letter. Do not dismiss it with a cynical "Another modern girl gone wrong" or a shrug of disgust and contempt. It deserves more than that. Dig down deep into your hearts and answer the thing that is truth to you. She might be your own little girl, but for your watchful care and earnest training. Even with these, nature and opportunity often win. And if they had won out and it was your own baby daughter who was facing motherhood, unwed, what would you do?

Would you save the reputation of the girl by giving away the life she bore? Or would you find a way to enable her to meet the responsibilities and keep the baby she bore?

It isn't an easy problem to decide, is it?

Is a seventeen year old school girl better off forgetting her misstep? Or will she more surely save her own soul and build her own character by assuming the responsibility that is hers?

Is she capable of caring for a child? Can she, under the tragic circumstances, give the baby the mothering and training that it should have?

Is it the better way to hide from the world as best one can her misstep and let her play a while longer as a child and later find real love and happiness? Is this better than letting her face the disgrace which the world will brand her with?

Please consider this problem in all its angles and give us your opinion after reading the following letter:

Dear Minerva: Do you mind if another unfortunate girl comes to you with her troubles and asks advice?

I am seventeen, unmarried, expecting my baby soon and stand between my mother's advice and that of my sister-in-law. My mother wants me to give it away (anyplace) to protect myself. My sister-in-law says no, that the honorable thing is to keep it near and know its development. She says I have not committed an unpardonable sin, only a said mistake, but if I turn the tiny stranger out I have done far more wrong.

I am sorry for my mistake and have learned a great lesson, the lesson so many learn too late, but I'd by far rather do right by my baby than to protect myself.

My sister-in-law has three. One twelve, one ten and one will be five in February. She has promised to care for my baby and mother it with hers. My brother is willing to do whatever she wishes. They are very happy and congenialand I know love and protect my babe. I can go back to high school, get my diploma, go to work and stay with them and help care for my child. Who knows? Perhaps be married some day and have a home and my baby. At least I will know it is well and happy. Whose advice shall I take?—Expectant Mother.

A. Your are fortunate in having such an unselfish, broad-minded brother and sister-in-law. I favor their plan, though I am entirely in sympathy with your mother for her desire to protect you, and her lack of present interest in the child to come. Naturally she thinks of saving you from disgrace and has little more love for the expected baby than for its father. But I believe her attitude will change when the promised one becomes real flesh and blood. It is a difficult problem and I would like the opinions of others on it, please.

Wife Uneducated.

Dear Minerva: I have a question that bothers me a whole lot and would like to have your idea on the subject.

I was thirty-six years old and married a girl thirty-three and we have been married four years. Now what gets me is this. The girl I married was fairly good looking, hard working and had the best of character. But her education was the poorest. I liked the girl however and I love her as much as I ever did, but she always had to work hard and never had a chance to get much of an education. In fact I don't think she got out of the second grade and I thought when she said yes that I would send her to a private school or give her a course in some correspondence school and give her an education, enough, you know, to get by in public. I have known so many people to do that. But she does not like that and while I sought a course for her after she said she didn't care to go to school, but she won't study but always says she will study some other time.

Now I am awfully sorry I ever married her since she has disappointed me so in not caring to better her grammar. Her arithmetic is awful but as long as she does not try to figure in public the public doesn't know that. In fact, I have seen her fall down on such problems as to subtract 7840 from 9620.

She is a good housekeeper, has a good, clean character and loves me above all others. So what can I do? I don't want to separate from her for I promised to take care of her and I feel as a man I should do that. But oh how disappointed I am over it for it is sure awful to go to church, a show, a party or to introduce her to my friends when she does not even try to speak correctly. Please advise me.—Distracted.

A. You must realize how difficult it is for a woman past the age of thirty-three to learn the lessons which she should have learned before she was twenty, and to recognize the value of that which she has lived so many years without.

I fully endorse your ambitions for her and believe she can better herself and be very much the happier for it if she can but recognize the value of a little daily application to her studies, if she is under wise tutors, and if you will continue to be very patient with her.

If you interest some cultured woman in her case, someone who can show her the need for self betterment and gradually help her to find the most painless method of such improvement. Her lessons should be made very interesting for her individually. She can scarcely take the interest in lessons prepared for a child that the child would take. Yet she must begin at the beginning or some place very near that.

Can you not make her understand that all you ask her of her is that she try? If she will study but a short time each day she will gradually improve herself and by so doing will make you happy and strengthen the love which you have for her.

I wish I could write or talk to her personally. But since I cannot, I urge you to try to interest some woman in her, the minister's wife, your employer's wife—any educated kindly woman.

Cannot Judge by One.

Dear Minerva: The complaint of "Mack" that charity was freely distributed among undeserving families in Lincoln is a new one to me. I have always heard just the opposite but I do not give to organized charity not because I do not believe in helping the poor but because I have little faith in such organizations though no doubt there are a few of them that are conducted on the square.

Some years ago I had a friend who was bookkeeper for a so-called welfare and charity organization in a large eastern city (he is dead now) and he told me how these organizations are frequently honeycombed with graft. He said that one cold November day, a poor woman entered the office of the organization that employed him and asked for half a ton of coal. She wore a thing called dress and had no coat or wrap and her hands were blue with the cold. She said her little girl was sick with pneumonia, that she was out of work and they had no food and no fuel. The manager told her that he was very sorry for her but could do nothing for her at that time as all food had been distributed for the day and that they had no coal as yet to give away but were expecting some later despite the fact that a large coal company had donated a car load of coal to this society to be distributed among the poor several days previous. "Oh, just send me a few scuttles full please" she pleaded "My child is very sick and we are so cold." "Sorry," replied the manager, "But I told you we have no coal as yet for distribution" and she left the place crying. The woman had scarcely gone when the manager called up one of his drivers and ordered him to deliver five tons of coal to his own residence and also said: "Deliver another five tons to the residence of Secretary Blank, thus the coal that the fuel company donated in good faith for distribution among the poor went largely to fill the bins of the officers of the concern who were all drawing good salaries. My friend also told me that out of every dollar donated to that organization for charitable purposes that just eighteen cents of it (less than one-fifth) was expended upon the poor, the balance of it went for expenses of the organization, mostly salaries, and as head bookkeeper he knew what he was talking about.

The case of the woman with the sick child was only one of scores of pitiful cases that came under my friend's observation every week and after a little over two years with the concern he left its employ, as he could not endure the sight of the abject misery and the treatment accorded it that he was compelled to witness; instead of getting hardened to it, it got on his nerves and he found employment elsewhere and he said there was no need of saying anything about it as the man who formerly held his job spilled the beans with the result. An investigation was made, of course, and the officers of the organization were exonerated and the employee who had "talked too much" promptly lost his job. Furthermore, these "reformers" and "welfare" workers made it their business to follow him up and made it so hot for him that he could hardly secure or hold a situation elsewhere. Finally he had to leave town and go to another city.

Most of us know deserving poor and when we give direct we also have the satisfaction of knowing that the assistance has been properly placed and that every cent counts. Organized charity! B'ah do blah! Spring is coming. Let's wake up and hear the birds sing.—Wage.

A.—One rotten apple on the tree does not prove that the tree is unsound.

One organization steeped in graft and manned by unfeeling managers does not brand all organizations of like purposes as being similar in character.

I believe in both personal and organized charity. I believe, as you say, that almost every person knows of needy persons to whom he may effectively lend frequent a helping hand. Such personal charity not only benefits the needy person but is of the greatest broadening and humanizing value to the one rendering the aid.

But I believe also that each community needs its band of trained workers under some welfare or charitable organizations. Such organizations do not give temporary help only; they study the needs and resources of a family and endeavor to make that family permanently self supporting.

A family can easily be made into a band of professional paupers through the misguided though kindly efforts of personal givers.

In Years to Come.

Dear Minerva: I have never written to you but I surely do enjoy reading your Mail every evening.

I just want to say a few words to "Poverty."

I am a young mother of two fine healthy boys. They both go to school now. I have had a lot of worry over them when they were babies. But they are old enough now to save me lots of steps. I am going to tell you an experience I had when the smallest one was two weeks old. Some very well-to-do folks who didn't have any children of their own wanted to adopt our baby and for him they would give us their home. A very wonderful home it was too. But we told them no never. I was the one that suffered to bring him to this world and we would never part with either of our boys for any price.

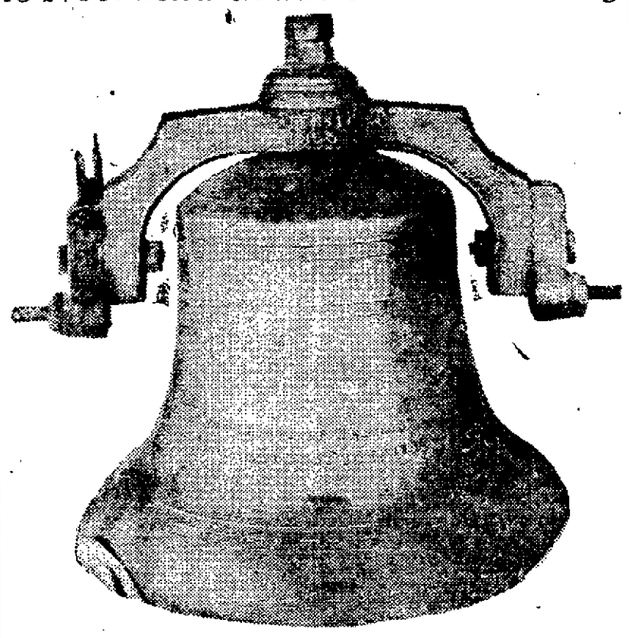

No woman can give your little darling that tender mother's love like your own, no matter how much money they have.

You may have to scrimp and save. I know we have. But we are not sorry for it now.

If you let your friend have your baby "Poverty" you may not regret it now. But you surely will in the years to come. Happy Mother of Two.

Old U Hall Bell, Now Dismantled, Will Ring Over Radio to Nebraska Grads on Charter Day

Just the sound of a bell—
Not a silvery voiced bell, nor a soft one. Rather is its voice cold and compelling.
But as it rings, the gates of memory will open wide—
And out in Seattle and down in New York—
Men and women will remember the message of the bell, the message it brought to them, as it toned above the light laughter of girls and the sharp cries of boys.
The message was not always the same, for the bell is a bell of many years. It sounded its warnings and told its tale for the boys and girls of a pioneer state, and for their grandsons and granddaughters, when their fathers and mothers had gone far from its clang and its message, but not from its memories.
But they will all remember—
Some, upon whom the years have left their mark and who move more slowly now than in the days the bell was as necessary as the boys and girls, will remember the bell as a call to class. In the days before a cock released a little spring and a little spring touched a switch, and the result whirred all over the building, the old bell was in its heyday.
In those years, it sent the young co-eds in their big, puffy sleeves and their tight little basques, and the boys in their high, stiff collars and funny little coats to class. And, more important to them, it brought them out to play again.
It told of the days of victory on the diamond and the gridiron.
It summoned the ambitious youths and maidens to class meetings and the thoughtful ones to chapel.
Others, whose years are less, are going to remember it as it sounded twice a week at 11 o'clock, releasing all for an hour of freedom.

The bell that for many years hung in the tower of U hall is now stored away in the depths of the stadium, but it is to be brought out once again for a special occasion on February 15. Although it is as old as the now wrecked tower of the first building, the bell is capable of ringing on for many years to come, provided a suitable spot can be found for it.

"Dates" Then.

Freedom—to walk slowly along by the old iron fence in the gentle spring sunshine with a 'date,' they were 'dates' in those days of the bell—to linger happily and joyfully and noisily on the library steps with kindred souls—or—if one were very, very good, time to be carried away by sweet music or moved by words of high thought.
As it sounds, the old bell sounds farther than any one even dreamed it could in the oldest of the old days—
Men and women will see—
The university campus as they knew it.
Some will see only the old red brick U hall, so changed and humiliated and wrecked from what all of Nebraska's students have known since the first once entered its doors, climbing the white stone steps, so fresh and new in those days so soon after the war—another war than the one we know, the Civil war.
Those who first climbed the steps will remember the worn paths leading to the door, and the plum bushes that grew up under the eaves, and the little cluster of one story houses and frame buildings that was Lincoln, and the waving grass of the prairies that started at the steps of the one college building and went out into the horizon, and the clean, bare rooms of the college hall, where literature, science, and art was taught to the youth of the state.
But some will see the grown school, when the sound of that bell comes to them—

The New School.

A school of a score of buildings, the old trees that the campus of a half century ago did not have, the smooth green triangle of campus grass, the brilliant flower beds, the students hurrying from one building to another, the Memorial stadium.
Al these remembrances of other days will come back, because the sound of the old university bell is to go from coast to coast, and from the border to the gulf. For years the memories of the hours it marked have been carried in the hearts of former Nebraskans, but for many its toll has been stilled for many, many years, and for all it will never sound over the campus again.
For more than half a century the bell hung above U hall, but there's only a fragment of the first university building left, and there's no place left for the bell. It's stored away now, waiting for some convenient spot to spend the remainder of its years.
Charter day, February 15, the fifty-seventh anniversary of the day on which the bill chartering the university was passed by the legislature and signed by Governor Butler, the bell is to be rung over the radio. By a means not even known when the bell was hoisted to its position on U hall, its tones are to ring out over mountains and lakes, far, far from the flat prairies over which it has looked for so many years.

55 Years' Service.

Sounding on, year in and year out, the bell has seen one meagre little building and a handful of students grow into one of the greatest universities of the west. It has watched for fifty-five years above the heads of thousands of students, but now, a thing of metal and strong, it is useless, while the first of those students are yet useful and active, well and strong.
From its position, it has seen white paved walks, straight and true, come in place of the ragged little dirt paths that led to the doors of U hall long ago.
It has seen the pale blue sky blurred and blackened by the smoke of countless factories and railroads, and it has seen the prairie pushed farther and farther away, until it can no longer see it. It has gazed upon the great yellow sunflowers growing about the campusless college, and it has seen the curious bovines come over and mingle with the college boys and girls.
It has seen the wild grasses plowed under, and the bright green sward of the campus grow in their place. As is has looked down, it has seen a grilled iron fence erected and razed, rough wooden bleachers and grandstand built and wrecked, and a huge stone pile of a stadium constructed.
From gazing down at the little space taken by the first university building, days came when it could hardly see the four corners of the campus. It has looked upon the changing campus fashions, and the changing campus youths, but it has known them always to be the state's fine boys and girls, and their fashions but inadequate outward manifestations of the same dauntless spirit beneath.
And it has felt itself proud, a useful and necessary thing, a help to the students.
And it has known itself to be less useful. Helpful, but not necessary.
And it has found itself useless. Unnecessary. Without aid.

The Bell Hung.

Fifty-five years ago this coming summer, the summer of '71, two years after the chartering of the university, the bell was hung above U hall. The bell and the frame weigh about 3000 pounds, and the bell bears the simple inscription:
"University of Nebraska Organized Feb'y 15th, 1869,"
Originally the bell hung above the north wing of U hall, but that wing was improperly constructed, and the vibration caused by the swinging of the bell was considered unsafe for the building. About 1886 or 1887, it was moved to the south side of the building. In its earlier days it was rung by a rope and hammer, and swung clear 'round, like bells on little white meeting houses.
About 1890 or 1891, the electric system of class dismissal was installed and that day ended the most of the work of the bell. No longer was it need to call the students from their dallying in the halls to the classrooms. No longer did they await its clangor to tell that that English or trig or lab was over for the day.
Progress had overtaken the faithful timekeeper.
For years after that, right through the mid-Victorian days down to the flapper era, it continued to ring on Tuesday and Thursday at 11 o'clock for the convocation period. Until two or three years ago it rang semi-weekly. But it did that no longer, even when it still retained its old position, and it can no longer.
But on Charter day, it shall sound again, taking to men and women old and young, in all parts of these United States, their memories of the old school and bringing to them the scenes of their college days.
And, if it can no longer be useful, it can be ornamental.
For about it is the radio program of Charter day laid.
And it has been chosen to be the tangible link between the grads in forty-eight states and their alma mater.

University Notes

Thomas Q. Harrison, representative of the Fellowship of Youth for Peace, is to visit several Nebraska colleges during the spring, and will probably spend several days at the University of Nebraska in March. Tentative arrangements have been made through the University Y. M. C. A., for Mr. Harrison to speak at a World Forum luncheon on Wednesday, March 17.

W. H. Morton, '12, was recently re-elected superintendent of schools at Beatrice for three years. Mr. Morton is now serving his fourth year as superintendent in that city.

Prof. Lowry C. Wimberly of the department of English had a column review of Logal Pearsall Smith's "Words and Idioms" in a recent issue of The Saturday Review, which is edited by H. S. Canby. Some of the essays of Mr. Smith's book were first printed as tracts of the British Society for Pure English.

Dr. G. A. Condra of the conservation and survey division, and Prof. C. J. Frankforter of the department of chemistry, inspected the brick plant and made some examinations at Nebraska City last week. Dr. Condra was also at Unadilla and Syracuse part of the week to re-check the soil survey in that district.

An exhibit of the work of Birger Sandzen, noted artist of Lindsburg, Kas., is to be hung in the university art gallery during February. Mr. Sandzen is head of the art department of Bethany college at Lindsbourg, and also taught at the Estes Park summer school last year. Specimens of his work appear in many of the most famous galleries both in America and Europe, and he is one of the most widely-known artists of the middlewest.

Gilbert H. Doane, university librarian, represented the University of Nebraska at the dedication of the new library building at Iowa State College at Ames on Thursday of last week. The principal addresses was given by Dr. W. O. Thompson, former president of Ohio State university, who was in Lincoln recently for the annual meetings of organized agriculture of Nebraska.

Burdette G. Lewis, '04, resigned as commissioner of institutions and agencies for New Jersey on January 1 and has become vice president and director of the J. C. Penney-Gwinn Co., in which capacity he will assist in the organization of the vocational, industrial and research work of the J. C. Penney foundation. Mr. Lewis was commissioner of institutions and agencies in New Jersey for eight years and gained recognition as one of the outstanding authorities on treatment of criminals and prison work in America. He was awarded one of the gold medals for distinguished service in prison work at the annual meeting of the national committee on prisons and prison labor at Ardsley, N. Y., last fall.

Reports of tests given to freshmen in the college of engineering during October and November have recently been sent to the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education. The tests were given under the supervision of Prof. Winifred Hyde of the department of psychology for the purpose of studying the possibilities of grading and grouping new students in such subjects as English, mathematics and physics. Similar tests were given in the department of chemistry. The report, as compiled by the college of engineering faculty, covered 47 pagese of statistics and presented the results of six tests taken by 207 freshmen. It involved the analysis of more than 60,000 items. The society will compound the results of Nebraska's tests with similar reports from several other representative engineering colleges and will, at a later time, compare these preliminary findings with the grades secured by the same men in the corresponding university courses. It is expected that a high correlation will be found between the two, which would afford proof that by means of such tests at the beginning of the school year, new students may be placed to much greater advantage than present practices afford.

Charles D. Hurrey, student Y. M. C. A. general secretary of the committee of rfiendly relations among foreign students, will visit the University of Nebraska on January 30 and 31. Arrangements are now being made for him to speak at a series of meetings and conferences sponsored by the local Y. M. C. A.

George B. Blackstone, '2, was a recent visitor at the office of Dean O. J. Ferguson of the College of Engineering. He is manager of the manufacturing division of the Western Brick & Supply Co. at Hastings.

N. C. Abbott, '18, of Nebraska City, and John A. Elwell, '14, of Springfield, were among the recent callers at the office of the University Alumni association.

Miss Anna M. Cameron, instructor in social work in the University Extension division, was in Omaha Wednesday evening to attend a meeting of Omaha aurists and oculists.

Don't Let a Double Chin Mar Your Success

Astonishing results of Dr. Folts' Soap to take off double chins, reduce hips, arms, legs, busts—proclaimed by many of New York's most beautiful actresses — La Sylphe, internationally known dancer, and Madame La Chapelle, Premier danseuse, state that they would not be without Dr. Folts' Soap.

Hundreds of fat people, now slender, are ready today to testify about the merits of Dr. Folts' Soap, as the safest, easiest and quickest way to take off fat from parts where it shows without affecting other parts. Dr. Folts' Soap is the latest and most up-to-date way to regain slenderness without the use of dangerous drugs, exercises, diets, etc. BUT, BE SURE you get the original reducing soap, called Dr. Folts' Soap, and save yourself disappointment. This soap, when used as per directions, is absorbed by the tissues, and melts away the excess fat almost under your very eyes. It is also incomparable to improve the skin and rid it of ugly pimples or eruptions, because it has a basis of antiseptic ingredients invaluable to beautify the appearance of the skin. WILL NOT LEAVE YOU FLABBY OR WRINKLED AFTER THE REDUCING HAS TAKEN PLACE. One woman wrote that one cake of soap rid her of a double chin of years' standing. Another states that with three cakes she reduced 15 inches in the hips. Another, again, used it on her legs with remarkable results. In most cases it takes two to three cakes to obtain satisfactory results. Dr. Folts' Reducing Soap always works wonders, but do not accept a cheaper imitation. Price 50 cents a cake, three for $1.20. Full directions how to use Dr. Folts' Soap come with each cake of soap. If your druggist does not carry Dr. Folts' Soap in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 B'way N.Y.C.

BY LULU MAE COE.

What are members of the boys and girls clubs thinking as they can and cook and raise baby beeves and chickens?

Are they thinking that these clubs are the end of education? Do they believe, having learned the first and simple processes of farm keeping and home tending, that they have mastered these important processes? Do they feel that they are sufficiently well equipped to put their training to immediate and practical use?

Or are they looking forward, knowing that this club training will be of value to their whole lives, and that it is well to have some theoretical training to go with the intensely practical? Do they realize that the lessons must be suited to their age, and that at best they are elementary, and that there can be wider fields of cooking and poultry raising than they have yet known? Do they remember that chemistry and physiology are related intimately to cooking, and that animal husbandry and animal pathology and rural economics open broader vistas of thought to the boys who are to be the practical farmers of tomorrow?

Many, many of the club boys and girls are pondering in the latter manner. Some have pondered in days past, and have already acquired knowledge that at one time would seem to have little or no relation to their farm lives.

The boys and guls clubs of the state arouse an interest in cattle raising and bread baking and frock making in the best possible manner. That interest is leading to interest in advanced education, particularly to interest in higher agricultural education. In the agricultural college at the university they can carry on in more technical form some of the things they have been learning in their club work.

Still a Young Institution.

Boys and guls clubs, conducted under the agricultural extension department of the university, are only 8 years old, and in the beginning they were not the perfected organizations of today. Only five years ago did they begin to assume their present form, with their present regulations.

Five years ago it became necessary to have a membership of five before a club could become affiliated with the state organization. Before that time, a boy or girl could submit his work to the extension department, but he was more or less of a "work orphan." He had no leader, as is provided for each club today, and he probably was working alone in his neighborhood, with all the consequent possibilities of disinterested work.

The agricultural college is this year noticing the influx of members from the boys and guls clubs, as this is about the first year that any number of them are of university age. The freshman class has one-third more registrants from the ranks of the boys and guls clubs this year than in any previous year. There are about seventy-five former club members registered this year, and about fifty of them are taking nearly all their work on the agricultural campus. Of that number, sixty-five are members of the 4H club, composed of former members of the boys and girls clubs.

Undoubtedly some of this number would have come for university courses without the club influence. Many boys and girls have come to the university who never heard of a club, even in the rural districts. Without doubt, many will come in the future, with no club inspiration as the immediate cause of their enrollment.

Boosting College Enrollment.

True though those facts are, it is equally true that the boys and girls clubs, as they have been organized in the last few years, have been the direct means of bringing a large number of students to the university, and particularly to the agricultural college campus. Even those in other colleges often take a course or two there. Given interest in their farm homes and farm surroundings by the clubs, which make it possible for the boys and girls to be an integral and valuable part of the farm home and the farm maintenance, they have had visions of the greater value to them of a broader education along the lines they've been studying.

One of the most prominent boys on the agricultural campus stated that he probably would have been only a hired hand today had he not been interested in university education through a boys' club of which he was a member. He has been compelled to work his way through college, but that fact, which might deter a less determined youth, could not counterbalance the eagerness for education which had been aroused in him by his club work.

Only last week another boy, a freshman, who had been in Lincoln many times and knew the university, told L. I. Frisble, director of the boys' and girls' clubs, that his club work was responsible for his enrollment in the university. Interested in farm life as he was, he at first had been content to remain there, learning its secrets through years of toil, until he saw that education was as applicable to the man on the farm as to the man in the bank.

The club leaders do not devote any of their hours to lectures on the university. It is the vision they offer to the eager, interested, intelligent, and capable boys and girls in their clubs that brings them to the university. Even more directly, through the boys and girls week, the clubs help the boys and girls, because they come here, see the university, and their imaginations are inflamed by the offerings of the school.

Each class has one or more representatives from the ranks of the former club workers, although the freshman has the largest numbers. Some of the most active members of the upper classes formerly raised baby beeves and learned to bake bread a la club fashion. Some of them have not been on the campus long enough to become prominent in its activities, but undoubtedly they will, judging from their prominence in club work.

Robert Bushnell, who comes from Hansen, was a member of a dairy calf club and of a pig club in Adams county before coming to the university, and he started his own purebred herd before coming here to study. During his club days, he represented Nebraska in judging dairy cattle at the national dairy show in Minneapolis and on the animal husbandry team represented the state at Chicago and at Atlanta, Ga. He, as county champion, was winner of a Union Pacific contest.

A senior now, he is the only sophomore who ever made the dairy judging team at the university, which is distinctly an honor when it is considered that it is a high honor to be chosen for a place on the team as an upper classman. As a member of the dairy stock judging team, he placed ninth against nearly 100 contestants from 29 or 30 states in a national contest at Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Bushnell fitted a show herd for the university, and showed them at the state fair, afterward turning it over to the state dairy association. He is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho and is a former president of the 4H club.

Now a Champion Judge.

Theodore, informally known as Ted King is the present president of the4H club, and is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho. In his club days he was an ardent pig club member, and he has been on two different dairy judging teams in college. His home is at Ord.

George Beadle, who came from Wahoo, is now an assistant in the agronomy department, and a senior in the university. Formerly he was a member of a corn club in Saunders county, and he was a member of the grain judging team that represented Nebraska at the International in Chicago last fall.

As a club member, Ruth Davis, whose home is at Syracuse, was a consistent winner in canning, cooking, and clothing clubs. Following six years of club work, she attended the school of agriculture last year, and this year is enrolled as a freshman in the university. She has been a county champion and won three or four trips to club week.

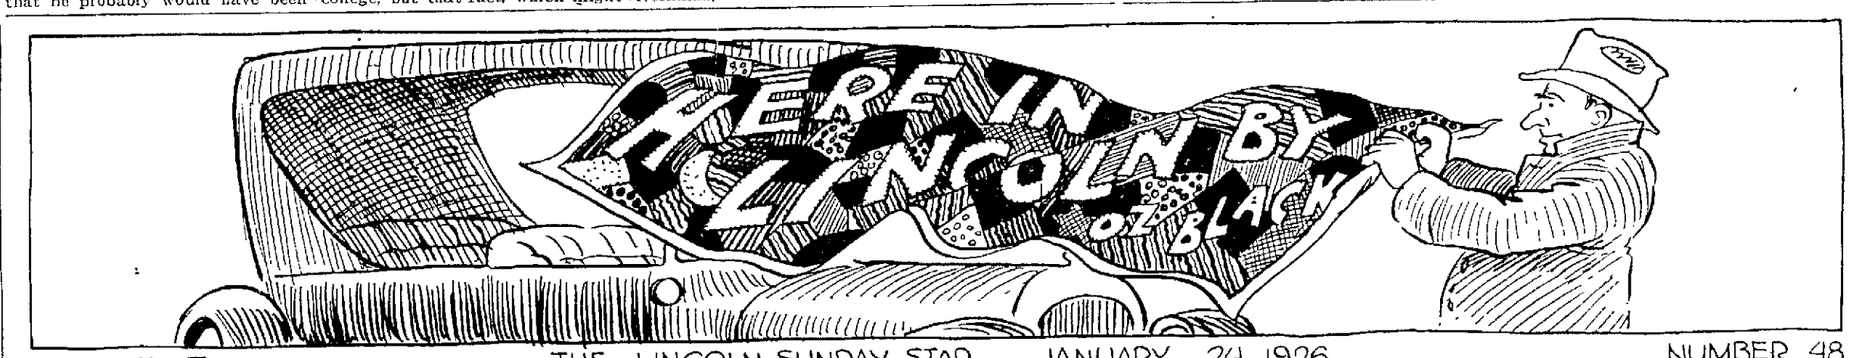

Faye Burt, another agricultural college freshman, has always been one of the most enthusiastic of club members, and later club leader. In 1921, she won a trip to the International Livestock show in Chicago. Because of the organization of her club, the women of her community around Ohiowa became interested in club work and a community organization was started. The year before her trip to Chicago she was one of two high state girls in the state canning contest at the state fair. The canners are always placed by two.

Georgia Probert has always been one of the outstanding club girls in Custer county, where her home, Sargent, is located. She has been a member of a pig and of a clothing club. She is registered in home economics at the university, as are the other girls.

Making Name For Self.

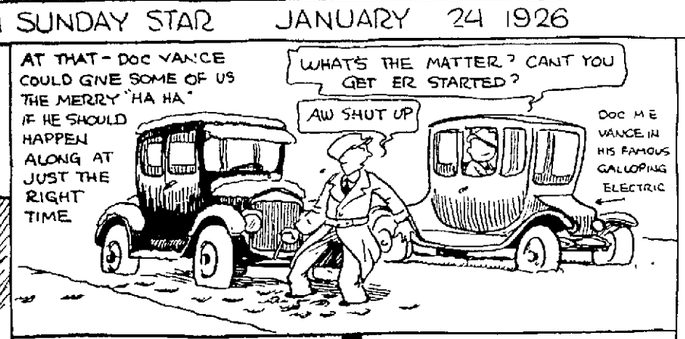

Before coming to the university, Peter Pratt of Beaver Crossing, and two other boys, Norval Clark and Walter Briggs, the oldest of the three nineteen, showed at their county fair as members of a pig club, and later at the state fair. After that, they showed at half a dozen state fairs, more than paying their expenses with the premiums. He was a member of the state

ALL READY FOR INTERNATIONAL WIRELESS WEEK

Broadcasters of American and European Nations To Co-operate.

Special Programs For Fans On Both Sides; Several New Stunts.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Complete co-operation of broadcasters of the entire world is assured for the international radio broadcasting tests, Arthur Lynch head of the test committee for International Radio week told members of a special subcommittee of radio manufacturers at a dinner at the Hotel McAlpin here.

Reports from broadcasting stations in more than fifteen countries are pouring in on the radio week committee, according to Mr. Lynch, while the three overseas representatives of the committee are busy arranging final details for the international tests.

H. A. Fraine reported on the Mexican situation, reading communications from Frank Jones of 6-KW Tuinlou, Cuba, pledging the Cuban stations support, and also a letter from M. Y. Prieto, consul general from Mexico, who reports a telegram from the president of Mexico advising that all broadcasting stations in that country would co-operate.

Co-operation of American and Canadian broadcasters was attested to by the secretary of the radio week committee who produced more than 400 signed pledge cards from broadcasters.

Wireless messages from Eric Palmer of the Eiseman Radio corporation, and Thornton Fisher, well known radio lecturer on sport topics, were presented to the committee. These messages confirmed earlier reports from overseas that programs would be of the highest and that great power would be used in transmitting.

Establishment of official listening posts located at strategic points throughout the United States was announced by Paul B. Klugh, executive chairman of the National Association of Broadcasters. These listening posts will endeavor to check up not only overseas programs, but broadcasters in the United States.

The Radio week schedule calls for broadcasting from American, Cuban, Mexican and Canadian stations between the hours 10 to 11 each night of the week of January 24, with all stations overseas silent.

Sunday between 11 and 12 western time, all broadcasters on the North American continent will be silent to permit reception of special programs broadcast by stations in England.

Monday, broadcasters on the continent will transmit special programs for American fans in the 11 to 12 hour, with British stations on the air in the same period on Tuesday.

Wednesday, January 27, between 11 and 12 eastern time, continental broadcasters will entertain the American listeners, while on Thursday, both British and continental stations will be on the air.

Broadcasters in Lima, Peru, and Buenos Aires, Argentine, will also transmit special programs for American Listeners during the 11 to 12 hour for the five nights of the test period.

Friday, a variation of the plan will be made, bringing American continent stations into the silent hour in what was termed an "American d-x" contest, by the committee secretary in his report.

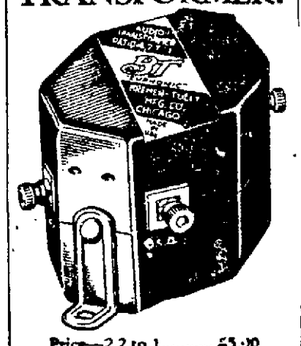

At 11 p. m. eastern time, all broadcasters in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Cuba will sign off as usual, except only stations in the Atlantic and eastern time zones, which will operate for 15 minutes, being only group on the air. At the end of that period, broadcasters in the central time zone will go on the air for 15 minutes, to be followed by mountain time stations with the Pacific coast broadcasters having the air to themselves for the last quarter of the customary silent hour.

Saturday, another variation of the silent hour scheme will be followed with Canadian broadcasters on the air for the first 15 minutes of the silent period. When these stations sign off at 11:15 eastern time, broadcasters in the northern half of the United States will come on the air for a quarter hour. At 11:30 eastern time, broadcasters in the southern half of the United States will transmit for 15 minutes while all broadcasters in the United States and Canada will be silent in the last 15 minute period while Mexican and Cuban stations entertain the listeners of the continent.

Range of Crystal Set.

The maximum range of a crystal detector in reception of broadcasting stations using up to 500 watts' power is 25 miles.

Height and Clearance of Aerial.

An aerial 40 feet above the ground and clear of all large objects is just as efficient as one erected 40 feet above the roof of a skyscraper.

Gas Pipe Bad for Ground Wire.

Never "ground" a wire to gas mains, as it is often found that gas companies have insulated bushings in the pipe line, thus eliminating the possibility of making good earth connection.

Recharging Dry Batteries.

To recharge a dry cell bore two holes one-fourth inch in diameter and three inches deep on opposite sides of the centre connection. Then fill the holes with cider vinegar and plug up with paraffin.

Drilling Hard Rubber.

When drilling hard rubber, use drills of the best high carbon steel variety. They should always be kept sharp so as to avoid burrs on the face of the panel. When sawing this material, use a hack-saw having about 24 teeth to the inch.

Loud Speaker Connections.

In connecting a loud speaker to the set it must be done with the polarity combination. The permanent magnet in the speaker has a fixed field, and the current which passes through the field coils from the set must be in the right direction; otherwise it will produce a bucking electro-magnetic field and the speaker will not function well.

Repair Equipment Essential.

To repair the various troubles and accidents that occur in the operation of the receiving set the following tools should be included in every kit: A pair of long-nosed pliers, either with or without wire cutters. Long-nose pliers are preferable inasmuch as they can reach down in remote places where a wire may be loose or a thumb nut may need tightening. A good pair of sharp wire cutters also comes in very handy when wiring a receiver. Two screwdrivers, at least, should be in the kit, one small and one large. It will be found a larger screwdriver comes in very handy when tightening screws that are hard to reach. Next there should be the electric soldering iron. An iron with a small tip is preferable and even better is one that has numerous interchangeable tips. Practically all solder work on a receiver consists of very small joints and the smaller tip will be in use almost constantly. A small hammer will often be found handy when screws are to be started. One of the most essential tools is the breast drill and a set of sharp metal drills. These drills should range in size from one-sixteenth of an inch to one-fourth of an inch. They should be maintain in a good sharp condition at all times and be free from all types of moisture so as to prevent rust. A counter-sink drill is handy. A set of good reamers and steel files will also be found useful. These files should range from the small rat tail file to the large wood file. A nail punch will be found handy when laying out the panel of a set. A small camel's-hair paint brush is very good to rid the inside of the receiver of all particles of dust. A large assortment of wood screws, small nuts, bolt and soldering lugs will also be necessary. One of the most important articles is that of a small pocket voltmeter reading up to 50 volts. This meter may be used to test the condition of the "B" and "C" batteries.

For the Notebook.

The super-heterodyne is the best receiving set yet developed.

Acid from a storage battery will eat holes in almost everything.

Dry "B" batteries have a habit of getting noisy, due to a defective cell.

A double wire aerial is best when there is an allotment of space less than 50 feet.

The best ground is obtained by burying bare copper wires directly under and parallel to the aerial.

Soft tubes contain a little gas to compensate for the lowered vacuum. Hard tubes are those with a higher vacuum, more nearly approaching a true vacuum.

Synthetic crystals can be made by melting lead shavings in a ladle and then adding folwers of sulphur. When the bass stops burning pour out and allow to coll.

Radiograms.

Of the 5,000,000 owners of radio sets in the United States, 600,000 are on farms.

A submarine can send radio messages when submerged to the depth of from 30 to 40 feet.

Joseph Fassett, owner of radio station 1AR, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, has established communication with the United States, Argentina, Bermuda, Brazil, Cuba, Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark, France, Great Britain, Greenland, Finland, Holland, Italy, Irak New Zealand, South Africa and Australia. He is a member of the maritime division of the American Radio Relay League.

Radio Set Brings to Farmer Near Bladen, Neb., the First Sounds Which He Ever Heard

(Special to The Star).

BLADEN, Neb., Jan. 23.—Radio has pierced the silence that surrounded John Wessels for thirty years. Last week the squeaky tones of a violin used in KFAB's old fiddlers' contest brought him the first sound he had heard since birth.

Wessels is a man just 30 years old, living with his father, W. U. Wessels on a farm in this vicinity.

"In the January 6 issue of The Star," the father says, "there was an article from Winnipeg, Manitoba, relating how a man who had been deaf since birth had heard a concert through radio headphones.

"After reading this account, I installed a radio to make the test with my son, who has been deaf and dumb since birth. With the machine turned on to full volume, he is able to hear and on last Friday night he listened for four hours to the old fiddlers' contest from Lincoln."

The first move which the son made as he heard the sounds was to sign with his hands:

"What instrument is that."

His face lighted up, and he stayed at the machine for hours. Every night since then, whenever weather conditions made the pastime pleasurable, he has spent hours at the radio.

The set, according to Mr. Wessels, is a 5-tube DeForrest, with head phones. It is only with the headphones that his son can hear.

There has been no change in his ability to hear since that first night. No physician has been consulted and dumb since birth. With the

University Notes

An article on "The Beet Sugar Industry of Nebraska" by Esther S. Anderson, instructor in geography, which appeared in Economic Geography for October, 1925, has recently been reprinted in pamphlet form. Her report on labor conditions in the beet fields is of especial interest in view of the recent discussion of the problem in connection with the proposed child labor amendment. She writes: "The Mexican laborers are becoming more numerous, replacing the German-Russians who are decreasing in numbers due to their renting or buying farms or entering other lines of work. This has a tendency to decrease the number of miners employed in the fields because, generally speaking, the Mexicans do not have as many children in their families as do the Russians . . . The children who work in the beet fields are generally well treated, fed, and clothed. They live out of doors and the exercise generally does not injure them. There is much difference in the child labor of the beet districts as compared with the child labor of the larger factories where they are often confined to poorly ventilated and lighted quarters and have but one or two things to do continuously. The children generally have a rest period from 10:30 a. m. until about 2:30 p. m., the warmest part of the day."

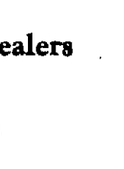

Dr. G. E. Barbour of the department of geology spoke last Thursday morning at a college of agriculture convocation on "Fossils of Nebraska." He spoke Saturday on "Morrill hall" at a meeting of the Lincoln Professional Mens club, and will lecture to a girl's organization at the Jewish temple at 11:30 Sunday morning on Nebraska fossils and the new museum.

Miss Margaret Fedde, professor of home economics, spoke before the Woman's club at Fairbury on Tuesday, January 12, and will lecture at Beatrice on Monday, February 1.

According to Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless and father of the radio, this year may witness development of "television"—pictures of wireless, whereby the people of England and the United States may see simultaneously events all over the world.

AMERICA—HER VIRTUES AND VICES.

Herbert Askwith, the editor of The World Review, recently propounded two questions to fifteen distinguished Americans, seeking to determine in this fashion what were the predominant virtues and vices of this country.

The questions submitted were:

1—What is our best American trait—in other words, what is the most hopeful feature of American civilization—the most promising aspect of American life?

2—What is the least redeeming feature of American life—the one we should be most ashamed of, and the one we should make a determined effort to correct?

Included in the list of those to whom the questions were sent were Luther Burbank, the horticulturist; Henry Van Dyke, author, clergyman and diplomat; Glenn Frank, editor and educator; Lorado Taft, sculptor; David Starr Jordan, university president, biologist, world peace advocate; William Allen White, editor; Edgar Lee Masters, poet and novelist; Hendrik Willem Van Loon, historian, author; Agnes Repplier, essayist; S. Parkes Cadman, preacher; Fanny Hurst, author; William MacAndrew, superintendent Chicago schools; Edward W. Bok, editor, and Cass Gilbert, architect. It is to be regretted that Mr. Askwith did not see fit to include a number of the more distinguished industrial, business and commercial leaders of America.

From this symposium of opinions, American virtues and vices have been set forth in the following fashion:

VIRTUES	VICES.
Tolerance	Jazz mode of thought and action
Ability to grasp opportunity.	Wasted, misapplied energy.
Intelligent discontent	Fussing more for tobacco than education.
Enthusiasm for living to the limit.	Boastful self-confidence.
Energy mixed with courage.	Intolerance of dissent
Recognition of "bunk"	Pride of ignorance
Good will.	Jealousy and selfishness.
Generosity	Self-complacency mixed with imperfect information.
Socially directed intelligence.	Indifference to liberty.
Getting away from unreality.	Submission to tyrannous regimentations
Hopefulness in social life	Failure to understand "bunk"
Superabundance of vitality.	Excess of law-making
Opportunity to each and all.	Excessive luxury and self-indulgence
Generous broad philanthropy.	Lawlessness-flabby attitude of public opinion towards criminals.
Development of arts and culture	Materialism.
Increase of good sportsmanship.	Lack of thoroughness.
Passionate idealism.

That is far from a hopeful picture of America today.

It is questionable whether it is a fair or truthful inventory of our virtues and our vices. If the balance were struck, it is doubtful if the verdict could be otherwise than in the negative. It is questionable whether that which has happened justifies this result.

No nation can be truthfully appraised for a given term of years. The record of a people through their entire tortuous path of progress and decay must speak for itself. Civilizations have risen and have disappeared from the face of the earth leaving only a slight trace in influencing the thought and the lives of those future peoples who follow. It took more than a thousand years of constant, bloody struggle to implant the spirit of freedom in the minds of men. Back in the early days of English history was the beginning of that contest which was to find fruition in the establishment of the America of today.

Is it unpatriotic and unappreciative to suggest that the seed for the bright flower of American achievement and progress was planted by other men living in other ages than ours?

It has been the responsibility of the people of this country to bring this flower to its full glory without pollution. It is still too early to determine how well we have succeeded. In some respects we have come through most remarkably and we can take pride and comfort in that knowledge. No civilization has ever lived so well as the people of America. No nation has ever wrested such a large measure of immunity from poverty. No nation, with such a large opportunity for individual corruption of spirit and mind and body, has ever succeeded in keeping its life so clean from these contaminating currents of destruction as America. No nation ever made larger or more general use of the natural wealth and resources which God placed on this earth because other peoples permitted only a comparative few to bask in their golden radiance.

Because the individual has been so splendidly glorified in this America of the last 150 years, world thought and world habits of living have undergone tremendous transformations. The individualistic view has characterized our business, industrial and commercial methods. It has fashioned our social habits. Even in our religious thought it has supplied the warm current of vitality.

All other criticisms of American life sink into oblivion in comparison to this suggestion that we are becoming indifferent to the sacred blessings of liberty. Most of our other vices have their roots implanted in this menacing soil. Intolerance, ignorance, excessive law-making, lawlessness, and self-complacency can all be traced directly to the failure of the American people to recognize the importance of the individual in the scheme of government.

A thoughtful citizen of this community, in friendly conversation, expressed thankfulness that he had lived in the fifty years preceding 1914, rather than to continue to live during the half century following the war. He had seen government subverted from the original purposes for which it was created in this country. He had seen it take on the coat of paternalism; had witnessed the amazing mad craze of its citizens to settle everything by passing "laws;" had with sorrow marked the tendency to make thought and action and living conform to a mass standard. His heart was heavy because the individual had been so largely stripped of action, of independent thought and speech. Will the thinking citizens of this country take note of where the trail is leading us? Its influence is not restricted to those matters of a strictly governmental consideration, because, after all, government determines the life habits of those who comprise its citizenship. Crush freedom at the behest of legislation of a paternalistic nature and you strangle individual initiative and genius. You rob America of its greatest driving force—the greatest incentive and inspiration ever given into the care and keeping of any people of any age.

We still see this land of ours in the glorious lights of the past. Its material progress and achievements confound human experience. Its generosity, its cleanness, its essential sense of fairness and justice stand out in magnificent relief against the sum total of civilizations which have flourished and died. Its flaming idealism, dormant now because we are so rich that we do not face the grim emergency of suffering and sacrifice and misery, has lighted every corner of the globe. We still see this country more tolerant than others, more charitable, more intelligent and energetic. May we never see the day when the one blessing which has been largely responsible for these virtues shall cease to exist because of our folly for a nation moulded by man-made laws.

INDUSTRIALIZING AGRICULTURE.

Industrialization of the farm is the remedy proposed by Delmar F. Hubbell, a writer in the New York Herald Tribune, for the ills that now beset agriculture in many parts of the country. Mr. Hubbell says that industry has conformed to economic law, while agriculture has failed to do so and it is in consequence 100 years behind industry.

In the first place, it is declared, the manner of farm financing would be called dangerous and unsound if resorted to in industry, for it consists of mortgages and bank loans on a creditor basis. In industry, on the other hand, public participation is through the sale of stock, which gives widespread partnership, with sufficient capital for development and expansion and the consequent lowering of cost.

Mr. Hubbell advocates the consolidation of farms on a large scale, say 100 units where one now exists, the owners retaining interest through stock, the whole managed by one highly capable farmer, with nine fairly capable ones as directors. For these hundred farms purchased and sales could be consolidated, resources pooled, unfertile soil eliminated, out of date machinery done away with and useless buildings abandoned. There would be an end of the present endless, futile duplication of effort and inevitably there would be a lowering of the cost of production. In this connection it is stated that if it became necessary to organize the cereal growers of the country into some effective selling unit it would be far easier to organize them if there were 100 managers than if there were 10,000 farmers.

It is recalled that 150 years ago the craftsman put up a strenuous fight against factory production and it is stated that the farmer now makes the same objection to consolidation. He is reminded, however, that ownership of land may be represented by a stock certificate as well as by a deed and that his share of profit may be larger as a dividend than as the annual surplus of his own acreage. It is the small, hardup farmer, who must dump his product, who causes the depression in prices and the frequent crises, it is declared, and farming on the industrial basis is pointed to as the remedy.

Co-operative marketing is being developed rapidly in this country and is having much to do with bettering the condition of the producer. Perhaps Mr. Hubbell is right and that consolidation and corporate control from start to finish would be even more effective. The fact that it does away with individual initiative, as well as personal management and interest, however, is certain to put a damper on his suggestion, at least for a considerable time to come.

LINCOLN HEADS THE LIST.

Only one city in fifteen central western states showed a greater percentage of gain than Lincoln in 1925, according to figures prepared by S. W. Straus & Co., bankers. The Nebraska capital city experienced a greater proportionate development in the twelve months which recently came to a close than any of the flourishing cities in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Iowa, Kansas, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Colorado, Oklahoma, South Dakota or Wisconsin.

The only city to record a greater gain in building activity in all of this vast central west was Fargo, N. D. But Fargo had building permits aggregating $1,314,005 in 1925, an increase of 149.87 per cent against a total of over $7,000,000 of permits in Lincoln in 1925, an increase of 122.42 per cent. In 1924 the Fargo building permits totalled $525,881 while in Lincoln construction activities called for the expenditure of $3,149,802.

In Wisconsin, Madison and Racine reflected gains of 20.64 and 21.93 per cent while Kenosha and Milwaukee each showed a loss. Sioux Falls in South Dakota gained 51.49 per cent, Tulsa gained 25.51 per cent over 1924 while Oklahoma City showed a decrease of 16.13 per cent. In Ohio, Akron, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Toledo and Youngstown each reported gains, Akron the highest with 64.13 per cent but Canton and Lakewood reported losses. Omaha building was 19.02 per cent greater in 1925 than in 1924 but while the volume was four times larger in 1924 it was but twice as large in 1925. Denver, Kansas City, Kas., Des Moines, Sioux City, Duluth, Fort Wayne, Indianapolis and Flint had losses ranging from 1 to 33 per cent. Kansas City, Mo., and St. Louis showed increases of 75.55 and 37.77 per cent.

Of the forty-four larger cities of this section of America, ranging in population from 25,000 to over 2,000,000 of people, Lincoln made more real progress than any other metropolitan center. It is a record which should arouse the pride of the people of this community. The explanation of this remarkable growth is simple enough. Lincoln is the center of a farming area of unrivalled richness in any part of the United States. It has advantages to attract home-lovers which few communities can offer.

SALARIES OF JUDGES.

Charles Evans Hughes and John W. Davis should know as much about American courts as any two men in America. Both of them occupy distinguished positions in the legal profession. Mr. Hughes was recognized as a great lawyer before he served as a member of the United States supreme court. Mr. Davis has won equally deserved honors among the bar of this country. So when Mr. Hughes and Mr. Davis appear before the House Judiciary committee in support of a bill to increase the pay of all judges in all federal courts, their opinions call for the most respectful attention.

Former Justice Hughes dropped his habitual reserve and calmness in pleading for a better-paid judiciary. He said that under present conditions, lawyers of real ability could not be attracted to the bench. Mr. Davis was equally critical. If present salaries are to continue, he suggested, judges should be required to take "the oath of celibacy so as not to expose their dependents to the hardships of poverty."

Higher salaries probably are needed in order to enlist the services of the finest lawyers of this country. Men of splendid attainments and large earning capacity but lacking large private fortunes cannot be expected to sacrifice themselves for positions which do not pay a sufficient salary to enable them to maintain their families in fitting style. But the judiciary is not the sole victim of this situation: It extends to all branches of public service. It has long been recognized and accepted that the people cannot afford to compete with private enterprise in bidding for the services of the most brilliant and the most capable men. When they are lured into public service it is recognized that many of them are actuated by the motive of attempting to settle in part the debt which they owe government. They desire to spend a portion of their lives in other than selfish service and so they offer their talents to their country.

Nor will higher salaries and more competent judges undo the mess which law has gotten into. The remedy calls for more drastic action. Simplification of procedure and a higher conception of public responsibility on the part of the legal profession—these are the steps which will do more to reinstate confidence in the courts than hiking the salaries of the men who sit on the bench.

Present price tendencies may give rise to this headline: "Fortunes united. The groom is the sole owner of a lump of hard coal and the father of the bride recently bought a two-thirds interest in a potato."

What America Needs Is Better Putters

BY WILL ROGERS.

"There was many hands layed on me."

All I know is just what I read in the papers. Now I have heard a lot about golf in the papers, especially the last few years a terrible lot, but do you know, as old as I am, I never had seen anybody play it. I had lived last summer down on Long Island, right next to the Wheatley Hills Golf Course, and I have often looked over there and seen people walking around following a boy carrying a gunny sack full of bats, and they were always changing. They never seemed able to make up their minds just which bat to use constantly. Well, knowing nothing about the game myself, I naturally never thought they were playing. I thought they were just walking around practicing.

I had a little polo field on the place, where I used to work my horses and practice hitting the ball. I would get out there and do that for hours but I knew no one would ever be foolish enough to think I was playing a game of polo. They would just know that I was loping around practicing, because when I would hit the ball and knock it some place there was no one there to try and take it away from me or knock it out of my reach, so I knew that no one was concerned. So I knew that they knew that I was practicing for a game, and I seeing them walking around alone sometime off to themselves, I knew they were just practicing for a game of golf.

So the other day out here in California, right at Los Angeles Country club, I had read a lot in the papers that they were going to have one of the biggest professional golf tournaments that had ever been held. They were giving $10,000 in real (not movie) money in prizes. Well, I had seen pictures in the papers for weeks about this and that professional golfer who was coming to compete. I saw Joe Kirkwood, a brother-in-law of Lila Lee (the movie star), was to be one of the main ones. It said he could do more tricks with a golf ball than the senate can with the constitution of the United States.

Then I read about a fellow named "Wild Bill Melhorn.' I thought there must be a reckless, wild, cutting, slashing, go-get-'em kid type of golf player. I read of Al Espinosa (of the rugged Spanish type). I pictured him in my mind as a man that carried a long dirk (or bowie knife) and maybe just cut a golf ball in half with one shot and knocking half of it in one hole and half in the other.

Now this club where they was going to play was almost right under my nose from my own house in Beverly Hills. We live just near enough to the golf club so the real estate man explained to us that we were exclusive, and we have been. We have never been off the place. Well, as I say, the other day they had this tournament there. Well, I don't care how exclusive a place is when they give away $10,000 bucks you will always find that the ones excluded will pay for it. Well, I says to myself one day here is where I am going to see a game of golf. I have seen most every kind of game there is that I know of but golf. I have seen most of the world series of the last few years and the international polo games. Two weeks ago right here I saw Alabama reverse the decision of the civil war in Washington. Seen the Army and Navy games from so close I could smell the goat. Can even remember back when I was a boy, when Jack Dempsey fought to retain the championship. Saw

NEW LIGHT FROM NEW MINDS

When You Want to Learn Something, Ask Those Who Don't Know—A Simple Idea Which Should Have Been Thought of Before

The Copper King measured the contents of the Bodleian Library at Oxford—"Mostly books?", he said.

Until recently, travelers, distinguished visitors and political emissaries, were in the habit of talking each about his own particular line of life and the things about which he was supposed to know something. A director of the Bank of England would give out an interview about currency, an actor about the stage and a manufacturer about cost plus. As a consequence every one of them got prosy and unintelligible.

It seems to me that the thing could best be done in exactly the other way. Let each distinguished visitor be asked questions about something that is outside of his line of life. A vaudeville comedian could give his impression of French politics and an English scientist his views of women's skirts.

The result would lend a freshness and a charm to interviews on both sides of the Atlantic.

BALL PLAYER VISITS ST. PAUL'S.

LONDON, Friday—Ed Lanigan, star outfielder and manager of the Tuscaloosa baseball nine, passed through London this morning and expressed himself delighted with it. After he had had a run round town Ed gave his views, at the Hotel Cecil, to a crowd of assembled admirers on some of the things he had seen.

"What did you think of St Paul's Ed?" asked one of the boys.

"It's certainly big stuff," said Ed, "and it gets me. Those old guys certainly knew how to build. And I want to tell you boys right now that there's something about that building that you don't get every day. I doubt if there are a dozen men in New York today who could duplicate it."

"How does the political situation in England strike you?" he was next queried.

"They've sure got a lot of taxes here. But then mind you there's lot of wealth too. Of course things are pretty bad, but you've got to remember they were bad before, and anyway, they're not so bad."

MOVIE STAR SEES RIVIERA.

Gus Phinn, the well-known movie star, who is said to command a salary of anywhere from a half million dollars, was a recent visitor at Mentone. Gus is enthusiastic over the Mediterranean sea.

"I want to tell you right now," he said today, "that there is absolutely nothing wrong with the Mediterranean."

"What did you specially notice about it, Gus?" I asked as interviewer.

"Why, what gets me hardest is the color of the water. Say, I don't think you can beat that blue anywhere. You might try, but you can't do it."

"Do you think," I inquired, "that the tone of English social life is deteriorating?"

"No, I don't," Gus replied. "I think the tone is good. I think it A-1."

"What about the relations of England and France, Gus?" was another question.

"They're all right," the star answered. "We met a lot of French boys on the boat, and certainly nicer boys you wouldn't want to meet. Well, they're gentlemen.

Passing Up Opportunities.

Helvey, Neb., Jan. 22, 1926.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: If you will allow me a little space, I would like to say a few words in regard to your editorial of January 19, in regard to your Cozad, Neb., farmer, who cleared $10,000 for seven years off a 160-acre farm that he bought seven years ago for $14,000. He had to sell an 80-acre farm for $8,000 with a mortgage of $3,000 and his personal property for $2,000 to buy this farm. His having cleared $10,000 and over for seven years, he must have been in debt at least $7,000 when he bought it. Besides he must have bought all his personal property on time, as you stated he sold them when he bought this gold mine.

So he must have been in debt at least $7,000 on the farm and $2,000 for implements and horses and a cow and pigs. I will admit that a farmer on an irrigated farm can raise a crop almost every year, while the rest of us raise a crop every other year. Very little corn goes 60 bushels to an acre on up ground, and it is a very good thing that it doesn't. As all the big men say, there is an over production right now. What would it be if we all raised crops as this farmer at Cozad, Neb. Corn would not be worth 10 cents per bushel, so that would not help much. What I am surprised at more than anything, is that this farmer at Cozad would buy a farm mortgage of $10,000 every year that only draws 5 or 5½ per cent interest, which would not be over $550 a year, when he is making $10,000 on a $14,000 investment, which would be over 70 per cent. Is he afraid that the banks at Cozad will not hold all the money?

If this were me, I would buy more land and take the 70 per cent and not fool with any more farm loans that draw only 5 and 5½ per cent interest.

I wonder why the Hon. Governor of Nebraska does not send this man to Washington to see the president. He could tell him what is the matter with the farmer.

AUGUST ROLL.

To Commissioner Duncan.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 22, 1926.

To the editor of the Lincoln Star: I am wondering why all the money was spent on the new street numbers throughout our city? One can drive from one end of the city to the other and they will not be able to read more than half a dozen street names on the curb.

The writer had occasion not long ago to look for a certain street at night. He drove to the spot he thought should be the street and started looking for the name, but the snow had concealed it and alas even though it was cold it could not be dug out enough to see. The

Discoveries In Humans

Late A. J. Cassatt Discovered W. W. Atterbury Through Freight Tei-Up After Coal Strike.

"We want you to become general manager of the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie."

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

In 1902 the vast transportation system which is the Pennsylvania railroad was caught in a paralyzing tie-up.

Unprecedented trade activities had taxed its carrying facilities to the utmost. Then, with every wheel turning, came a great coal strike.

In no time at all a pile-up ensued which reached a state of congestion in the Pittsburgh district that seemed well-night hopeless.

The late A. J. Cassatt, then president of the Pennsylvania, wasted no time. He boarded his private car and set out from Philadelphia for Pittsburgh.

The first move was to declare an embargo — an embargo so harsh that not a pound of freight could be dispatched from a single station along the line. And no promise was made as to when deliveries would be resumed.

At Altoona, Pa., President Cassatt paused a moment in his westward flight. Altoona is the motive power center of the Pennsylvania, the very heart of the system. There the executive sent for the general superintendent of motive power.

"Get aboard," he said. "I want you to go out to Pittsburgh and help me straighten out this tangle."

William Wallace Atterbury was the name of the general superintendent of motive power. He was thirty-six years old, lean, tall, keen, direct looking, all action but no pretence.

Was College Man.

Unlike many men who have risen to power in the world of transportation he was a college man, a scientific graduate of Yale, 1886, who, thus equipped, had entered the employ of the Pennsylvania as a special apprentice in the Altoona shops a few months after graduation and had slowly climbed in the service until he had reached his general superintendency.

Motive power was his specialty, as distinguished from the other branches of railway service—operation and maintenance of way. In the present crisis, where the problem was largely one of operation, he presumably would play a

BASIC FACTORS IN WOODS BROTHERS' BUSINESS GROWTH

FRANK D. TOMSON.

This I have observed during the past 15 years that I have been a part of the Woods Brothers Corporation—the desire on the part of the Woods Brothers to encourage permanency on the part of their people and to see them prosper and I have noted that those who have kept their investment with the Company have prospered to greater extent than those who have disposed of their holdings and invested their money elsewhere. This applies also to stockholders who are not personally identified with the organization.

I have noted all along that Woods Brothers feel an interest in the welfare of their patrons. This has been clearly demonstrated by the policy which they have long pursued. I have noted that people seem to like to do business with Woods Brothers. That is a large factor in building business. I do not mean to suggest that every patron during the 30 odd years that the Woods Brothers have been doing business has been 100% satisfied, but I believe that the proportion of satisfied customers is so large as to be phenomenal. When you stop to think of the many thousands of transactions involving city real estate that the Woods Brothers have had, with the absence of litigation, through all these years you can't fail to recognize that a liberal policy has been followed by the company. That means satisfaction on the part of the patrons. It builds business. It indicates profitable investment on the part of patrons. It strengthens the Woods Brothers organization.

Human nature is such that it would be inevitable that opposition here and there would develop among competitors and others of a pessimistic turn of mind, yet I believe it is fair to say that more than 95% of the people in Lincoln and elsewhere in the territories where the Woods Brothers Corporation operates are boosters, to use a current expression, for the Woods Brothers interests. I believe that is a fair conclusion to state, and who could desire anything more encouraging than that?

One thing I have observed all along is the determination on the part of the management here to protect the stockholders against unnecessary expenditure, against high salaries, against any movement involving an outlay of money that didn't offer promise of being a good investment. The management has safeguarded the Corporation by a diversified activity some of which will be running strong while others may be lagging. The practice has been to apply the energy and operating expense to those lines that were making the returns, and apply minimum amount of effort and expense to those that may be moving at slower pace. There is constant changing of movement in nearly all lines of business and it is a wise policy to avoid pouring money into an enterprise that has to move against a strong current, while on the other hand, the ones that move with the current justify expenditure of both money and effort.

Looking back through 30 odd years in which there have been various periods of financial depression—panics in fact—yet observing that through all these years, whether times were good or bad, the dividends to the stockholders have been paid regularly and promptly, one is inclined to have a growing confidence in the Woods Brothers Companies. It is justified. I have witnessed the investment in the stock of this Corporation made by various business men outside of Lincoln, in Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Burlington, Denver, Pittsburgh, New York City, and other places. Men who stand very high in business and financial circles. The very fact that these men have made these investments is evidence of their confidence in the stability, the practices and prospects of the Woods Brothers Corporation and everyone of these men becomes an asset because his personality, his standing, his connections strengthens the Woods Brothers Corporation. The services of all of these men are available at any time. Their influence is always at the command of the management here. That's of incomparable value. The fact that it exists is one of the finest compliments that could be paid to the enterprise and record of the Woods Brothers

It is a remarkable fact that this company should have grown up with its nation wide contact here in Lincoln and from a beginning in which neither capital nor experience were involved. The assets then consisted of youth, optimism, confidence in their fellows, diligence, and a marked degree of business intelligence and integrity. It starts this year, 1926, in its construction department with contracts in hand in excess of $4,000,000 and with a prospect of securing as much more within the year. The assets of the Corporation, as shown by appraisal, are now in excess of $11,000,000.00. It is a growing business. There is no limit apparently to its growth. We closed a great year December 31st yet it is evident that we are moving into a much greater year both as to volume and as to profits.

I have observed that we pay in preferred dividends some $62,000 to our stockholders each quarter and that most of it, aside from that paid to the Woods family and a few others, goes out of Lincoln. I could wish that this amount were distributed among our neighbors here. It would make a difference in Lincoln.

Since Redlands, California, began its outdoor community sings in July, 1924, the attendance has been over one hundred thousand people, holding two meetings a week during the summer. Continuing this work through the winter one concert a week was given; these performances taking place in the auditorium. Under the supervision of the Redlands Community Music association, this locality has successfully continued regular sings under the able direction of Hugo Kirchofer.

In conjunction with the singing of the people, the community orchestra, directed by Carl Kuehne, not only accompanies the large vocal ensemble but is placed upon the program as rendering orchestral numbers, performing the works of Tschaikowsky, Dvorak, and Offenbach. On other programs given by the association, are listed vocal and instrumental soloists. No admission is charged to these concerts. Only a free will offering is collected to assist the association in financing this work. In this simple way, over fourteen thousand dollars has been raised since 1924. This generous contribution is proof of the genuine enthusiasm, sincere pleasure and the community spirit of which the Redlands has every reason to be proud.

The Community association has also put into effect an organized community body, the members paying from one dollar up to any amount as yearly dues and the list of these members has grown into enormous proportions. The manner in which Redlands' population enters into mass singing is really enviable and cannot help but have the highest respect and admiration of other localities. Redlands has demonstrated the power of music —its influence and value—and from this music by its people this city deserves to be looked upon as an exceptional example of of genuine community accomplishments.

Arthur Mason, the well-known English writer on musical subjects has found great interest in what America is doing in municipal music. He calls England to attention in his lengthy review of the volume entitled "Municipal Aid to Music in America," recently issued by the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, New York. In the publication he finds information of special interest to England, where the question of whether music should have the financial support of municipalities is often in debate. In admitting that even though America has not yet achieved a complete success in this movement, he says, "but the last thing an American organization thinks of doing is to sit with folded arms in the face of disappointment, and the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music is already active in measures likely to improve the situation. One thing is fairly certain—municipal support for music, in one or another of the possible forms of such support, can make all the difference to the music of our towns. And by so doing it can make all the difference to the life of the people.

Band masters of the army have recently formed an organization known as the Bandmaster's association of the Armies of the United States and at the request of this association, Representative Burdick, of Rhode Island, has introduced a bill into the house for improved conditions for the musicians existing in the army. This bill will not only make the bandmaster a commissioned officer but also increases the pay of the musicians of the band. Bandmasters complain of the difficulty they have in retaining a hard worked-for standard. Musician soldiers are so poorly paid compared to civilian musicians that they do not care to reenlist since they can receive a much greater salary outside of the army. They leave the army band with benefits derived from training and experience and it is said to be hard to keep good musicians to any extent.

This association feels that the establishing of a musicians' bureau is the war department should tend toward better administration of army band matters. The bill also authorizes the organization of bands as separate units. Many American officers have written their endorsement of this bill. General support is assured by army bandsmen and National Guard leaders and musicians and at its recent convention the American legion passed a resolution supporting the legislation.

H. L. Mencken in the January number of the American Mercury gives a very strong and definite opinion as to the opera in English:

"Nothing could be more provincial and absurd than the current demand that opera drop its born umlauts and accents and acquire, for the greater delectation of the Anglo-Saxon an English speech. Opera in English is, in the main, just about as sensible a plea as baseball in Italian. The opera is not Anglo-Saxon art form and to attempt arbitrarily, for patriotic reasons, to make it one is akin to Germanizing Georgian architecture or Frenchifying American jazz. The notion that you can get, say, French opera in English by the simple task of translating, for example, 'Les Huguenots' into English is like the notion that you can get American comedy in French by translating George Ade's 'College Widow' into French and having the football team wear the Sorbonne colors. What results, obviously, is a hybrid, as unpersuasive and unconvincing as an Englishman talking American slang or a German wearing an English monocle. The notion, further, that the way to get opera in English to have the librettos written by English-speaking artists is a good notion so far as it goes, but an equally good notion is to have English-speaking artists first write music as good as Wagner's, Mozart's or even Meyerbeer's."

The viola, which antelates the violin, and in all probability the cello also, has been the last of the stringed instruments to enter into its own domain, but appears not to be at the beginning of a new phase fo its existence, both as regards public interest and appreciation of its peculiar qualities, and a deeper attention and more intensive study on the part of professional musician. The retardations of its development may be attributed in part to the lack of any true, normal form of construction for the viola, which has varied in size from an instrument almost equal to the cello to one but little larger than the violin. With the birth of new ideas of art, entitled "Impressionism," which overflows all systems, all rules of harmony, transforming tendencies refining emotions, and rendering the perceptive faculties more acute, the role of the viola has become more preponderant and a new era of development as a factor of tonal art seems to be at hand.

The viola has a fine, literature, too, and the very recent compositions for the instrument are works of great importance and beauty as well as of extreme difficulty.

In addition to financing the State theaters, the Austrian government has this year extended its educational activities to the concert field. A cycle of orchestral concerts is being given under the motto "German Music from Bach to Pfitzner," illustrating the evolution of German music from the classics up to our time. Many first-lass soloists have been engaged. These concerts are given at very low prices for the benefit of the Viennese school boys and school girls.

Mae Murray Gives Up German Experiment As 'Merry Widow' Pronounced Howling Success

'Twas thought Gloria was working on her last picture for Paramount, and that she was going at once into the United Artists fold. Comes word now that her next Paramount number is to be "Fine Manners," with Eugene O'Brien playing opposite. Work is to start on it as soon as possible after the completion of "The Untamed Lady."

If reports be true Mae Murray isn't going to stay in Germany and make fillums for UFA. Mae made such a hit in "The Merry Widow" that she's coming home again and make another right away quick. Her German trip concerned her UFA contract and it seems she has been able to secure a release.

Probably the most important contract of the week is that of Renee Adore, whose remarkable work in "The Big Parade," established her as one of the leading actresses of the year. She's in "The Black Bird" now with Lon Chaney and doing equally effective characterization. Three years ago she came from France practically unknown.

Michael Arlen has left Hollywood for dear old Lumnon. Per schedule, his first remark was to deny his engagement to Pola Negri. "A nice girl, Pola," says he. But not for him evidently.

After a rest of six months Norma Talmadge has just launched one of her most ambitious and costliest production. "Kiki" has Norma for the lead, and Ronald Colman as leading man. Does that sound good to you? Clarence Brown, a new director as far as Norma is concerned is the man behind the megaphone. He directed "The Eagle" for Rudy with more or less success.

Norma Long Idle.

Connie has been idle long with Norma. She has been in search of an author and of a story ever since it was decided to postpone the production of "East of the Setting Sun" until later in the spring. It might be that Connie will never appear in the von Stroheim special. Marion Davies is making "Beverly of Graustark" and Norma has already done "Graustark." At any rate she's scheduled for "Silky Anne," an original story.

Some of the pictures now in production are "Battling Butler," with Buster Keaton, "The Brown Derby," with Johnny Hines, "Bachelor Brides," a DeMille offering, starring Rod La Rocque, "Desert Gold," having Shirley Mason, of whom we've seen little lately, and "Don Juan," with Jawn Barrymore. A few of the others being ground out are "Desperate Game," with Jack Hoxie, "Eve Leaves," with the lovely Leatri's "Good Luck," having the ever popular Tearle for the lead, "The Honeymoon Express," with Patsy Ruth Miller, and "Heirs Apparent," with Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes.

On the stages in other studios are "Infatuation," with the languid but gorgeous Corinne Griffith, "Let's Get Married," with Richard Dix, "The Old Soak," Don Marquis' number featuring Jean Hersholt, "The Prince of Pilsen," with another returned old timer, Anita Stewart, "So This is Mexico," having Richard Talmadge and his thrills, and "The Sky Skidder," with Malcolm MacGregor.

Metropolitan has a feature cast working in "Shipwrecked." Metro is starring Lillian Gish in "The Scarlet Letter," and Universal is putting out "The Tuneful Tornado" for Art Acord. "The Test of Donald Norton"—a terrible title—is being used by Chadwick for George Walsh "The Temptress" has a Metro feature cast, and Gloria is completing "Untamed."

Motion pictures are being broadcast! True enough. From an impromptu radio in the Hotel Astor in New York, the company of players restaged the picture, "Too Much Money," a First National release, before a microphone and sent the drama on broadcast through a loud speaker. This was but an experiment before a dinner audience, but each Thursday evening a picture that is scheduled for release the following Sunday will be broadcast. This idea necessarily limits the tangibles of the motion picture, but it holds to the dramatic values and gives the listener-in on the radio a clear cut entertainment as to the acting and settings.

Seeking Teddy's Duplicate.

Paramount is still seeking a man to play the part of Theodore Roosevelt in "The Rough Riders." Hector Turnbull, associate producer, wants to obtain an actor whose face is unknown to the screen in order that the character may live in the minds of those who see the picture as Roosevelt himself. The principal trouble with suggestions for the actor is that the suggested ones are generally too old, and overlook the fact that Teddy Roosevelt was comparatively a young man in the days of '98.

Two pictures based on the story of the Prodigal Son and the Twenty-third psalm, "each featuring the universality of the Father's love," are to be the first productions of the religious motion picture foundation, according to a recent announcement. This being the four hundreth anniversary of the translation of the new testament into English, a series of "How We Got Our Bible, is contemplated for the future.

According to a despatch from the west, Blanche Fisher, who won a beauty prize in a contest staged by Universal as "Miss Omaha," has been given a new contract. She was given a six months contract when the contest was staged, and in that time she has proved her screen worth, and her contract has been renewed.

Joseph Schenck seems to think pretty well of his Talmadge-Colman combination, for he is planning to use them again in a picturization of one of the tragic pieces of writing, "The Garden of Allah." Schenck and Samuel Goldwyn are collaborating in order to make this a most elaborate number, and it is hoped to start production by September 1, Henry King of "Stella Dallas," and "Tol'able David," and other famed successes, is to direct. It's a picture that should appeal to the sobby fans, for it is full of heart throbs—but let's hope they keep the ending as one Robert Hichens wrote it, and don't try to twist it into the conventional romatic and happy ee.

Sally O'Neill's Christmas present from Morte consisted of a new contract which will start in February of this year, and will run for a year. You know Sally, she of Sally, Irene, and Mary."

'THE CITY MOUSE' A GOOD PLACE TO KILL AN EVENING

Renovated "Century" Has Nice Revue and "Smoking Allowed" Signs.

Number of Extraordinary Skits and Dances Complete Moving Show.

BY BUSHNELL DIMOND.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The post-Christmas lull in amusements has set in with a vengeance calculated to please the managers of established hits. Nevertheless, there has been at least one opening since I last wrote that will engage the out-of-towner, not to mention his cousin, The City Mouse.

This is not so much a show as a renovation, for the Shuberts have taken over the old Century Roof, where Nikita Balieff used to deliver his dialectical wise cracks, and where (oh, distant day,) Rosie Quinn once sang "Button Me Up the Back." They have achieved marvels with the lofty theater. And they have duly installed there a revue—with smoking permitted. Even the ladies. Could any statement, as a recommendation, go further and fare better?

The entertainment submitted is "A Night in Paris," with the desperate implication that anything Parisian must be very naughty, indeed. As a matter of record, this "Night in Paris" never skates quite through the thin ice of innuendo except at such moments as those in which Yvonne George indulges in some vaguely rough and highly funny patois. This being entirely unintelligible to the cash customers, no feelings are fractured.

Mlle. George, whose first American appearance was, I think, with the fifth Greenwhich Village Follies, is a performer who just escapes being a supreme artist. Her comic songs are so-so; but in one dramatic fragment, "Pas," she wrests an intense and rather horrible emotionality from a shock situation, and is altogether racking and extraordinary. I liked, too, her cruel travesty of Mistinguett. The woman has style. She is also quite beautiful.

"Captain Jinks" Does Well.

Outstanding among the cast's other members is a new and upspringing version of Gertrude Lawrence, one Norma Terriss, whose husband, Max Hoffmann, jr., does so well in "Captain Jinks." Miss Terris is an acutely needed addition to eye-and-ear productions. Pretty supple and with a pert gift for characterization, she will be in great demand by the Ziegfelds of 1930.

The superbly lithe Vanessi, recruited from the Winter Garden; the self centered Jack Osterman, and the reliable Jack Pearl are also among those present. Most of the sketches are cut to the pattern of the Charlot model, but the show moves, and you may dine and dance with the refractions of the Park lights shimmering up at you. A good place to kill an evening when you don't feel in the Ibsen mood.

Dropping in on the Greenwich Village Follies for a second visit, I find that that revue has improved almost beyond recognition. The pace has been snapped up; the burlesques sharpened to a perceptible point, and the stage management accelerated.

The team work of the artists has than at the opening. Florence Moore, while still too "refined" for one who admired her in her "Hanky-Panky" days, is better, and Frank McIntyre is stepping on the gas with something like his old-time fervor. And if there is a more suavely appealing soubrette in these parts than Irene Delroy or a more greased-lightning tap-dancer than Kendall Gapps I have not received the news.

Dramas Not So Good.

The so-called dramatic events of the week need not detain as lengthily. Roberta Arnold, the plump comedienne of "The First Year"; "Chicken Feed," and "The Tantrum," is back in a play by two practically unknown dramatists, Alexander Herman and Leslie Eichel. They call their piece "Down Stream," and in it they paint the unhappiness of a young and sensitive boy who falls in love with a mature woman. This theme is about as unpopular this season as million dollar bequest from an Australian uncle.

"Down Stream" wanders a bit, but it has its moments of strong and enduring beauty. Also it provides Miss Arnold and a youth named Rex Cherryman with ample acting parts. Mr. Cherryman is known to the movie fans as a member of Mme. Nazimova's company a few seasons ago. He also played with Marjorie Rambeau.

Joe Leblang alone knows whether by the time I have got round to chronicling Oliver Morosco's latest venture in Greenwich Village, "Head First" will still be on deck. Let me, however, be optimistic and presume that it is, to keep the debit and credit sheets clear. This play by Willis M. Goodhue, said to be the author of the unlamented "Gyrtie," presents Selma Paley (Mrs. Morosco) as its heroine. If you are a devotee of her art, you may like this tale of big business, garbage and sundered love.

"Last Laugh" Epoch Making.

Our of the great deluge of motion pictures, I unhesitatingly set down the revival of "The Last Laugh" as paramount. The International Film Arts Guild has sponsored this exhumation, and one is almost tempted to believe that Symon Gould, its president, has a brain somewhere concealed, in spite of the terrible "art" studies of the lives of great musicians (including, of all people, Mendelssohn and Handel;) with which he weekly afflicts us. It is also a little hard to conceive how Harold Lloyd in "Hot Water" can contribute anything to aesthetics.

But "The Last Laugh" is in another category, altogether. Here, with every device known to man, including that radium of qualities, imaginatiin—Murnau, the German, has made the De Milles, Griffiths and Niblos look like nothing; so much as small boys scribbling hieroglyceries on fences. This poignant, this astoundingly moving tale is an entity of expression done without a subtitle. In it Emil Jannings proves afresh that he is a great actor.

But never mind. The local powers will probably import both Murnau and Jannings at enormous expense, and they will automatically become plain exponents of the ham school. Which will be a treat for the aborigines who revel in such stuff as "A Woman of the World" and "The Road to Yesterday."

Screen Siftings

Quite Popular—William Beaudine, the Warner Brothers director, is so much in demand by other companies that he doesnt spend much time on the "home lot." He had no sooner returned to the Warner Brother studio after having directed Mary Pickford in "Little Annie Rooney" and "Scraps," than he was borrowed again by Douglas MacLean to help him through "That's My Baby." Mr. MacLean postponed the starting date of his new comedy a week, so Mr. Beaudine could complete "Leave It to Me" for Warner Brothers.

Tries a New One—William De Mille's new Paramount film is said to be something different. Its title is "The Flight to the Hills," and the action of the story is laid in the Kentucky mountains, but it contains no moonshine, feuds nor shooting. Warner Baxter, who has been playing opposite Bebe Daniels in "Brewster's Millions," has been chosen for the male lead in "The Flight to the Hills."

Up and Around—Theodore Roberts, the "grand old man of the screen," who has been confined to his wheelchair for several months, has discarded it for a crutch and cane, and will begin a tour of the Orpheum vaudeville soon.

Ready to Start—Grant Withers, the handsome young six-footer who was recently signed by F. B. O., has started work on "The Fighting Hearts" series opposite Alberta Vaughn.

Prince and Pickaninny—Warner Brothers have signed Willard Louis and Louise Fazenda to new contracts. They will be co-starred in a series of pictures. Mr. Louis became recognized when he played the role of "The Prince of Wales" in "Beau Brummel" and also in "Babbitt." Louise needs no introduction, as she is familiar to all fans for her famous pigtails in Mack Sennett comedies.

Moreno Starred—Antonio Moreno has been engaged for the leading male role of "Robledo" in "The Temptress," which Cosmopolitan will make. Mr. Moreno recently returned from Europe, where he played opposite Alice Terry in "Mare Nostrum," which Rex Ingram produced. He has just completed the part of "Danton" opposite Marion Davies in "Beverly of Graustark." The new production will be directed by Mauritz Stiller, the Swedish director.

Desmond at Work—William Desmond, who has been jaunting about the country on a vaudeville tour, has returned to work at the Universal studio. His first picture will be "The Return of the Riddle Rider," a sequel to the chapter play, "The Riddle Rider."

Big Portable Radio—Radio fans would no doubt be interested in the announcement that Warner Brothers have installed at their West Coast studio, 6-XBE, the largest portable radio broadcasting station of its kind ever constructed. It is to be used to broadcast programs from all theaters using Warner pictures, and such other interesting events as musical entertainments and important sporting contests.

Jackie "Between Pictures"—Jackie Coogan, according to his father, will continue to remain "between pictures" until the proper type of story can be found for him. Jack Coogan, sr., says it must have a "backbone," and aside from that he isn't particular whether it's an original or an adaptation from a novel. Plans have definitely been made to cut Jackie's hair for his next picture before the camera.

An Insured Laugh—Movie stars have their faces, their feet, limbs and even hair insured, but Harry Langdon is the first to have his laugh insured. The general manager of the Langdon unit has taken out insurance to cover Harry's ability to deliver the laughs necessary for a successful feature length comedy. If anything happens to Harry during the filming of the picture which would keep him from "delivering the goods" to the best of his ability, his company is protected by insurance.

Lon in a Series—Lon Chaney, "The Man With a Thousand Faces," will be featured in a series of new productions by M.-G.-M.. He has just completed a dual role of a Lime crook and a crippled rescue mission worker in "The Blackbird." Mr. Chaney will never be forgotten by his fans for his roles in "The Penalty," "The Miracle Man," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "The Phantom of the Opera."

To Circle Globe—Anita Stewart, Dorothy Phillips and Priscilla Dean expect to leave Hollywood soon for a trip around the world. They plan to make a one-reel travelogue in each country that they visit.

The February meeting of the instructional force will be led by Dr. Schreckengast on the general theme of Humanizing College Instruction.

In the December issue of the "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry," Professor Wing had an article on "Thermoregulator." These articles are both a result of advanced study in chemistry which he has been carrying on for two years.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Here I come again. I was so pleased with my other answers that I will try my luck again. Don't you ever get tired answering the same questions over and over again? I think I would.

Some time ago a person wrote you and said they had quite a few pictures. Well, I have ninety-five, and no kidding, and I never sent a cent.

I would like the addresses of the following: Marie Prevost, Monte Blue, Clara Bow, Dorothy Dalton, Kenneth Harlan and Theodore Kosloff.

What has become of Dorothy Dalton? I will close and watch for my letter. Yours truly, BEANS.

Ninety-five pictures! That means you had to write many letters. It must keep you busy, but I'm sure you will be envied by all the other fans.

Marie Prevost, Monte Blue and Kenneth Harlan are all working for Warner Brothers, 5842 Sunset boulevard, Hollywood, Cal. Clara Bow may be addressed at the Lasky studio, 1520 Vine street, Hollywood, in care of B. P. Schulberg. She's loaned out so much it's hard to locate her at a studio. Theodore Kosloff is working in a picture for Cecil B. DeMille, Culver City, Cal., at present. A letter sent to him at Los Angeles would reach him, I'm sure, as he has a school of dancing there.

Dorothy Dalton married Arthur Hammerstein and retired from the stage, so I am unable to give you a late address for her.

Dear Movie Editor—I have been wondering how on earth people get pictures like "The Lost World." I could not believe my eyes when I saw those big animals. Please tell me a little about how they take pictures like that. Thank you, B. N.

There are tricks in every trade, but the camera has the biggest bag o' tricks of them all. The dinosaurs, allosaurus and brontosaurus in "The Lost World" were made to live, breathe and move, by a new and difficult process known as "animation." The invention is credited to Willis O'Brien, who assisted Watterson Rothacker and Earl Hudson in producing the picture. I have written in for more minute details concerning the new process, and will relay the information to you as soon as it arrives.

Screen Siftings

The Latest in Flappers—Little Sally O'Neill will have an opportunity to display the latest type of flapper clothes and mnaners in "The Auction Block." She takes the part of a small town flirt.

Tony and Tom Star—Tom Mix has completed "My Little Pal," and has started work on a new Tony production. The story, "Tony Runs Wild" was written especially for the famous horse by Elfrid Bingham and Robert Lord. Jacqueline Logan has the lead opposite Mr. Mix s in the picture.

Back to Sunland—News comes from France, where Alice Terry and her husband, Rex Ingram, are sojourning, that sunny California is beckoning so hard to Miss Terry she has decided to pack up and come home. Mr. Ingram, who has grown fond of France, has decided to stay there. Both insist that no divorce is impending.

No Winter Vacation—There's to be no winter let-up at the Cecil B. De Mille studio. The 1926 program calls for twenty-five feature pictures, more than double the 1925 schedule. Production is expected to start soon on "Silence," in which H. B. Warner will star. Leatrice Joy is assembling her wardrobe for "Eve's Leaves." "Red Dice," in which Rod La Rocque is starring, is nearing completion, and work is progressing rapidly on Cecil B. De Mille's personally directed picture, "The Volga Boatman."

Do Milles May Rejoin—Another interesting bit of news concerning the De Milles is that the brothers may work together again. William, whose contract with Famous Players-Lasky will be fulfilled upon the completion of one more picture, is said to be considering an offer to move his directorial chair and megaphone to Culver City.

June Marlow Signed—June Marlow, whose contract with Warner Brothers recently expired, has been placed under a five-year contract by Carl Laemmle of Universal. Miss Marlow is one of the 1925 Baby Wampas stars. Her first role for Universal will be opposite Jean Hersholt in his first starring production, "The Old Soak," by Don Marquis.

Tricks to Metro—Trixie Friganza of vaudeville fame has moved her "Little Bag of Tricks" to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. She will add weight and comedy to the cast of Monia Bell's production, "Monte Carlo," Lew Cody, Gertrude Olmstead and Harry Myers are the other important members of the cast. The picture is a satire on American tourists in Europe.

On the Cold Desert—George B. Seitz and company, accompanied by a big shipment of costumes and supplies, have gone on location to the desert to shoot scenes for Zane Grey's "Desert Gold." The featured players in the cast are Shirley Mason, Nell Hamilton, Robert Frazer and William Powell. More than 200 players will take part in reproducing the lawless days described by Mr. Grey in his story.

Five-Year Contract—Philo McCullough, one of the pioneers of the screen, has cast his lot with First National for the next five years. Mr. McCullough played in the first serial ever made, "The Adventures of Kathleen." His first role under his new contract will be in "The Savage," in which Ben Lyon and May McAvoy are featured. The picture will be made at the East Coast studio under Fred Newmeyer's direction.

This Week's Attractions

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Now that the year is over, I wish to say a few things, and to sum up the past twelve months.

I think the best pictures this year past were "Don Q," "Never the Twain Shall Meet," "The Phantom of the Opera," "The Iron Horse," "The Pony Express" "Forty Winks" and "Paths to Paradise." I don't think "The Pony Express" was up to the standard set by "The Covered Wagon."

For the best comedies, I take my hat off to Raymond Griffith, who gave me more enjoyment than any other man this year that I've seen.

How was it that "Men and Women" never came to Lincoln? I think Richard Dix is the finest actor of today and I never miss a picture of his! What picture is he working on now? Who is directing and playing opposite him? Has Richard picked out a girl to marry yet? I think he's too bashful.

Are there any productions in the making now that are considered in the class of "The Ten Commandments" or Don Q," etc.?

What date has "Ben Hur" been booked for Lincoln? I see it is in New York now.

For the best picture of the year, I name "Don Q." For the best directing, I name George Fitzmaurice. For the best characterization I Lon Chaney for "The Phantom of the Opera," and for the best laugh, "Forty Winks." Perhaps you don't agree, so I'll close hoping that 1926 will equal 1924 in productions, which 1925 did not.—P. A. R. J.

I enjoyed your comments and letter very much, and while I don't agree with you in all of your selections, it's no doubt because my tastes are different from yours. If we all had the same tastes in pictures, the troubles of the producers would be over.

I like Doug Fairbanks, but he's not especially a favorite of mine, so I would place "The Phantom of the Opera" ahead of "Don Q" as my favorite on the list you mention. "Don Q" was full of adventure and thrills and the stunts for which Doug is famous, but Lon Chaney's characterization just fascinate me. I never miss a picture that I know he is in.

As to "Forty Winks," it was a scream, and I enjoy Mr. Griffith, but "The King on Main Street," with Adolphe Menjou was equally good. In thinking it over, though, I don't know but what "Forty Winks" would score a little the higher. You should enjoy "Hands Up."

"Men and Women" was a very inferior show, in spite of the fact that Richard Dix played the hero. It had a trite plot and nothing particularly interestin gabout it. That's no doubt the reason it never came to Lincoln. I often think it must be a tremendous task for the theatre managers to go over all of the good shows on the market and pick out those that would appeal to the greatest number. Particularly when the favorite stars which are always drawing cards, appear in a poor picture. It must take a lot of courage to turn down a poor picture when they know that the star's name would be enough to fill the theatre. But maybe the anticipated howl that would go up over the picture is enough to bolster up their decision.

Mr. Dix is about to start work on "Let's Get Married," with Lois Wilson as his leading lady. Don't know whether the title of the picture has anything to do with his matrimonial intentions or not. Once upon a time he was reported engaged to Lois, you know. No director has been announced for the picture at this writing.

"Ben Hur" will tour the country as a road show first, like "The Birth of a Nation," and the other big shows did. It has not yet been booked for Lincoln.

There are many big productions in the offing. "The Big Parade," which has been released for some time is a wonderful show and one that you will surely enjoy.

Since Doug is one of your favorites, you will not miss seeing him this year in "The Black Pirate." A great deal of the picture is done in color, and Doug is trying to make it a little better than any of his others.

"Old Ironsides," the story of the Frigate Constitution which is familiar to every history student in this country, is coming to the screen as a big feature for 1926.

The story of Theodore Roosevelt's life is also to be picturized this year as "The Rough Riders," and the story of our Flag will be immortalized on the screen during the coming year, so we have much in store for us. Every studio is putting forth a big effort to make bigger and better pictures for 1926.

Dear Movie Editor—I read your column every Sunday and enjoy it. I have written for the first time to you, and I know that I will get satisfactory answers to my questions.

Has Mary Pickford stopped making pictures? I haven't seen or heard of her in any picture lately, but it seems queer that she would "give up the ship" that way.

Also, I wish to ask you about Thomas Meighan's business partner who played in "Old Home Week." Was he Larry Treat? Where can I address him to ask for his picture? Thanking you, I am, TOOTS.

Come again. Mary certainly hasn't deserted us. She's gone back to her old roles in pictures, and she has just recently completed two. "Little Annie Rooney" has already been released and "Scraps" will be ready for release soon. Mary only makes two or three pictures a year—that's why you don't see her oftener and hear more about her. She is going to take a trip to Europe soon, and may possibly make a picture over there.

Yes, Larry Wheat was "J. Edwards Brice," in "Old Home Week." Address him at the Famous Players-Lasky Studio, Long Island, N. Y.

Dear Movie Editor—I have just returned from the theater where I have seen "The Mine with the Iron Door." I must say that I certainly liked Robert Frazer, who played the part of the Indian. Is he a real Indian? What are some of his other pictures? Please tell me something about him.

By now, I have seen several of Colleen Moores pictures and although I liked "Sally" the best, I think she is "just swell" in all of her pictures. I surely am going to try to see more of them. Please tell me something about her and her entrance into filmdom. How old is she? I read recently that although her eyes photograph the same, she has one brown eye and one blue eye. Is this true? Who played opposite her in "Painted People?"

Are Eileen Sedgwick and Josephine Sedgwick sisters? They both play in western pictures. Is Edward Sedgwick, whom I think is a director, any relation to either?

What color hair and eyes have Pat O'Malley and Lloyd Hughes?

Please give me the casts for "The Iron Horse" and "The Pony Express."

If you happen to have pictures of Colleen and Eileen, please send me one of each. Thanking you, I am yours truly, BETTY LEE? Wilber, Neb.

Robert Frazer isn't an Indian. He's just a good actor, and when he isn't before the camera, he's tinkering with his radio outfit, because he's quite a radio fan. He started his picture career with United in "Her Code of Honor." He has played in such pictures as "Bolshevism Trial" "Without Limit," with Pola Negri in "Men," and "The Charmer." Pola called him the screen's greatest lover. He recently completed work with Anna Q. Nilsson in "The Splendid Road," and has been engaged for the leading male role in "Desert Gold." Mr. Frazer is married, and he has dark hair and eyes. He was born in Worcester, Mass., thirty-five years ago.

Colleen Moore was born in Port Huron, Mich., in 1901, but when she was still a child, her parents moved to Tampa, Fla. There Colleen got her startin acting. The youngsters in the neighborhood organized a stock company, and Colleen was leading woman. Colleen's parents didn't enthuse over her ambition to become an actress. They wanted her to be a musician, and educated her as such. She spent a year at the Detroit Conservatory of Music, and was ready to make her debut as a concert pianist. On her way back to Florida to see her mother, she stopped off at Chicago to visit Walter Howie, her uncle, was then managing editor of the Chicago American. While Colleen was in his office D. W. Griffith called, and immediately offered her a job in the movies. Of course, she accepted and persuaded her mother to take her to California. The first picture Colleen made [illegible] Bobby Harron. She played every[illegible] leads in pictures before she was given a contract by First National to star for them. Her first appearance as a star was in "The Huntress." She has gained her [illegible] handicap of the defective coloring in her eyes.

Ben Lyon played the role of Don Lane in "Painted People."

Eileen and Josephine are sisters, and Edward is their brother.

Pat has brown hair and blue eyes, and Lloyd has dark hair and greenish-gray eyes.

The cast for "The Iron Horse" is prologue "Davy Brandon, aged 10," Winston Miller, "Miriam Marsh, 8," Peggy Cartwright, "Abraham Lincoln" Judge Charles Howard Bull' "Dave Brandon Sr." James Gordon, "Thomas Marsh," Will Walling. In the story: "Davy Brandon?" George O'Brien' "Miriam Marsh," Madge Bellamy, "Thomas Marsh," Will Walling; "Derouz" Fred Kahler' "Peter Jesson" Cyril Chadwick; "Ruby," Gladys Hulette; "Judge Hallor," James Marcus; "Colonel Cody," George Wagner; "Wild Bill Hickok" John Madjan; "Major North," Charles O'Malley; "Thomas Durant" Jack Ganzhorn; "Corporal Casey" J. Farrell MacDonald; "Private Schultz," James Welch; "Polka Dot' Frances Teague' "John Hay" Stanhope Wheatcroft; "Old Chinaman," Edward Piel "Cheyenne Chief" Chief Big Tree.

The cast for "The Pony Express" is: "Molly Jones' Betty Compson; "Jack Weston," Ricardo Cortez; "Ascension Jones," Ernest Torrence; "Rhode Island Red," "Wallace Beery, "Jack Slade," George Bancroft; "Charlie Bent" Frank Lackteen; "Bill Cody," John Fox, Jr. "William Russell" William Turner' "Senator Glen," Al Hart, "Sam Clemens" Charles Gerson; "Aunt Rose Tapley' "Baby' Bondell Darr. You will have to write directly to your favorites for pictures, because I have none of them.

Dear Movie Editor—What are the addresses of Dorothy Gish, Mary Pickford, Baby Peggy, Norma Talmadge, Constance Talmadge and Jobyna Ralston?

Didn't Marion Davies play opposite Harold Lloyd in some of his pictures?

When sending for movie stars pictures, should I enclose the return postage. How much would the postage be? Thanking you, I close.—L. M. S.

Address Dorothy Gish in care of Inspiration pictures, New York City. Mary Pickford gets her mail in care of her own company, 7100 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood. Constance and Norma Talmadge both receive letters in care of Joseph Schenck Productions, United Studios, 3341 Melrose avenue, Hollywood, Calif.

Baby Peggy is not making pictures at present so I can't give you a very late address for her. She was under contract to Principal Pictures Corporation, 7250 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood. Address Jobyna in care of Harold Lloyd Productions, 8642 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood.

You are thinking of Mildred Davis, who is now Mrs. Harold Lloyd. She played opposite her famous husband before they were married. Mildred and Marion are both blonds, and their names are so similar that it's easy to confuse them.

It's usually customary to send a quarter for postage when asking the players for their photographs, but a great many of the fans have advised me that they have accumulated as high as 95 pictures without sending any money. I think it's a little more courteous to send at lease a dime, if you feel that a quarter is too much, when asking for pictures. The players are under a great deal of expense in mailing out their photographs to the thousands of fans who request them. Some of them are well able to stand the expense, but the less popular ones are not so well off.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the first time I have written you, and I have about a million questions to ask you.

Is Jack Holt married, and if so to whom? Is Jack Holt his real name?

Is Billie Dove married and if so to whom? Is Billie Dove her real name?

Please send me the addresses of the following: Jack Holt, Billie Dove, Bebe Daniels and Colleen Moore.

What is Baby Peggy's last name? What is her last picture? How old is she? Hoping to see my letter in print, I am B. J. R.

Your first letter, and you are starting the new year right!

Jack Holt is married to a non-professional. That is his real name.

Billie Dove is Mrs. Irvan Willat in private life. Her husband is a director. That's the only name she has ever given me.

Address Billie, Jack and Bebe in care of Famous Players-Lasky, 1520 Vine street, Hollywood. Colleen Moore gets her letters in care of First National Pictures, 5341 Melrose avenue, Hollywood.

Baby Peggy's name is Peggy Montgomery. She is 7 years old, and is not making pictures at present. "Helen's Babies" was her last.

Dear Movie Editor—This is my third letter to you. I enjoy your page very much. I like it and the fannies the best in the Star. Will you please tell me when the following were born: Richard Dix, Marion Davies, Betty Bronson, Gloria Swanson, Betty Compson, Douglas Fairbanks, Evelyn Brent, Lila Lee, Mary Brian, Ronald Coleman, Lawrence Gray, Esther Ralston, Monte Blue, Viola Dana, Bebe Daniels, Patsy Ruth Miller, Lois Wilson, Norma Shearer, Pola Negri, Thomas Meighan and Dorothy Dalton.

Will Baby Peggy send her picture free? What is her address, also Wanda Hawley, Hope Hampton, Syd Chaplin, and Claire Windsor?

Is Theda Bara in the movies? If so, what is her address?

Is Douglas Fairbanks, jr., son of Mary and Douglas?

Thanking you, I am PATSY, Crete, Neb.

That's a big order, but here goes. Richard Dix was born in 1894; Gloria Swanson, 1893; Marion Davies, 1898; Betty Compson, 1898; Betty Bronson, 1908; Douglas Fairbanks, 1883; Evelyn Brent, 1899; Lila Lee, 1802; Mary Briar, 1908; Ronald Coleman, 1891; Lawrence Gray, 1900; Esther Ralston, 1902; Monte Blue, 1890; Viola Dana, 1898; Bebe Daniels, 1901; Patsy Ruth Miller, 1901; Lois Wilson, 1896; Norma Shearer, 1904; Pola Negri, 1898; Thomas Meighan, 1880, and Dorothy Dalton, 1894.

It's customary to send a quarter when making a request for photographs, but you can try Baby Peggy without the money if you wish. Address her in care of Principal Pictures Corp, Hollywood, Cal. That's the last address I have for her. She isn't working at present. Address Miss Hawley at California Studios, 1438 Gower street, Hollywood. Hope Hamton works at Fort Lee Studio, Fort Lee, N. J. Syd Chaplin draws his pay from Warner Brothers, 5842 Sunset boulevard, Hollywood, and Claire Windsor is a member of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation, Culver City, Calif.

Theda Bara is working at the Hal Roach Studio, Culver City, Calif. at present, in a feature comedy.

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., is the son of Douglas Fairbanks and his first wife, Beth Sully.

Dear Movie Editor: I saw the picture entitled, "The Road to Yesterday," and have since had an argument with a friend concerning it. We are both hoping that you can solve the difficulty.

Now for the questions. After the accident did Bess dream all that followed and did it have anything to do with what had happened before? Can you explain about the flower in the knife, was it not due to the fact that Ken did not believe in God that all the chas followed?

Can you give me the age of Blanche Sweet and Ben Lyon?

I hope this does not find its way to the waste basket.—CURIOUS.

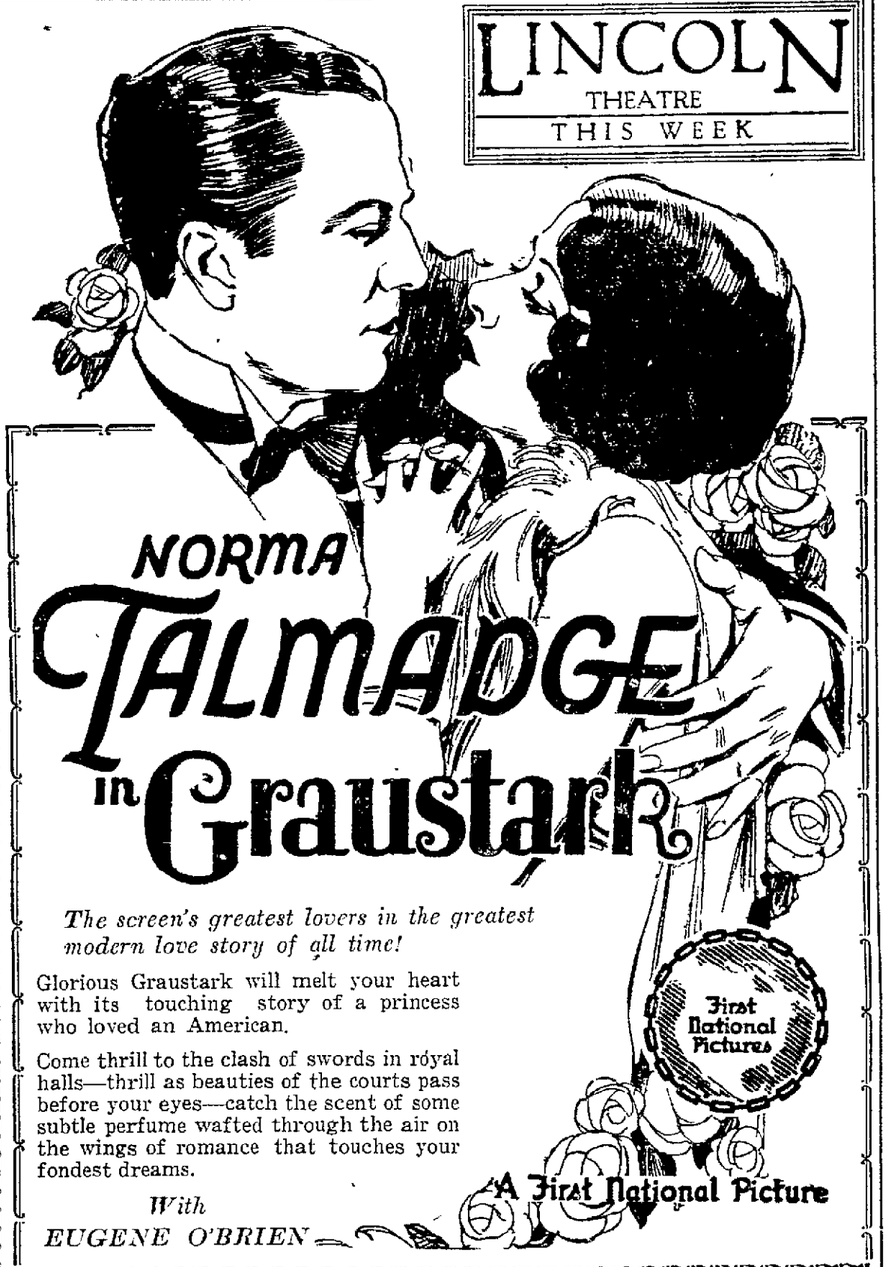

I think Mr. De Mille had the metaphysical in mind when he produced "The Road to Yesterday." Many novelists draw on their imagination to expound the theory that when a person is unconscious or hovering between life and death, the soul may leave the body and flit around at will.

My impression is that Mr. De Mille tried to convey that idea in his picture. When the accident occurred and the players were unconscious, the soul left the body and re-enacted for a short time the events that had happened in the lives of the early ancestors. The finding of the knife with the flower in the handle, would suggest the romantic incident that took place or rather seemed to take place while Bess was unconscious, just as some little incident that occurs during the day will make you dream at night.

Blanche Sweet was born in 1893, and Ben Lyon in 1898.

Evening Classes in Home-Making Draw Women From All Walks of Life To Lincoln Schools

These views illustrate some of the activity which goes on all winter in Lincoln public night school classes, conducted under the Smith-Hughes system. The illustrations are of women's courses only, but other classes are conducted for men. In the upper left hand corner is shown a cooking class; in the upper right, sewing is being taught; lower left a class in the care of the hair and skin; lower right, home nursing and health, which includes hygiene as well as practical work in the care of sick persons.

One class of Lincoln school work which certainly cannot be accused of too many "frills" is the home-making study carried on every week through the winter at twelve school buildings.

These courses are a part of the Smith-Hughes work, which provides trade instruction for men, and which draws an increasing number of local men and women every year.

Home-making is the only line of instruction for women yet mapped out, but in the future trade courses may be added, just as they have been for men. But the word "home-making" includes a dozen branches of study. The student finds that the art of a housewife is just as complicated when learned from instructors as it is when picked up by hard knocks in a bungalow.

Miss Birdie Vorhies is state supervisor of Smith-Hughes work for women, and John R. Patlow is the superintendent for Lincoln. He also has charge of the men's work.

The only thing that resembles trade courses for women in the Lincoln high school classes is commercial work, he says, and that is not a part of the Smith-Hughes work. Under the Smith-Hughes act of several years ago, the state and nation pay three quarters of the salaries for teachers engaged in the work, while the local school board pays one quarter.

The purpose of this training for Lincoln women is to make them better housewives and home builders.

All kinds of women take advantage of it. Some come from well-to-do families, many from middle-class families and some from poor families In the sewing classes for instance, there are many who prefer to do their own dress-making, but have never had a chance to learn. Material is too expensive to use haphazardly, so they bring their projects to class where an expert seamstress helps them over the hard parts and shows them how they can shift for themselves the next time.

Teach Rudiments.

In the sewing classes as elsewhere, no attempt is made to have the pupils become dressmakers. They are taught simply the rudiments of the work and the tricks which come in most handily in home work.

The teachers are well trained and capable They keep in touch with changing modes at the leading stores and leading design houses. They also are practical workers who have had years of experience.

Instructors in the nursing course are registered nurses themselves, and university professors and others with expert knowledge help out on lectures and demonstration The class for nurses is conducted for those who would take examination as trained nurses. Laboratories at the high school are available, and the hospitals where these girls are studying are glad that they can obtain the added information which cannot always be picked up in the rounds of duty.

One mother who had been attending a class on care of the skin spoke of it to a friend as a health class. So much work on healthy scalp, clean skin and general sanitation was given that the whole course seemed to her to be one of health. Although the beauty parlor experts who conduct this class give some instruction on how to appear well in the public, most of their lectures and advice is directed towards the fundamental of health.

The Classes.

Clothing classes are held at Bancroft, Whittier, McKinley, Saratoga and Clinton. Beginning and advanced work in tailoring of children's clothes, dressmaking, new garments and remodeling is taken up. The teachers are Mrs. E G Limprecht and Miss Mary Tennant

Whittier and Clinton have food classes in which meal planning, choice and preparation of foods, nutrition, health values and balanced rations are studied. Miss Mabel Lucas and Mrs. Paul Campbell are the instructors.

Home health is taught at Clinton, Bancroft and Saratoga. Nursing, sanitation, first aid, ventilation, are included. Miss Lulu Abbott is instructor.

Care of the hair and skin includes scalp treatment, health skin lotions and shampoo. The classes are held at Clinton and McKinley in charge of Miss Norine Lewis and Mrs. B F Hodges.

Mother training and home management, taught largely in the afternoon, is given at Prescott, Saratoga, McKinley and Normal Child care, household budgeting, furniture, equipment and decoration are taken up. Mrs. Eileen Harrison is in charge

Bancroft and Saratoga were chosen for the millinery classes, which Miss Mary Tennant and Miss Edith Funston teach.

Mrs. C. C. Minteer, J. W. Matthai and A. W Bryan have charge of the nurses training courses, held at the high school. Chemistry, dietics, psychology, bacteriology are studied.

That's what they are. The French are gentlemen."

"What about Germans, Gus?" I ventured.

"All right,' answered the movie man heartily. "We had a German at our table in the hotel, and they're all right. Mind you I think we were perfectly right in crushing them because they needed to be crushed. But they're all right."

COPPER KING LOOKS AT OXFORD.

E. J. Slagg, the multimillionaire owner of mines and president of Slagg Consolidated Copper, visited Oxford yesterday and was shown round the colleges. The big copper man, whose quiet taciturnity and power of silence have made him the terror of the Stock Exchange, looked about him at everything with the same keen shrewdness with which he detects a vein of copper under a hundred feet of traprock. Only now and then he darted a shrewd question or let fall a short comment.

"This place," he said, "is old." On the threshold of the Bodleian Library he paused a moment as if rapidly measuring the contents with his eye.

"Mostly books?" he asked.

The copper king also paused a moment before the monument erected to the memory of Latimer and Ridley. "What's the idea?" he asked.....

But I soon learned that this new and brilliant flood of light is not only turned on Europe. By a similar process I found that it is let loose on the American continent too.

BRITISH LORDD SEES JERSEY TUGS.

Lord Tinklepin, who arrived from England on the Aquitania yesterday, was taken for a trip up and down the harbor in a fast tug. His lordship expressed himself amazed at the commerce of New York.

'I had no idea of it," he said.

Passing by one of the car ferries of the Erie railroad, Lord Tinklepin expressed the keenest interest. "What the devil is that?" he asked.

On being told what it was, the distinguished visitor who is well known for his interest in physical science, at once asked, "Why doesnt it upset?"

LADY VISITOR DISCUSSES AMERICAN BANKING.

Lady Mary Messabout president of the Women's Federation for Universal Mutual Understanding, was shown round financial New York yesterday as the guest of the Bankers' Association. Lady Mary expressed the greatest wonder at the subtreasury of the United States

"Is it possible," she said, "that it's full of money?"

Lady Mary was questioned by representatives of the press as to her opinion of the American banking system.

"It is really excellent," she answered—"so little delay and such civility everywhere."

"Do you thing"—I asked—"that the deflation of American currency would check the expansion of business?"

"Oh, I hope not," Lady Mary answered warmly; "Surely it would never do that."

FRENCH BARON VISITS WEST.

The Baron de Vieux Chateau, who is visiting Saskatchewan with a view to seeing whether the richer parts of Canada would be suited for the poorer class of Frenchmen, was taken yesterday on a tour of inspection of the grain elevators of Saskatoon.

'But they are marvelous!" the baron said to me on his return to his hotel. "They seem to me absolutely—how shall I say it?—enormous."

In further discussion the baron said the whole system of distributing the wheat seemed to him excellent.

When asked what was his impression of the farmers' co-operative movement the distinguished visitor again spoke with enthusiasm.

"But your farmers'" he said. "They are wonderful! What courage! What tenacity! To have come here and stayed here! It is wonderful"

In Pittsburgh, President Cassatt gathered his experts about him and attacked the formidable task precipitated by the coal strike. The congealment of the complicated arteries of the system, touching a thousand cities and towns in the very core of America, had become a national calamity, working hardship upon untold numbers of business concerns and inconveniencing millions of individuals.

In a few days the embargo was lifted, the system re-oiled and set to running, and a definite start made toward restored normality.

Atterbury Unravelled Tangle.

Strangely enough, the man most instrumental in accomplishing this miracle was the general superintendent, from Altoona. A life-long specialist in motive power, he demonstrated special ability in a department which was presumed to be outside his experience—that of operation. His suggestions, based on skilled perception of the best means of unravelling the tangled skein of traffic, restored the delicate process of transportation

To show how delicate this process has become, consider a recent case. The Pennsylvia wished to establish a 24-hour train between St. Louis and New York, leaving St. Louis at nine o'clock (central time) and arriving in New York at ten o'clock (eastern time). There was only one way in which such a train could be scheduled—to leave St. Louis at 8:58 and arrive in New York at 10:05.

William Wallace Atterbury went back to Altoona President Cassatt returned to his Philadelphia headquarters with the knowledge that the tie-up had served one good turn. He had discovered a transportation genius who was destined to be of great service to the company.

Mr. Cassatt was not a man to delay. He determined to give Atterbury instant recognition.

"We can use him as general manager east of Pittsburgh and Erie," he decided.

The directors agreed. It was a splendid promotion for a man as young as this one.

Late in 1902, the general superintendent of motive power received a summons from Mr. Cassatt.

Was Promoted Immediately.

"Atterbury," he was told, "we want you to become general manager of the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie effective January 1, 1903."

It was a mere matter of six years before Atterbury become fifth vice-president in charge of transportation. This was in 1909. In 1911 he assumed the fourth vice-presidency. The next year, 1912, when the practice of designating these officials numerically was discontinued, he became vice-president in charge of operation. While thus serving he was elected president of the American Railway association, composed of railroad presidents.

After the United States entered the World war in 1917 and General Pershing went to France he threw up his hands when he got a good idea of existing transportation facilities. America would have to build many railway lines of its own and harmonize these with those of the allies. It was a monumental problem.

"Send the best available railroad man in the United States," the general asked Washington

Secretary of War Baker made due investigation and then dispatched Atterbury to France as director general of transportation, with the commission of brigadier general. His success earned him decorations from four governments.

When government operation of railways ceased in this country in 1920. General Atterbury returned to his old post with the Pennsylvania. In 1924 he became vice president without designation, so that he might assist President Samuel Rea When the latter was automatically retired at the age of seventy in 1925, Atterbury was elected to the presidency.

What America Needs Is Better Putters

I drives over, which was only a few blocks and have to drive further by to find a place to park than I originally lived from the place I could tell by the number of cars that the exclusiveness was about off. Well, I walked in and found a lot of people standing around a very pretty piece of lawn. Over on a kind of a mound where they seemed to have some sand stored, sit some newspaper men. I recognized Reed Eustis and Brown of Chicago and Damon Runyan of New York, all old friends of mine, so I immediately hollered out, "Hello boys, I certinly am glad to see you."

Well, I had no more than bellowed that out than you would have thought I had tried to assassinate President Coolidge. There was many hands layed on me, and 500 shushes, for me to be quiet. It a fellow had done the Charleston at a funeral he could have committed no worse social blunder than I had done. After 8 of them removed their hands from my mouth I asked in a whisper, what was the matter. They replied in a subdued whisper. That So and So was putting. I remarked, "Putting? My Lord, I thought he was dying, the way you all act!" I was afraid to shake hands with my friends for fear I would jar the ground and interfere with his "Putting," that's what they called it. I would call it bunting as that is what it is in baseball when they don't knock it very far.

It was so quiet that not even a woman was inhaling her cigarette. But it wasn't so quiet that a gentleman didn't tiptoe up to me on the velvet lawn and demand under his breath, "Fife-fifty, please"

Just the rustle of the five-spot being extracted from alone mate caused Bobby Cruickshank to miss an 18-inch putt. Then just when I thought I was still enough not to attract any more attention, why I found that I was again in the limelight. I thought to myself what in the world have I done wrong now It was my clothes. I had attended the game in long pants. I was as out of place as if I had had on a ballet skirt.

Well, we was on what they called the 18th hole. I whispered to Runyan and asked him when the game was going to start.

He said, "Start? Why each pair that comes up here is finishing."

I said, "Is this a game that I am looking at now?"

He said, "Why sure!"

I said, "You mean to tell me that what one fellow does with this ball has nothing to do with the other fellow?

He nodded in the affirmative. Well here these fellows was doing just what I had seen those others do out on Long Island, just walking around monkeying. Here I had seen golf all the time and didn't know it.

It is the only game in the world where practicing it and playing it is the same thing. Seeing a man walking around a golf course hitting a ball is just like seeing somebody handling a Eukalalle. You can't tell whether they are playing it or just monkeying with it. It's the only game outside solitaire where you play alone. What you do with your ball hasn't got anything to do with what the other fellow does with his. I can play you a game and I can play in the morning and you can play a month from then. It's solitaire only much quieter.

Well, here I was, seeing a game that I had seen before and didn't know it. I had heard it called an old man's game. Say, why there was no old men in there. That's the funny part of it. All of them were either great big husky birds or little husky birds. Every one of them looked big and strong enough to work at something. I met and talked to the wives of the players. If you want to get the real low down on any game the ones who have to look at it all the time are the ones to explain it to you.

Now I am not going to make the mistake of the usual fool (just because I don't play the game) and tell you that there is nothing to it. There is skill in anything if you practice it long enough. Spitting at a crack don't get much recognition among the Arts, but you just try to hit one some time and you will never laugh at another spitter again.

The main thing that struck me about the game was the amount of skill they had developed in getting near the hole, and how little they displayed getting into it. They could all knock a ball clear across a canyon to a hole 225 yards away and light in one shot right up within a few feet of the hole, and then shoot the rest of the evening trying to get it in there Mind you, then it must be hard; when anything ain't being done it's hard. But like any man that goes any where and pays his money to see something, he is just liable to be the one to make a suggestion that will improve on the game. It was a one-legged guy that invented the rule that "Over the fence is a home run without running."

So I am just liable to be the one to make a helpful suggestion on this golf business.

What this country needs is better putters. Maybe that's where the old men come in on golf. Maybe they are the putters. It must be a great game. All these fine young men can't all be wrong, and when I take up the game I am just going to work on my putting. Let somebody else do all the walking around. Let them bat 'em up on the old green, and I will be the man that will do the putting. But I will have to get me some knee breeches.

NOW YOU WON'T FORGET - SUGAR AND CINNAMON -

I WON'T FORGET - TODAY WHEN WE HAD OUR HISTORY LESSON I WAS THE ONLY KID IN MY CLASS WHO REMEMBERED THE DATE OF THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL - IF I CAN REMEMBER THINGS THAT HAPPENED SO LONG AGO HOW CAN I FORGET A LITTLE THING LIKE SUGAR AND CINNAMON ?

REMEMBER, I WANT NO EXCUSES OR ALIBIS - YOU MUST BRING ME THE SUGAR AND CINNAMON - AND IF YOU ARE BACK IN TEN MINUTES I'LL MAKE YOU AN APPLE PIE AND GIVE YOU MONEY TO SEE THE MOVIES -

I'LL BET I CAN RUN FASTER THAN ANY KID IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD - WHEN I GROW UP MAYBE I'LL BE THE CHAMPION RUNNER OF THE WHOLE WORLD AND I'LL HAVE A WHOLE HOUSE FULL OF MEDALS AND GOLD CUPS - AND THEN I'LL BET MY MOTHER WILL BE PROUD OF ME -

I'LL HAVE MY PAPA BUILD SHELVES AND TABLES TO PUT THE CUPS ON - THEN I'LL GIVE AN EXHIBITION AND CHARGE ALL THE KIDS A DIME TO LOOK AT ALL THE SWELL PRIZES I WON FOR WINNING RACES -

OF COURSE IF SOME POOR KID WHO HASN'T A DIME WANTS TO SEE MY MEDALS I'LL LET HIM COME IN FREE - MAYBE I'LL HAVE MY PICTURES IN THE PAPERS AND MY NAME ON A BIG BILL-BOARD LIKE MR. NURMI -

NOW I FORGET WHAT SHE SAID TO GET - WHAT WILL I DO ? GOSH, IF I GO HOME IT'LL BE TOO LATE TO MAKE THE PIES - AND I'LL BE OUT MY FIFTY CENTS IF I DON'T GET IT AND WON'T SEE THE SHOW -

I CAN'T SIT HERE FOR EVER - LET ME SEE, WHAT DOES MOTHER USE TO MAKE APPLE PIE ? APPLES, FLOUR, PAKING POWDER, BUTTER, SUGAR AND CINNAMON - I KNEW I'D THINK OF IT - SUGAR AND CINNAMON -

SUGAR, CINNAMON, CINNAMON, SUGAR SUGAR, CINNAMON, CINNAMON - SUGAR -

I'VE GOT IT - I'LL NOT FORGET THAT AGAIN - AND RUNNING LIKE THIS HAS MADE ME AS HUNGRY AS A RUSTY SAW MILL - OH, WHAT I'LL DO TO THAT PIE -

I'LL BET THAT'S A SWELL MOVIE I'M GOING TO SEE TONIGHT - THERE'S LOTS OF COWBOYS AND INDIANS IN IT - MOTHER WILL BE PROUD OF ME WHEN SHE FINDS I DIDN'T FORGET ANYTHING - MAYBE SHE'LL LET ME STAY FOR TWO SHOWS -
